FUELS BRITISH DISPUTE

Skybolt Missile Registers First Success In Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)— The controversial Skybolt airlaunched missile registered its first success in six tests Saturday, but the White House and Pentagon said the flight would not alter U.S. plans to cancel the weapon.

Acting Secretary of Defense Roswell F. Gilpatric strongly indicated in Washington that this launching was the last for Skybolt. The Air Force has several missiles remaining which it hoped to fire in case the program was revived at a future date.

The successful test almost certainly will intensify the seething Skybolt issue in Great Britain where Prime Minister Harold Macmillan is being assailed from all political sides for his Nassau agreement with President Kennedy to accept U.S. Polaris submarine missiles in place of Skybolts.

SHOT ACCURATE

British defense officials earlier had staked the nation's nuclear deterrence on Skybolt, abandoning several of their own missile projects.

The sleet Skybolt was launched Saturday from a B52 stratofortress bomber streaking more than seven miles above the Atlantic Ocean, about 15 miles southeast of Cape Canaveral. With almost fantastic accuracy, the rocket drilled its nose cone to a target 850 miles down range, landing just one mile off the center of the bullseye.

Accuracy was not a major goal of the missile—whose target was a broad section of sea—and an official called the near-miss of target center an "unexpected bonus."

The Air Force originally scheduled the launching during the Kennedy-Macmillan talks this week, in hopes a success would have some bearing on the discussions. But sources reported the shot was delayed until the Western leaders parted "because of political reasons."

Fireworks Stand Blows Up Saturday

None Injured As East Of Monroe Rocked By Blast

An explosion rocked the east side of Monroe Saturday when a fireworks stand was blown to bits at 5320 DeSiard St. shortly after dark.

Firemen said that miraculously no one was hurt when the small stand operated by John Brooks, owner of Brooks' Nursery, blew up around 7 p.m. The stand was located just east of Monroe city limits.

Authorities said that an unidentified youth came into the stand and bought some fireworks.

ESCAPE BLAST

The youth set fire to one of the firecrackers he had just bought either while still inside or just outside, and caused the resulting window - rattling explosion. The youth and Brooks' son who was operating the stand, both ran for cover, and escaped injury.

However, the small stand was blown sky-high, scattering litter all over DeSiard Road and across the highway, and blowing a small hole in the plate glass window at the nearby nursery. The stand was leveled and when Monroe fire trucks five and seven arrived there was little to do. Firemen said that a few scattered boards were smoldering, and were quickly extinguished.

Selman Field and Troop F, state police reported that the explosion was so loud surrounding residents began calling to report they'd heard an airplane crash.

Brooks estimated damages and losses from the blast would total around $3,000.

Monroe Fire Chief H. L. Hales pointed out that this is the very reason the Twin Cities have such strict fire prevention code laws concerning fireworks. He said that strict adherence to these laws will enable Monroe to avoid any such occurrences within the city limits.

THREE DEADLOCKS

Jury Still Out In Hoffa Trial

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The federal court jury trying Teamsters boss James Hoffa reported Saturday night it was still deadlocked and a Sunday session of deliberation was ordered.

The jury reported to Federal Judge William Miller after 14 hours of deliberation that it was still "hopelessly deadlocked." It was the third time it had made such a report.

Miller ordered the jurors locked up for the night and told them to resume deliberations at 9 a.m. Sunday.

Earlier Miller had turned down a defense plea for a mistrial after the jury reported for the second time it was unable to agree on a verdict.

The jury had been deliberating about 11 hours when it reported for the second time that it could not agree on whether Hoffa was guilty of accepting an illegal payoff from a Michigan trucking firm.

Miller had earlier told the jury to go back to the jury room and "stay with it" when he received the first note from the jury foreman.

The second message came about three hours later.

PLEADS INJUSTICE

Defense Attorney Jacob Kossman argued that "any further consideration at this time would be a great miscarriage of justice and a denial of due process of law" in arguing for a mistrial.

But Miller agreed to government attorneys' request to issue supplemental instructions to the jurors and let them continue their deliberations.

Traffic Toll Trails Other Yule Periods

First 24 Hours Reported Safest In Recent Years

By United Press International

Holiday travelers by the millions clogged the highways Saturday but the first 24 hours of the four-day Christmas weekend proved the safest in nine years.

The National Safety Council, which had estimated that as many as 750 persons might die in traffic accidents during the 102-hour holiday period, reported that wintry weather apparently was holding the death toll to the lowest figure since 1953, when the council began keeping hourly figures.

Traffic	140
Fires	21
Miscellaneous	14
Total	175

Illinois led the nation with 16 traffic deaths and California counted 13.

Nebraska had 7 highway deaths, Massachusetts and South Carolina 5 each; and 4 each in Ohio, Texas, New York, North Carolina and Idaho.

Alabama had 8 fire deaths.

The nation's worst traffic accident occurred three miles south of Clarks, Neb., where seven members of a Des Moines, Iowa, family died when their car plunged off a curve at a bridge approach and overturned, all but submerged in icy water and mud. The car was found Saturday, some 12 hours after the accident.

An hour before the start of the holiday period, four miners en route to work and two mine officials homeward bound for the holidays were killed when a car collided with a pickup truck near Carlsbad, N. M.

Two small children drowned in Lake Huron near Port Huron, Mich., Saturday while playing on the ice.

At Anaheim, Calif., a chain reaction traffic accident involving 100 vehicles, including a bus, killed one person and injured at least 25.

Six other bus accidents killed 3 and injured 92.

Fifteen were hurt when a car laden with holiday travelers hit a school bus near Litchfield, Ky. Eighteen were hurt near Gadsden, Ala., when a Salvation Army bus en route to a Christmas play plunged off an embankment. Ten were hurt when a Greyhound bus and a truck met on a snow-packed highway near Elkridge, Md. A school bus rammed a truck near Clarksville, Tenn., killing two and injuring 17. A Greyhound bus crashed into a truck at fog - shrouded San Onofre, Calif., killing one and injuring 17. Fifteen were hurt when a Greyhound bus hit a stalled car in dense fog near Locklock, Nev.

In Chicago a hit-and-run car killed a 90-year-old woman on her way to church.

VOORHEES of Miami, Fla., is restrained by Port Everglades coast guardsmen Saturday when he attempted to stop the loading of food and drugs on the freighter African Pilot for the Cuban prisoner exchange. Yule Travel Is Delayed; Deaths Soar

By United Press International

Arriving winter Saturday delivered a rabbit punch of heavy snow from Virginia to Maine — more than a foot of it in Virginia—gales on the north Atlantic coast, and biting, wind-blown cold from Montana and Michigan to Texas.

Freezing rain veneered highways and airports with ice as far south as North Carolina and westward through the Ohio Valley, delaying holiday travelers. Fog created air and highway traffic hazards and delays from San Diego, Calif., to central Washington early in the day.

The weather was blamed for at least 68 deaths, 23 of them in New England.

DEATHS LISTED

Indiana had eight deaths, Tennessee 7; Maryland and New York 5 each; Illinois and Montana 4 each; Virginia and Iowa 3 each; Wisconsin 2; and Minnesota and California 1 each.

At Havre, Mont., Jim Carrywater was found dead of exposure outside the home of a friend he had been visiting. Inside the home, Patrick Pepper, was found dead of a heart attack.

Up to 9 inches of snow fell in New York State. A 3-inch snowfall at New York City caused 137 traffic accidents in Long Island's Nassau County, injuring 70 persons.

A mother and two children asphyxiated in their blizzard-stalled car near Shelby, Mont.

Four inches of snow fell in parts of North Dakota and Minnesota and winds up to 55 miles an hour fanned a blizzard, cutting visibility to 1-16 of a mile at Grand Forks, N. D., and ¾ of a mile at Thief River Falls, Minn., as the temperature plummeted

GOODFELLOWS DRIVE

Christmas Fund Is Still In Need

Although Goodfellows fund drive surpassed its originally stated goal Saturday, more money is needed to cover expenses already committed by the project.

Goodfellows fund is a community-wide project sponsored by the News-Star — World Publishing Corp., in an effort to make Christmas a little brighter for needy families in the area.

Original goal of the drive, $6,000, was surpassed Saturday when contributions totaled $6,133.24. However, $6,400 has already been spent for food, clothing and toys to aid needy families.

NO CASH

Persons receiving Goodfellows aid are given only food, clothing and toys for their children. Money is never given to recipients of the drive's aid. All work done for the drive is voluntary and there is no overhead.

Anyone wishing to make a donation to the fund should send their contribution to Goodfellows Drive, care of News-Star—World.

Along with the donations from generous residents come letters seeking aid for underprivileged families in the area.

A West Monroe woman writes: "I am writing concerning a neighbor and friend. She has seven children and is expecting another baby any day now." She explains that the woman's husband works, but is not making much money at present and the children won't have anything for Christmas without some help.

Another West Monroe woman begins: "I am writing for some help for a family with six children from 3 to 15 years of age. They are not able to get things they need or the food they need."

She adds: "I have heard about others you (Goodfellows) have helped and I hope you can help them this time."

Goodfellows Total Stands At $6,133.24

Local Retail Business Rise Noted For Year

How well did retail storekeepers in Monroe make out in the past fiscal year?

The figures on local business activity, just released as part of a national survey, show that they had a good year. Their sales volume was surprisingly high, notwithstanding the persistent talk of a forthcoming depression, which caused many consumers to cut down on their spending.

The survey was made by the Standard Rate and Date Service, utilizing data obtained from national, state and local sources. It covers the 12 months through June 30, 1962.

Retail stores in Monroe had gross sales of $98,664,000.

The volume of business was equivalent to .0435 per cent of the national total, which was more than its quota, since the local population is only .0295 per cent of the national.

The market strength that was demonstrated locally was in direct contrast to the situation in some sections of the nation, where unemployment continues to be a major problem, stifling business.

Most types of retail stores in Monroe benefited, some more than others, however, as consumers shifted the emphasis of their spending during the year.

More money was devoted to automobile purchases and to other big ticket items and a smaller proportion than usual to services.

What made possible the big spending locally is readily apparent from the figures, which show that the average family had bigger earnings than before.

Local income in the year, after allowing for tax deductions, amounted to $83,558,000.

It was at the average rate of $5,219 per household.

The fact that sales were greater than income indicates the city is a marketing center for the region.

Most economists have made an about face in their forecasting. They are now predicting that business will continue rising modestly for the next year and that there will be no depression.

They point out that consumers are armed with a huge amount of liquid savings and with higher personal incomes, which will bring them to the market place in force, especially if their federal taxes are cut during the year.

Jes' Ramblin

Most Ouachita Parish agencies closed their offices Saturday for a long weekend in observance of the Christmas holiday. The offices will remain closed Monday and Tuesday.

W. W. Ward, superintendent of Ouachita Parish School Board, said he and his family plan to visit relatives in south Louisiana where (he confided in Jes' Ramblin') he hopes to do plenty of eating before coming back to work Wednesday.

'MAD WITH JOY'

Spirits Run High In Havana Prison

HAVANA (AP) — Spirits were reported running high Saturday behind the walls of Havana's Principe Prison and on the penitentiary Isle of Pines where 1,113 Cuban invasion prisoners are held. Word of their impending release—on Monday, Christmas Eve according to the Prisoners' Families Committee in Havana — reached them Friday.

"They're fascinated and mad with joy," said Berta Barreto, a Cuban working with the Prisoners' Families Committee. She is the mother of one of the prisoners. Her husband, Jesus, is in Miami, Fla.

She said the men were still gulping down food sent to them in packages this week from their families here and abroad.

Mrs. Barreto and attorney James Donovan signed an exchange agreement with Prime Minister Fidel Castro. The signing took place in Mrs. Barreto's home here.

After the signing, Castro went to the international airport to see off three Cuban Red Cross officials who flew to Miami to check on the $53 million worth of medicines and baby foods Castro wanted for exchange of the prisoners.

Mrs. Barreto said the prisoners will be flown to Miami in chartered airliners.

Reports from Principe Prison say most of the prisoners—captured at the Bay of Pigs invasion 20 months ago—are in fair condition. Most are said to show the effects of long imprisonment and lack of physical exercise.

It appeared certain all the prisoners would be back with their friends and families in Florida for Christmas celebrations. There are an estimated 20,000 relatives of the prisoners in Miami.

Twin Cities residents enjoyed a sunny first day of winter Saturday, but the weatherman calls for more winter-like weather today, which is officially the shortest day of the year. Sunrise is slated for 7:07 a.m. with sunset at 5:08 p.m. — only 10 hours, one minute of daylight.

Today's forecast calls for cloudy skies much colder temperatures and scattered showers. Highs today are expected to be in the low 40's with northerly winds of 10-15 miles per hour. The mercury is expected to drop to the 20's tonight.

Saturday's warmest reading was 56 after a low of 31. At 9:30 p.m. Saturday the temperature was at 34 degrees.

The cold front moving through Louisiana today is expected to be trailed by a warming trend which the long range forecast by the U.S. Weather Bureau says should be in the northeast area by Tuesday. There is only a slight chance of precipitation, so the Christmas holidays should be cold and clear.

Large Airliner Crashes Near Brasilia Port

BRASILIA (AP) — A Brazilian airliner with 42 persons reported aboard crashed Saturday night near Brasilia International Airport while preparing to land at this inland capital. The fire department said there were some survivors.

Seven crewmen and 35 passengers were reported aboard the Varig airliner on a two-hour flight from Rio de Janeiro to Brasilia.

A fireman said he saw a stewardess taken alive from the wreckage of the propeller-driven Convair plane. He said the pilot also was taken out alive but died later.

An unconfirmed report by a Brasilia radio station quoted a passenger as saying the plane made an emergency landing and that only the pilot was killed.

The passenger, identified as Jose Assuncao, said the captain had informed the passengers that he would attempt an emergency landing. The passenger said the plane came to a stop about 300 yards after hitting the ground in an area near the airport that is flat and without major obstructions.

CUBAN PRISONERS

Freedom Flights To Begin Today

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — U.S. official sources said Saturday night the first plane load of Cuban invasion prisoners would be flown to Florida about 8:30 a.m. EST on Sunday.

The source, at Homestead Air Force Base where the captives are to be landed, said a Pan American World Airways plane would depart at 6 a.m. from Miami International Airport for Havana.

A second flight will leave Miami at 6:30 a.m., the spokesman said.

RECORD RANSOM

Meanwhile, other Pan Am planes will fly to Havana carrying cargo which will supplement the drugs and food demanded by Prime Minister Fidel Castro in modern history's biggest ransom deal for 1,113 men captured in the April 17, 1961, invasion of the Bay of Pigs in southwest Cuba.

Workers toiled Saturday night and a ransom-laden freighter sailed from Port Everglades, Fla., for Havana.

The activities, implementing a $53-million ransom demand by Castro, all had one objective—to free the men for Christmas reunions with their kinfolk.

Meanwhile, efforts to get the invasion army's ransom off to Cuba went urgently forward in hopes of reuniting the 1,113 captives of Prime Minister Fidel Castro with their loved ones in Miami for Christmas.

Soviet Ousts Hard-Line Red As U.N. Envoy

MOSCOW (AP) — Valerian A. Zorin, veteran hard-line Russian negotiator tripped up by the Kremlin's soft-line switch in the Cuban crisis, was removed Sunday as Soviet delegate to the United Nations.

Nikolai T. Fedorenko, now ambassador to Japan, was named his successor, Tass reported.

In announcing the change, Tass mentioned no new assignment for Zorin and left unclear whether Zorin's rank as a deputy foreign minister was affected. When a senior Soviet official loses his rank, this normally is made clear.

Newsmen's inquiries at Soviet U.N. delegation headquarters in New York brought only expressions of surprise. Callers were told no official word of the change had been received.

Zorin was at the delegation's country house in Glen Cove on Long Island. U.N. acquaintances of Zorin suggested that health might be a factor in the change. They said Zorin, who is 60 years old, was tired and seemed somewhat unsure of himself at a news conference Saturday reviewing the U.N. General Assembly Session.)

The standing of Zorin apparently suffered because of the Cuban crisis. In the United Nations, he flatly denied U.S. charges in October that Soviet missile bases were being built in Cuba, only to have Premier Khrushchev admit their existence shortly afterward.

WITHOUT ITS PAPERS

How The Largest City In Nation Gets Daily News

By RALEIGH ALLSBROOK

NEW YORK (AP)—The biggest city in the country has been without its daily newspapers for more than two weeks. How is it getting along?

You notice odd things. For the first time in years, you hear newsboys hawking papers. The stentorian tones sound just as they did when newsboys shouted: "Allies gain in German breakthrough." Or, "Beautiful blonde found dead in love nest."

New Yorkers buy what they can get. Some out-of-town newspapers are available, but they're not filling the demand.

Commuters get news digests at rail stations on the way home. Some weeklies are publishing daily, like Town and Village, which now claims a press run of 250,000. The Brooklyn Daily, a tabloid long published in Coney Island, says it is printing 350,000 compared to pre-strike total of 50,000. Another Brooklyn paper, the revived Eagle, replacing one shut down in a strike in the 50's, says it is turning out 300,000 copies daily.

The Progresso, an Italian language daily with 79,000 normal circulation, says it is printing 200,000 daily in an English edition. La Prensa and El Diario have boosted their usual press runs with editions in Spanish only.

Time magazine says its newsstand sales have doubled, from 40,000 to 80,000. Life magazine says it will roll 250,000 copies of a special edition devoted to New York City news.

Television and radio stations have vastly expanded their news coverage. Some shows last two hours or more. Top writers and columnists from most of the newspapers are on the air once or more a week.

One radio station, WABC-FM, broadcast 17 consecutive hours of news.

Editions of Harvard, Yale and other college newspapers have appeared on downtown streets. A suburban high school even put out a commuters edition with news from Tass, the Soviet news agency.

Abbreviated stock lists are circulated around the city. So are lists of what is playing on Broadway. Shows are not doing too well, but around Christmas is not the best time in any year. Department stores sales are not keeping pace with the suburbs, not officially the only concern expressed is what may happen after the normal Christmas buying rush.

The International Typographers Union called a strike Dec. 8, demanding an increase of $18.45 weekly in wages, and fringe benefits that publishers of the nine major city dailies say raise the figure to about $38 weekly. The publishers have offered a basic $8 weekly raise over two years, plus extra vacation time that they say brings the total to $9.20 weekly.

Six other craft or mechanical unions, as well as the American Newspaper Guild, composed of writers and clerical employes, are honoring the printers' picket lines.

The Newspaper Guild last month settled a strike at the Daily News—biggest paper in the country with a circulation of over 2 million daily and 3 million Sundays—at $8 weekly. Negotiations between printers and publishers have made little if any announced progress since the walkout.

Estimates are that the out-of-town papers, the beefed up weeklies and small dailies, and the commuter digests are reaching no more than 10 per cent of the city's 5½ million readers.

So what is the view of the average reader?

The concensus is that out-of-town newspapers, with primary emphasis on what's going on at home, don't fill the bill for New Yorkers. Radio and television are trying, say these readers, but at best can only hit the top of the news.

None of the nine newspapers belonging to the New York Publishers Association is publishing within the city. The Long Island Press, in Queens, continued to publish its suburban editions, circulating in Long Island's Nassau and Suffolk Counties.

Newsday, published in Garden City, in Nassau County, also is circulating in Suffolk County, but is not sending extra papers into New York City. Neither are members of the Westchester-Rockland group, 10 newspapers in two counties north of the city.

And neither is the Wall Street Journal, a highly respected business daily, which says that as a matter of policy it is not trying to take any business from the newspapers that are shut down.

But avid readers have little difficulty buying newspapers from more distant cities, including Boston, New Haven, Newark, Philadelphia or Washington.

Sales of paperback books, which many of the city's half million daily commuters buy to pass the time while traveling, are up 15 to 20 per cent at two major stands.

OBED W. Kirkpatrick, a 1959 graduate of Northeast State College, has been appointed coordinator of student activities at the institution, according to Dr. Fred J. Vogel, dean of student services. He is recently discharged as an officer in the Army. He is a graduate of Jonesboro - Hodge High School.

Kennedys Take Cruise, Swim

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President Kennedy and his wife paused on an Atlantic cruise Saturday and swam in offshore waters where charter fishing boats have caught shark in recent weeks.

The First Lady also took a brief run on water skis while a Coast Guard boat and two Secret Service speedboats stood watch.

The Kennedys were joined in the water by Princess Lee Radziwill, the First Lady's sister, who is here on a visit from her London home.

The President was taking advantage of the balmy Florida weather on his first day in this resort after his three-day meetings with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in the Bahamas.

State Study Report Due In January

By JACK OWENS

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A six-man task force of accountants will make a report in early January to Louisiana's State Accounting Study Committee, which grew out of confusion about state finances.

The task force actually is looking into two areas, revenues and expenditures, in effort to find better ways to keep track of money coming into and going out of the state coffers.

The accounting study committee, created by House concurrent resolution No. 14 of the 1962 legislature, named the task force of specialists.

On the task force are Dr. William Swyers, assistant professor of accounting at Louisiana State University, who once worked in the state budget office; Ozro L. Meadors, assistant to the comptroller at LSU; Milton T. Covington, Baton Rouge certified public accountant; Harry J. Chust, another Baton Rouge CPA; Harry Sweatman, of the state budget office and Van J. Junot Jr. of the office of the state supervisor of public funds.

The State Accounting Study Committee was named and went quietly to work after Rep. Jules Mollere of Jefferson Parish pushed the resolution to create it through the legislature.

The big fight in the last legislature centered around money problems, resulting in a record state deficit. Different state financial officers had different ideas about how deep the red ink flowed, largely because they used different methods of reporting dollars and cents.

The main objective of the resolution was a centralized accounting system with uniform reports.

LAUNCH NEW CRUISER

CASTELLAMMARE DI STABIA, Italy (AP)—Italy launched a new missile-bearing cruiser in the Bay of Naples Saturday. It is a 6,000-ton craft named Caio Duilio, for a Roman admiral.

De Gaulle Unhurried On Answering Polaris Proposal Of U.S., Britain

PARIS (UPI — President Charles de Gaulle, clearly in no hurry to answer President Kennedy's Polaris missile offer, began taking a long, careful look at it Saturday.

Officials saw little likelihood of a quick "yes." They predicted De Gaulle's first move would be to ask for more details of the proposal.

The French president, who received the offer in personal letters from Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan Friday night, conferred Saturday night, conferred Saturday morning with Premier Georges Pompidou, Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and Defense Minister Pierre Messmer.

Mulls Over Offer

He then left to spend Christmas at his country home at Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises, where he was expected to mull over Kennedy's offer at his leisure, as he likes to do with important problems.

There was no official French comment and officials said none is likely for four or five days at least.

But French officials said privately that De Gaulle appeared faced with something of a dilemma, although they doubted he would take Kennedy up on the offer.

They pointed out that on the positive side De Gaulle is likely to be attracted by these factors:

For the first time the Polaris offer puts France on a basis of apparent nuclear equality with Great Britain, something which De Gaulle long has coveted.

If the offer means only a U. S.-British-French nuclear striking force inside the North Atlantic (NATO) alliance, it would imply acceptance of the idea of a "big three NATO directorate," which De Gaulle proposed four years ago but which the United States and Britain have ignored consistently.

The plan offers France the missiles she long has lacked and desired for carrying the nuclear warheads she now is able to produce herself.

Possible Objections

But there were a lot of possible overriding objections which, informed sources here said, might impel De Gaulle to reject the offer.

Among likely objections were:

De Gaulle has set his heart on building up an independent French national nuclear striking force and nothing is likely to dissuade him from this.

HEATING BILLS

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Heating bills can be reduced considerably by making a few simple repairs around the house, says Helen E. Bell, extension home management specialist of the Pennsylvania State University.

A little putty will seal loose window panes and caulking will close leaks around window and door frames. Weather stripping and adding storm windows and doors also will help weather-proof the house.

CONGRESS TECHNIQUES

School Is Set Up For New Solons

WASHINGTON (AP)—How does a brand new representative get a chance to speak in the House? Can he vote on one issue against the party line without drawing lightning from the leaders? Is there any quick way of reading the Congressional Record?

When 67 newly-elected members of the House gather with their more senior colleagues to open the first session of the 88th Congress Jan. 9, these and many other questions will be in their minds. Such questions were asked four years ago when the House had its first and only school to teach newcomers the ways and traditions of the body.

The school, a voluntary and unofficial undertaking of some individual members, is being revived in January and given a somewhat more formal status with the participation of the American Political Science Assn.

Four Democratic and four Republican members have addressed a joint invitation to their new colleagues — 36 Democrats and 31 Republicans — to attend "orientation seminars" Jan. 14, 15, 16 and 21.

The courses will cover such matters as House organization and rules and how to become "an effective creative member." The faculty will include senior members, staff experts and newsmen.

The textbook is the printed proceedings of the last school, an unindexed gold mine of sage observations. Some nuggets:

A good way for a freshman to make his floor debut is to arrange with a friend who is going to make a speech to ask the friend an intelligent question.

If strong feeling or overwhelming local pressure require a vote with the opposition, be frank in advance with the leaders: "Among the leadership . . . there are two things that your colleagues have a very high respect for. One is a very deep personal conviction and the other is that every man has a right to look out for his own political survival." For keeping up with the voluminous Congressional Record, useful summaries at the back are a big help.

It isn't good form to hang your feet over the seat in front of you in the House, or read a newspaper on the floor, or wear too loud a jacket. Beside, you can't always tell when constituents are in the gallery.

The seminars are strictly bipartisan. Democrats are talking about a sort of postgraduate course for their newmembers.

The subject: How to get reelected.

OFFSHORE DRILLING

Contract Signed For Gigantic Rig

ODESSA, Tex. AP) — A contract calling for the construction of the giant offshore drilling rig capable of working in water depths up to 250 feet was signed Saturday.

The contract was signed by M. O. Boring Jr., president of Dixilyn Corp., a drilling firm, and R. L. LeTourneau, vice president of R. G. LeTourneau Inc., which will construct the rig.

It will be the deepest water mobile drilling unit ever to operate in any offshore waters. The $5½ million unit will be capable of working in water depths up to 250 feet during the hurricane season and will be available for service in the fall of 1963.

R. G. LeTourneau, president of R. G. LeTourneau Inc., said in Longview that about 60 per cent of the construction of the super drilling platform would be accomplished in his Longview plant. This would include the fabrication in the LeTourneau steel mill of all steel used in the hull and main members of the canted legs. The massive gears for raising and lowering of the platform and tilting of the legs, and the electric motors and generators to power this unit would also be made in Longview.

The water depth capability, which is 75 feet deeper than that of any mobile unit now available, was heretofore thought to be beyond the range of mobile drilling units with ocean floor contact by virtue of economic limitations.

The unit is of the wide base, canted leg, self elevating tripod design of R. G. LeTourneau Inc., and will be built at Vicksburg, Miss., with the exception of the last 235 feet of the legs which will be installed at New Orleans.

The operation of this unit with its ocean floor contact will not be restricted by wind or sea conditions, permitting year-round operations with top efficiency at all times.

Judges Reject Bid Of Jimenez To Leave Jail

ATLANTA (UPI)— Two federal judges Saturday turned down the plea of former Venezuelan dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez that he be freed from a Florida jail for the Christmas holidays.

Chief Judge Elbert Tuttle and Associate Judge Griffin Bell of the Fifth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals refused a plea for a writ of habeas corpus and also turned down a motion that a new bond of $250,000 be set on Perez Jimenez and that he be freed pending an appeal.

Perez Jimenez was jailed 10 days ago pending the outcome of U.S. attempts to extradite him to Venezuela and the government has fought attempts to release him from his cell fearing he might flee the country.

The former dictator is wanted in Venezuela on charges he looted the national treasury of several million dollars and murdered opponents to his regime.

JFK Attempting To Reshape NATO

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy is trying to reshape and modernize the Western alliance to get it ready to deal with the problems of the dawning age of push-button nuclear warfare.

He is prepared to exert much more aggressive American leadership than in the past to bring about great basic changes in the structure of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. And that seems to have been one of the things which British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan found out clearly in this week's meeting with Kennedy at Nassau.

For the underlying, long-range significance of the Nassau pact, as Kennedy's associates see it, is not simply that it settles the Skybolt controversy with Britain but that it laid down for the first time the outlines of a plan for building a strategic nuclear force within NATO and it made a start on that plan.

Kennedy's parallel offer to sell French President Charles de Gaulle Polaris missiles on the same terms negotiated with Macmillan was the big surprise of the Nassau negotiations.

France now has its long-sought recognition of its right to sit in the deadly game of nuclear power politics, alongside the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union. But De Gaulle also has a challenge from Kennedy to make up his mind about the kind of Europe he wants to work for and what its relationship with the United States should be.

Kennedy is driving for a unified Western Europe with many military, political and economic partnership ties with the United States in the broad framework of the Atlantic community.

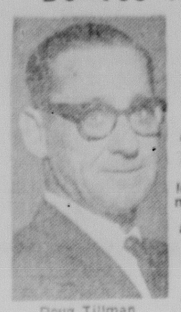

At Nassau, Kennedy talked with Macmillan about Britain's bid for membership in the European Common Market because Kennedy feels that as Britain's power of empire fades its true role lies in the projected new European community. De Gaulle has conceived of a Europe organized principally around France and West Germany.

The Nassau agreement between the American and British leaders proposes, in effect, to organize a special place within the 15-nation Atlantic alliance for the United States, Britain and France. This seems to be very much in line with De Gaulle's proposal of several years ago for a kind of three-power directorate.

Kennedy sent De Gaulle a personal letter offering him Polaris missiles on condition that the missile force, when commissioned seven or eight years hence, would be put under NATO.

CHATTING ABOUT THEIR past Christmas—while spending the present one at home in Monroe — are Michael Keith Tarver, Clair Fay Solomon and George M. Riser Jr. The trio of Tulane students spent last Christmas abroad.

Yuletide Vacation Changes For Four Monroe Students

Christmas vacation at home won't be the same for four Tulane University seniors from Monroe.

At least it won't be quite like Paris, where the four met to spend Christmas last year, as members of the Tulane-Newcomb Junior Year Abroad program.

Two of the students, Michael Keith Tarver and George M. Riser Jr., did more than spend Christmas in Paris. They both studied at the University of Paris.

But Clair Fay Solomon, who attended the University of Nottingham, and Herschel Lee Abbott Jr., who studied at the University of Birmingham, had to cross the English Channel to rendevouz in Paris.

Their entire year abroad, like the Christmas in Paris, was a venture into a new world. It was seeing new sights, hearing new sounds, and meeting different people.

Study at a British university was not quite what Clair had expected. A major in American studies, she thought that her British professors would have different views toward America that what she had learned at Newcomb.

SURPRISE

To her surprise, the British professors had all studied in the United States so their account of American history agreed with what Clair had learned at Newcomb.

But if her courses in American history were not different, Clair found English living quite a new experience.

Clair, who lived in an English home for three weeks during a vacation period, said that English family life is very informal, and that the English are television addicts.

This view of English life is shared by Herschel, who lived with an English family the entire year.

Herschel said that the family he lived with was typical of English families, and that life in an English home is not exactly what Americans would be accustomed to.

For example, he said that the only heat in the home was a coal fire in the living room, and that it was so cold in Birmingham that meat and milk could be left out without fear of spoiling.

In fact, English homes do not usually have refrigerators, nor do they use old-fashioned ice boxes.

Herschel, who ate breakfast and dinner with the family, did not find English food to his liking.

MENU UNVARIED

"The family menu remained unchanged every week," said Herschel, "and besides being unseasoned, every meal included potatoes and English peas."

Unfortunately, his distaste for English cooking resulted in a loss of forty pounds last year, pounds which Herschel is just now gaining back.

If English food was distasteful and different, Herschel noted that the British educational system was both challenging and unlike the American system.

A history major, Herschel concentrated on courses in history and literature, including ones in nineteenth century English history. Shakespearce and Milton.

"Classes met only once a week," Herschel said. "But we also had small tutorial sections every week."

"In these tutorials, I had to write a ten page paper which the professor and several other students would criticize."

Basically, Herschel found that what one learns at a British University depends entirely on independent reading and study.

Across the Channel in Paris, Mike and George also confronted a new approach to education.

Large numbers of students attended lectures in huge ampitheaters, said Mike, and the classes were very impersonal.

Like Herschel, both George and Mike discovered that what they learned depended solely on their own initiative and hard work.

One aspect of their year in Paris is — the cultural life — was not much like work for two Monroe boys.

For example, both took a course in the French theater which consisted of reading and viewing thirty plays during the year.

And they had a healthy exposure to opera too.

In the famed Paris Opera, they saw a production of "Carmen" complete with six horses and chariot on stage. And during their travels, George saw "Falstaff" at La Scala, while Mike attended a Vienna Opera production of "Don Giovanni."

Although George and Mike had a wider range of cultural advantages on the Continent, Clair and Herschel did not feel isolated in England.

Just twenty miles away from the University of Birmingham, the Stratford Shakespearean theater produced the Bard's plays, which Herschel attended regularly at the student price of thirty-five cents.

And though separated by the icy waters of the Channel, the four Monroe Tulanians met often during the year. Herschel and Clair travelled to Paris, Cannes, Monte Carlo, Rome, Florence, and Venice. And George joined Herschel for a hitch hike tour of Scotland.

Now back in Monroe for a Christmas rendevouz with family and friends, the four Tulanians are recalling the festive sights and sounds of Paris.

Provost Resigns At Ole Miss To Take Bank Post

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—University of Mississippi Provost Charles F. Haywood announced his resignation Saturday to accept a lucrative economic research position with the Bank of America.

Dr. Haywood, 35-year-old economist and Kentucky native, said he had often thought of returning to the San Francisco bank "because it is a vigorous, dynamic organization with excellent opportunities for advancement." . . .

As the university's second ranking official, Haywood had been mentioned by Ole Miss sources as one of several "unsatisfied" people over political haggles during the integration crisis. Haywood refused comment.

The New Orleans Times - Picayune reported Haywood, and possibly others, would resign because, in their opinion, the State College Board had waited too long to oppose the court-ordered re-entry of a student to Ole Miss after being expelled for alleged demonstration activities.

FOR NAUGHTY ONES

NEW YORK (UPI) — Straw ornaments are hung on Christmas trees in Sweden, the favorite shape being the goat. This ornament signified the butting received by any child who was bad during the year.

Pope Appeals For Peace In Yule Message

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII, in his annual Christmas message to the world, appealed anew Saturday for peace among all men and unity of Christians.

It was the 81-year-old Pontiff's fifth Christmas message and came just 3½ weeks after he became seriously ill with anemia and a stomach disorder.

This was an urgent plea for world peace, as were his other four.

But it also contained the theme of Christian unity, recalling the Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council, now in recess.

Pope John spoke from his private library in the Vatican. His speech was recorded Friday and broadcast Saturday night by Vatican radio and many national networks.

LOTTA BALONEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bologna outsells corned-beef and salami combined as a cold-cut sandwich.

Some 20 million sandwiches of cold cut bologna go over the counter annually, says Abe Lebewohl, president of the Delicatessen Institute of America here.

Barnett Case Poses Law Questions

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Many legal questions remained undecided Saturday as the federal government prepared to try Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett and Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr. on criminal contempt charges.

The Justice Department filed the charges here Friday with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. It contended that both Barnett and Johnson had violated a court directive by their action in preventing Negro James H. Meredith from enrolling at the University of Mississippi in September.

Among the unanswered legal questions left to the appeals court's discretion were:

1. How many judges will try Barnett and Johnson. Three judges make up a court on the appeals level, but as many as eight judges have participated in this case, including issuance of the temporary injunction that forms the basis for the contempt action.

2. Where the trial will take place—in Mississippi where the alleged contempt occurred, or in New Orleans, the court's headquarters.

3. Whether Barnett and Johnson have to appear physically for hearings and trial, and whether they would be ordered arrested if they don't come voluntarily. Some earlier actions against them proceeded without appearances by them or their attorneys.

4. Whether they will receive a jury trial.

5. What size penalties will be asked if they are convicted. Contempt penalties are at the judge's discretion in most cases and can clude jail, fines or both.

Earlier, the appeals court convicted both Barnett and Johnson of civil contempt. However, sentences of a $10,000 a day fine against Barnett and $5,000 a day against Johnson have not been put into effect.

Criminal contempt is punishment for past acts of defiance, while civil contempt is an attempt to assure future compliance with a court's orders. Penalties for criminal contempt are usually absolute, while those for civil contempt can be continuing.

The Justice Department's action Friday was taken at the explicit request of the appeals court.

The charges listed four counts against the two officials, including a contention that Barnett failed to exercise his authority to keep the State Highway Patrol on the Ole Miss campus when rioting broke out the night of Sept. 30.

The rioting, which killed two and injured scores, followed Meredith's arrival on campus, where the next day he became the university's first known Negro student.

The federal government's petition, filed here late in the afternoon after an all-day wait for the papers to arrive by mail, merely asked the appeals court to set a date for a hearing for Barnett and Johnson to show cause why they should not be held in contempt.

No action has been taken yet by the appeals court.

The Justice Department also asked that, if Barnett and Johnson appear at such a hearing and plead innocent, a date be set for a trial.

It followed that up Saturday by naming Leon Jaworski of Houston, Tex., president of the State Bar of Texas and immediate past president of the American College of Trial Attorneys, as special counsel to handle the case.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said an outside lawyer was picked because a number of Justice Department attorneys were possible witnesses.

One reason there are so many unanswered legal questions in the case against Barnett and Johnson is that there are few legal precedents.

The closest parallel to the present action is a 1932 Supreme Court case in which the high tribunal ruled that a governor is subject to the processes of a federal court when he uses his official position to violate someoen's constitutional rights.

JFK Accepts Bowl Invitation

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President Kennedy has accepted an invitation of Florida's Gov. Farris Bryant to attend the Orange Bowl football game in Miami on New Year's Day.

Alabama and Oklahoma meet there this year in the annual post-season spectacle.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said Saturday that Kennedy would fly to Miami on New Year's Day and return here after the game.

DAMAGED BY STORMS

U.S. May Abandon Last Texas Towers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Air Force probably will abandon next year the remaining two of three "Texas tower" radar stations built on off shore sea platforms at a cost of more than $40 million in the 1950's.

The third of the towers was destroyed by hurricane winds and a mammoth wave, with a loss of 28 lives, 100 miles southeast of New York off the New Jersey coast on Jan. 15, 1961.

A recent inspection showed that the foundations of the remaining two, off the Massachusetts coast, have been seriously weakened.

An Air Force spokesman said Saturday no final decisions has been made but that abandonment was being considered because of the large sums that would be necessary to strengthen them.

"The primary maintenance problem would be replacing sand which is beginning to wash away from around the tower legs," he said. "Three feet of sand have washed around the legs of tower number three, and eight feet have eroded around tower number two."

Number three is on Nantucket shoal, 75 miles southeast of Otis Air Force Base, Falmouth, Mass., while number two is on Georgia's shoal, 125 miles east of the same location.

The Air Force said the two towers are still embedded in 57 and 37 feet of hard sand, respectively, and are considered considered safe for the time being but the erosion is continuing. They are now manned by seven-man crews.

"The Air Force is testing improved flying radard stations as a possible replacement" the spokesman said.

It was understood that the Air Force flying tests involved a modification of the KC135 jet tanker for far-ranging radar missions which would replace the towers and prove useful for other purposes as well.

3 Negro Youths Die In Blaze At St. Joseph

ST. JOSEPH (Special) — Three Negro children burned to death when fire destroyed their two-room frame house early Saturday morning.

The victims were identified as Terry and Jerry Williams, twin boys, two years old, and Diane Williams, age six. The mother of the children suffered burns when she attempted to save them. Her condition was not known late Saturday night.

Their father, Roosevelt Williams was at work at the time of the fire, which occurred around 6 a.m.

The blaze was believed to have started from a wood heater in the room where the children were sleeping.

McClellan Says Filibuster Rules Change Would Hike Red-Ink Spending

WASHINGTON (AP)—A south- ern opponent of changing the Senate's rules to make it easier to end filibusters said Saturday the move is designed to clear the way for passage of more spending programs.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said in an interview that while proponents of a rules change talk about civil rights bills, they hope to pass measures that would in- crease red-ink spending and pyra- mid the national debt.

He said the Senate would do better to try to straighten out the government's fiscal affairs than to engage "in a long squabble over changing its rules to make it easier to pass bills that incur more and more obligations for more and more spending and more and more deficits and a still bigger national debt."

McClellan is among Southern senators expected to put up all- out resistance to changing of a Senate rule requiring a two-thirds majority of senators voting to shut off a filibuster.

McClellan said he will oppose any change in the present rule.

Holiday Season Is Busy Time Here

PORTRAYALS OF VARIOUS Yule season themes glowed colorfully during the past several days in front of many Twin Cities homes. This Santa and reindeer motif is located at the home of The Bennetts, 113 Larche Dr., West Monroe.

Activities during the week before Christmas were many and varied in the Twin Cities. On this page are some camera views of people preparing for the event, and some just wishing for the big day to come. Also shown are some seasonal decorations which have brightened residential and downtown areas. (Staff Photos by John Fogleman and Ben Bradford)

IN PREPARATION for the big event, Mrs. Ralph King Jr., 1500 Lexington, and her children, Anne, 4, standing, and Mary Winston, 2, place presents under the Christmas tree at their home.

STOCKINGS ARE hung by the fireplace with care.

SANTA CLAUS hears many requests as children crowd around him in a local store.

TASTE-TEMPTING cookies to add to the delights of the holiday season are taken from the oven by Mrs. H. V. Brown, 601 Matthews, Monroe, as her children, Cheryl, 8, and Winky, 6, watch in pleasant anticipation of a treat.

LENDING ATMOSPHERE to the spirit of the season is this manger scene in front of St. Francis Hospital.

GREETINGS by telephone increase the work of toll switchboard operators in the Monroe office as Christmas approaches. Many of them will be on duty Christmas Day as the tempo of holiday calls mounts sharply.

THE PRE-CHRISTMAS rush of the past week was demonstrated in streams of motor traffic as well as in shopping activity in the stores. Here, Monroe police officer, Donald Hill, directs traffic at 2nd and DeSiard.

Alliance For Disaster

Under the program of the so-called Alliance for Progress, Latin American powers want United States taxpayers to give them billions of dollars with no strings attached.

If we do so, we will be creating an alliance for disaster — both for the United States and the Latin American countries.

The proposed program is foredoomed to failure. Both its purpose and its methods are defective. Its analysis of the problem misses the mark and its proposed solution will only aggravate the situation it is intended to alleviate.

The net effect will be disastrous. The waste of billions of dollars exacted from American taxpayers is serious enough but this is nothing to compare to the harm of fanning into flames the smoldering anti-Americanism south of the border.

Propaganda for the alliance has led Latin Americans to expect miracles that are impossible. When these miracles fail to materialize the result will be bitterness and hatred toward those who held forth false promises.

Two things we know certainly. One is that charity unaccompanied by individual effort and initiative must go on forever or those who have been recipients slip back into a slough of despair that is worse than their original condition. Another is that handouts given by the government, no matter what the country, kill, rather than inspire individual initiative and energy.

Latin America does have serious problems. It's population is exploding and far too many people litterally live from hand to mouth and go to bed hungry, sleeping on straw or bare dirt floors. Many go barefoot from the cradle to the grave. With few exceptions, as in Argentina, large numbers of the people are illiterate. Sanitation is neglected and disease is rampant.

If we do give Latin Americans the billions they are asking for, with no expectation of repayment, those billions will be spent by corrupt, bloated and inefficient bureaucrats.

If we should insist on honest and purposeful spending for such basics as roads, education, water and sewer systems, with adequate controls to minimize grant and insure competent management we would be damned for interference in international affairs.

If we think bestowing many billions on an improverished country will bring us friendship we are grossly wrong. Whether we insist on honestly administered beneficial projects for the Latin American countries or whether we allow the corrupt and inefficient bureaucrats to spend our billions as they please — mostly on themselves — we will find we are even less popular with those countries than we are now.

This has been proved time after time. Ever since the end of World War II we have been trying to buy the friendship of nations, while Russia has been taking over many of those nations at little cost because it has adopted a more ruthless attitude.

No Latin American country has a firm tradition either of representative republicanism or parliamentary democracy. None has an electorate capable of making an orderly transfer of power from the "ins" to the "outs." Most have bloated bureaucracies of incompetent, corrupt civil servants lacking understanding of the kind of institutional framework essential to a free, industrialized, expanding economy.

Yet, abetted by the Alliance for Progress, the Latin American ruling cliques are bent on creating industrialized economies directed by incompetent governments. Almost all of them believe in state planning. They are inclined to take the word for the deed and to believe that enunciating a grandiose plan is equivalent to executing it.

The irony of all this useless giveaway to other countries is that the American people don't believe in it, don't condone it and don't want it but seem powerless to stop it.

$3 Billion Forgotten

If some of us were to make a $3 mistake in our financial calculations and budgets we might be thrown into a tizzy and even some economic embarrassment. Now it has been brought to light that the federal government made a $3 billion miscalculation and that it merely shrugs it off. Anyhow, it's only the people's money.

Official Washington estimated the deficit at $7.8 billion but left out a little matter of $3 billion.

The oversight is a very real expense. It is money owed to federal employes. Each year congress is supposed to appropriate money for the federal employes' retirement fund, just as a private employer is supposed to deposit retirement funds against future pensions.

Any employer who failed to deduct social security taxes, part of which go to old age retirement funds, would certainly be considered imprudent. If he refused to pay this money to the government and persisted in refusing he would be prosecuted as a criminal and would be forced to pay through the seizure of his property.

For some years, congress has failed to appropriate money for the federal employes' retirement fund. Right now the deficit in this fund runs to $37 billion.

This is one thing the New Frontier forgot to figure in arriving at the $7.8 billion deficit.

This is no minor technicality. Civil service commission officials see trouble in the future and bankruptcy for the fund by 1980 if it keeps up.

The federal obligation is firm and clear. Employes pay six and one half per cent of their pay into the fund and the government is supposed to match it, just as a private employer is supposed to match the social security taxes paid by his employes. Payment from this fund is expected to run from $3 billion to $4 billion a year in the future.

When these amounts come due and if the till is still empty, congress will have two choices. It may break faith with the retired employes and slash to one-half or less the benefits to which they are entitled, or it can then make the appropriations to cover the amounts due. It is unlikely that congress will allow the fund to go bankrupt or that it will deny the employes the benefits they have earned. The only way out will be to cover long-past obligations with current taxes or borrowing.

Increasingly, the problem is being aggravated. Benefits are geared to salary scales and those scales have risen sharply in recent years and are expected to rise again. Furthermore, every year there are greater numbers of employes to whom benefits are owed.

By leaving out $3 billion which should be included in the deficit, the New Frontier has, to some degree, concealed national financial mismanagement and presented an unrealistically rosy picture when actually it is glum.

Henry A. Barnes, an authority on traffic control said: "I drove 20 miles in 20 minutes on the Harbor Freeway in Los Angeles; then I spent 45 minutes going three blocks when I got off the freeway."

Columnist, Henry Hazlitt says a free economy generally saturates demand because, ". . . in such a system of private property and free markets, everybody's reward tends to equal the value of his production."

Heart-Felt Alliance

Views Of Our Readers

UN Is Debauched

The U.N. Charter was ratified as a treaty in 1945 by the U.S. Senate. What was not known was that the chief architects of the Charter were Alger Hiss, Harry Dexter White, and Leo Pasvolsky. Certainly Congress would have considered at greater length and possibly would not have ratified it, if the truth about these men had been known.

Do you know that after a brief debate in the Senate the UN Charter-treaty became "the law of the land;" that the two dissenting votes came from the only two Senators who had read the Charter? The distinguished Senator Pat McCarran (D. Nev.) said in 1950, "I shall always regret to the last day of my life that I ever voted for the UN."

During the 17 years of the UN the Communists have expanded their slave empire from two hundred million to over one billion. Has the UN done anything to prevent this expansion of atheistic control? It has not. Did the UN take action against India for moving into Kashmir? It did not. Did the UN protect the Hungarians or take action against Russia? It has not. Did it take action against Egypt for ignoring the resolutions on the Suez Canal? It did not. Has the UN considered any sanctions on evidence that the Armistice terms have been and are now being flagrantly violated in North Korea? It has not. It has only seen fit to massacre the anti-communist government of Moise Tshombe in Katanga. Listen to proud record the UN has had in these 17 years. Since the UN was founded, Communists have incited 15 major wars: Chinese Civil, Indonesian, Philippine Civil, Malayan, Indochina, Greek Guerilla, Korean, Guatemalan Revolt, Algerian, Hungarian Massacre, Formosa Straits, Cuba, Tibet, and Loas.

Do you know that the UN Charter has parts copied directly from the Soviet Constitutions? Do you know that the UN Charter and Covenant of Human Rights offers, then denies freedom of religion, freedom of the press, freedom of speech, property rights, rights won for Americans by George Washington and his armies and guaranteed by our Bill of Rights. In the UN Covenant of Human Rights, Article 13 denies freedom of religion "as subject to certain limitations, public order and safety, etc." Article 14 subjects freedom of speech, of the press, to, "restrictions, penalties, and liabilities." Article 17 denies property rights. No mention is made of Trial by jury. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles stated: "I have never seen any proposal made for collective security with "teeth" in it, or for world government or for world federation which could not be carried out either by the UN or under the UN Charter." The great patriot, Senator William Jenner (R.-Ind.) called the UN Charter "the machine gun that looks like a baby carriage."

All treaties supercede the Constitution and thus become "Supreme law of the land." The UN Charter is a treaty. It is now Supreme law of the land. This has been stated by the California Supreme Court.

Our Constitution places power to declare war for the U.S. with a Congress made up of elected representatives of the people. The UN, places such authority with the Security Council of the UN. Our Constitution declares that the President of the U.S. is Commander-in-Chief of our armed forces. The UN Charter places this authority with the Military Staff Committee under the Security Council of the UN. The first Secretary General of the UN, Trygve Lie, stated flatly that there was a secret agreement between Alger Hiss and Molotov to the effect that the head of the UN Military Staff would always be a Communist. That Agreement has never been broken; we have had a succession of Communists filling that post, the present one being Mr. Arkadov. (documented in Trygve Lie's book, "IN THE CAUSE OF PEACE" pg. 45&46)

Our Constitution requires the government of the U.S. to protect the individual states of the Union from invasion. The UN Charter provides for "rights of passage of armed foreign troops."

The UN, established in the very heart of America, has become the international headquarters for Russian espionage and for the dissemination of Communist-Socialist propaganda. Lord Beaverbrook, noted British Publisher, is quoted as saying: "Here in New York City, you Americans have the biggest fifth column in the world — the UN."

The testimony of five of our greatest fighting men, — Gen. Clark, Gen. Van Fleet, Gen. Stratemeyer, Admiral Joy, Lt. Gen. Almond before the Jenner Committee 1954, is summed up in the words of Gen. Stratemeyer: "we are required to lose the Korean War." Excerpts from the hearings: Sen. Walker to Gen. Almond, "you agree with Gen. Mark Clark that the UN is now, and has been a nest and a haven for spies, saboteurs, and people who can get vital information that may seriously affect the future of our republic?" Gen. Almond, "I have no doubt of it."

The UN has still another problem — it faces bankruptcy. Since its establishment the U.S. has paid approximately 40 per cent of all its expenses. We are being asked to pay 100 million dollars of the 200 million dollar bond issue to pay for the operations in the Congo in which the UN is supporting the Communist. These operations bonds will pay 2 per cent interest. Today the U.S. is paying 4 per cent interest for the money it borrows to buy these bonds. President Kennedy recommends the investment and says: "It is sound for the UN and Its members." It may be sound for the UN, but it is not sound for the U.S.

Charles DeGaulle has warned the UN to stay out of Algeria. Winston Churchill has said: "Don't pay attention to the UN." Herbert Hoover: "Unless the UN is completely reorganized without the Communist nations in it, we should get out of it."

The United Nations can be entirely summed up in the words of the great American Robert Taft: "The United Nations has become a trap. Let's go it alone."

Feud Over Army

Pentagon, House Armed Services Committee Still At Odds

The smoldering fued between the Pentagon and the House Armed Services Committee over America's reserve program is far from over.

The recent shakeup of the Army Reserve and the National Guard organization amounted to a compromise that resolved some of the major differences between the Congressmen and the generals. Important conflicts remain, however, and the showdown may come in January.

The cast of the running sparring match involves a group of very strong-willed men. On one side is Defense Secretary Robert McNamara and his group of civilian Pentagon assistants who have won real, if sometimes grudging, respect for their drive to impose business efficiency on the military.

On the other is House Armed Services Committee chairman Carl Vinson (D) Ga., and Rep. F. Edward Hebert (D) La., whom Vinson picked early this year to find out why the Army's Reserve call-up in the 1961 Berlin crisis had some aspects of the proverbial Chinese fire drill.

Hebert's Investigating Subcommittee turned up thousands of cases of untrained "fillers" being thrown into jobs for which they were not prepared; of other cases in which "fillers" were passed over for unskilled jobs they could perform; and — overall — a kind of chaos in the Army's rosters of which reservists could do what.

The subcommittee's findings were distilled into a blistering report crammed with specific recommendations and setting a Feb. 1, 1963 deadline for the Army to explain how it planned to correct defects the lawmakers found.

Simultaneously during the summer the Army was busy with a wholesale reorganization of the reserve components. Aware of its shortcomings, the Army designed a new reserve system that would streamline its creaking 1961-style organization. But in the subcommittee's eyes it would throw out some very important items.

Published reports have stated that the Pentagon planned to "vacate" 16 state-owned National Guard armories. Actually, there are sound reports the Army originally planned to vacate 100 of these armories but changed its mind when it realized the outcries that would result.

The Army also planned to cut the authorized reserve strength from 732,000 men to 642,000.

Hebert led the public attack on the plan. The manpower cutback was far too severe, he said, to provide enough troops in case of a serious crisis involving conventional warfare. The National Guard unit cutback would deprive states of vitally needed force to deal with natural disasters or even atomic attack.

The upshot early this month was a plan in which both sides gained some of their objectives. The Army decreed an authorized strength for the Army Reserve and the Army National Guard of 700,000 men. None of the 16 Guard armories was left stranded without a unit to fill it. Key divisions to be put at the top of the callup list were to be kept close to full strength so that large numbers of untrained fillers would not be needed.

Even the announcement of the plan left a flavor of bitterness. Advance news stories left an impression the House committee had won an important victory over McNamara. Pentagon sources immediately began "leaking" statements attributed to vague sources implying no concessions were made. Hebert released his entire correspondence with Army Secretary Cyrus Vance in which Vance listed the subcommittee's criticisms and explained how the Army had modified its original plan to meet them.

The immediate problem that stemmed from the reorganization was the reluctance of most state governors to accept all the National Guard changes planned for them by the Pentagon. A round of negotiations began with the governors wielding their considerable political power and the Army putting out reminders it controls the purse strings of the National Guard.

While details of the National Guard shake-up can presumably be negotiated, more fundamental problems remain. One of these is illustrated by Hebert's dictum that "the reservist must know where he is going."

Repeated changes in the reserve organization, Hebert points out, inevitably dampen reserve morale. The reservist may find himself attached to one division one year, to another the next.

Goldwater Push?

Some Indication Answer May Come Soon After New Year's

Is there, or is there not going to be a real drive by Senator Barry Goldwater for President in 1964, generated either by himself or by his backers with his blessing?

There is some indication that an answer may come after the first of the year, which could mean anywhere from two weeks to an indefinite later time.

If a boom to lift Goldwater to the nomination sputtered under the surface at the recent Republican National Committee meeting here, it was not visible to the naked eye.

It was invisible, that is, except among Southern GOP leaders. They made it clear the Arizona Senator's conservative tune was the only one the South would march to.

Outside the South, the Goldwater balloon failed to rise even in the vacuum created at the meeting by the lieutenants of Nelson A. Rockefeller. The New York Governor's aides worked hard to restrain Rocky enthusiasts.

There can be no doubt, however, that Goldwater is the darling of the Dixie contingent from the comments of GOP leaders in key Southern States. Here are some:

—Alabama: "Rockefeller is not popular in Alabama," but Goldwater could carry the state for the Republican ticket in 1964.

—North Carolina: The party leadership is moderate — more inclined to the Rockefeller breed — but, the leaders expect a majority of their delegates would go for Goldwater.

—Mississippi: Goldwater could carry the state in 1964 and advance Republican efforts to organize, but Rockefeller would put organizational efforts behind schedule.

Goldwater himself made a discouraging estimate of his candidacy in September in an interview with a reporter in the Washington bureau of this newspaper.

He was asked to comment on the results of a poll the bureau conducted which showed he was the front-runner for the nomination in the opinion of a majority of the delegates who attended the 1960 convention.

He said he could not win without the support of the party pros in the big Eastern states, and "thus far, they haven't shown any interest in me."

The Arizona Senator asserted, "You must have pretty fair indications you can expect support from the party brass in Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New York, Illinois, California and Ohio."

In the delegate poll, Goldwater led in only one of the "must" states — Ohio. He tied with Rockefeller in Illinois and finished behind former Vice President Richard M. Nixon in California. Rockefeller ran ahead in New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts.

That was in September. Since then, Nixon has been removed as a contender by his defeat at the hands of Governor Pat Brown in California.

Where the Nixon fall-out goes will tell the story of whether Rockefeller will have his party's top spot in 1964 in a walk or whether he will have to go to the mat with Goldwater to win it.

There are two possible symptoms that some party leaders and Goldwater himself are taking a serious second look at the nomination.

One is the participation of the Cook County (Chicago) Republican chairman in the widely-publicized meeting to discuss a Goldwater race for the nomination.

The second comes from Goldwater himself in his most recent statement. Commenting on the nomination, he added a note of speculation to his usual pessimism when he said he still planned to run for the Senate in 1964, "but things change and its too early to be absolutely certain."

He probably still is not the choice of the party professionals, if the failure of his name to stir the national committee meeting is an indication, but he may still be the choice of the delegates.

In the September poll, 637 delegates — 52 percent — returned survey cards. They split like this: Goldwater 264; Rockefeller 203; Nixon 137; and Michigan Governor-elect George Romney 5.

Every region of the country except the East, which went for Rockefeller, showed it preferred Goldwater at that time, and this was nowhere more evident than in the South.

There, 327 delegates were polled, of the 209 who replied, 111 tapped Goldwater. Behind Goldwater were Rockefeller with a mere 43 and Nixon with 36.

Goldwater was and obviously still is the front-runner in Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

He could have moved ahead now in Georgia where he tied with Rockefeller, and moved closer to Rockefeller in Arkansas where the New York Governor and Nixon tied.

The South is evidently Goldwater country, but the big question is — Is that enough to build a winning alliance with the West and Midwest?

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER
U. S. Senator From Arizona

Almost immediately after his election as secretary general of the United Nations, Burma's U Thant began spouting advice to the United States about how to handle its cold-war problems.

By and large, that advice was ridiculous and should be promptly forgotten by American policy makers.

For either the UN secretary general is wearing rose-colored glasses, or he is deliberately playing into the hands of the Russians. Either way, it behooves us to keep a close eye on U Thant in all future negotiations to which the United Nations may be a party.

Thant aired his naive or dubious views at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore where he delivered the George Huntington Williams memorial lecture. He called on the United States and the Soviet Union to follow up their "Cuban compromise" with give-and-take solutions on Berlin and other cold-war issues. He said he was convinced that Premier Khrushchev does not want war and is sincere in his desire for peaceful co-existence.

As though this weren't enough, Thant went on to chide the western powers for failing to "appreciate the full significance" of the changes in Moscow's thinking since the death of Josef Stalin. He added:

"Mr. Khrushchev, who is now in control of the reins of government, belongs to a different category of leaders, with a coherent philosophy of the world based on the thesis, not of the inevitability of war but of the imperative of competitive co-existence. We may or may not agree with his philosophy or his aims, but we have very good reasons to believe that he does not want war."

It perhaps would have been more accurate if Mr. Thant had said we have very good reason to believe that Khruschev does not want war — if he can manage to enslave the world without going to that extreme.

I suggest that if we adopt the Thant thesis that Khrushchev doesn't want war and is sincere in his desire for peaceful co-existence, we have to erase the Cuban experience from our memories. Just how the clandestine build-up of an offensive missile and bomber complex on our Southern doorstep fits into a sincere desire for "peaceful co-existence" is difficult to understand. What does it mean if it doesn't mean that Khrushchev believes in the inevitability of war and wants the Communist world to be prepared?

And what great and vast change has there been in Moscow's thinking since the death of Stalin? Does Mr. Thant want us to believe that Mr. Khrushchev's gregariousness, compared with Stalin's taciturnity, has changed the basic aim of the Kremlin to dominate the world? Are we to think that because Khrushchev is glib and talkative, where Stalin was close-mouthed and silent, that his intentions are more honorable? Demeanor and talk have never been anything to the Communists but weapons with which to confuse their enemies.

If we ever begin basing our attitude and our policy on what Khrushchev says rather than what he does, we'll be in deep and lasting trouble. But that is what Secretary General Thant would like us to do. He apparently wants us to forget that it was Khrushchev — not Stalin — who crushed the spirit of freedom in Hungary with tanks and guns. He apparently wants us to overlook the fact that it was Khrushchev — not Stalin — who built the Wall of Shame in Berlin and began shooting down people who tried to escape. He apparently doesn't count the fact that it was Khrushchev and none of his predecessors who cheated on the nuclear test ban and then broke it openly when it suited his purposes.

Mr. Thant would do better to address his advice to the Soviet Union. The rulers of the Kremlin could use a few lectures on the meaning of freedom and justice and order.

How do you stand, sir?

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Merry Christmas, Happy New Year

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

I would like to take this opportunity to wish the friends and patrons of the Ouachita Parish Public Library a merry Christmas and a happy New Year. This has been a good year for the Parish Library. It is on a sound financial basis, because of your cooperation and next year should see a steady improvement in service. The Main Library and all of the branches will be closed Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week for the Christmas Holidays and again on January first.

The Bookmobile has not made a trip since last Wednesday and will not make another trip until January 3. Bookmobile patrons who need books while the Bookmobile is not in operation are urged to use one of the Libraries in Monroe or West Monroe. Remember your card is good at any library. Our present Bookmobile has been on the roads of Ouachita Parish for almost seven years and has travelled a total of 62,000 miles. The Body is still in good condition, but the motor is about worn out. During the Holiday period it will get a new motor and should be good for many more years of service. At the meeting of the Ouachita Parish Police Jury on December 12, the Police Jury voted unanimously to advertise for bids for the purchase of a new Bookmobile. The bids will be opened in January and we hope that one can be accepted. A Bookmobile is custom made and it will take six or seven months to get it, after the bids have been accepted and the contract awarded. We are starting early so we will have it before school opens in September, for we need two Bookmobiles in order to give adequate service. This Bookmobile will be purchased with funds from the Library Maintenance tax which you approved last April.

There are several interesting new books awaiting you at the Ouachita Parish Public Library. "Madame Castel's Lodger" is the title of the new book by Frances Parkinson Keyes. This is a book of biographical fiction based on the life of Pierre Gustave Toutant Beauregard of Louisiana and the Confederacy. Mrs. Keys lived in Beauregard House in New Orleans while writing this story. She had access to many family documents and letters and has done a superb task of recreating a man and an era. It will be widely read and enjoyed. A new novel by Mary Steward is eagerly awaited by her many devoted readers. The latest one is called "The Moon-Spinners". The setting of this story is in modern day Crete and like all of her novels it is filled with intrigue, mystery and a little romance. This is a book that you do not want to miss, if you like a good story.

The many people in this community who own and ride horses will be happy to know that we have recently purchased a group of books dealing with this hobby. A very fine book is "Veterinary Notes for Horse Owners" by M. Horace Hayes. This book should help you to diagnose any ailment of your horse. "Dealing With Horses" by J. F. Kelly contains a great deal of useful advice for horse owners. "The Horse Book" by John Rendel is concerned with the different breeds of horses. "The Whitbread Book of Horses" contains a great deal of useful information about horses of the Whitbread Company. There are also two books on the art of riding horses, one is "Saddle Up" by F. C. Hitchcock and the other is "Knowing Horses" by Roger Molesworth. Several copies of each of these titles were purchased and the books can be found in the branches as well as the main library.

Please remember the Library holidays, but plan to visit one of the Libraries on Thursday.

The Life Of Tom Dooley

PROMISES TO KEEP. By Agnes W. Dooley. Farrar, Straus and Cudahy. $4.95.

At his death in January 1961, at the age of 34, Dr. Thomas A. Dooley had reached out across the world to let people everywhere know what one intensely devoted man could contribute to the humanitarian cause.

He had been in the center of the valiant, excruciating endeavor to evacuate refugees from northern Viet Nam. He had taken a small medical mission into the remote places of Laos. And he had worked tirelessly to raise the money to establish medical missions in other parts of the world.

He left behind four inspiring books — "Deliver Us From Evil," "The Edge of Tomorrow," "The Night They Burned the Mountain" (these three later were gathered into one volume) and "Dr. Tom Dooley — My Story." His friends and associates had compiled another book about his final days, "Before I Sleep."

This book is a biography by his mother, with some interpolated sections by his brother Malcolm. And there is an epilogue consisting of one chapter, "Letter to a Young Doctor," intended to be a part of a book which Dr. Dooley did not have time to complete.

The biography draws strongly on the doctor's many letters. It is admiring and naturally biased, but it is a good summation of his whole life. There are passages which admit frankly that he was an impatient, egocentric man who was a hard taskmaster, and a man who knew the value of personal publicity. Yet these factors are placed in the perspective of the largest goal which Dr. Dooley drove himself so hard to achieve.

Here in one volume is a review of his career, and from it the reader learns that he displayed not only the devotion of a devoutly dedicated man, but also the magic gift of being able to communicate to others the idealism which inspired his own acts.

RUNNING THE SCALES

Local Orchestra Opens 10th Year

By JOHN CALE

(Editor's Note: This week's column was guest written by Kay Causey who has provided us a close-in appraisal of the season's first concert of the Twin City Symphony.)

Last Monday night, The Twin City Symphony, under the baton of Eloy Fominaya, gave a performance beyond reproach in artistic integrity musical experience.

It is thrilling to know that such music can be made outside the big cities, using only local performers through the guiding intelligence of one man with a stick who knows what he is doing and where he is going.

This isn't the Dallas or the San Francisco Symphony, but it is hard to believe they could provide more basic artistry, if they do top us in size and most probably in technical proficiency. And I can remember the Dallas group when it missed a long way the mark set here Monday.

The musicial resources of the community were used further by bringing the outstanding piano abilities of Eloise Calhoun Stanhope. Mrs. Stanhope, who, with Mr. Fominaya, is a member of the faculty of Northeast Louisiana State College, is a fine performer as she has demonstrated earlier when she provided the piano for trio recitals with Fominaya and Mrs. Betty Martin. In these recitals she showed her excellence in the music of the period of Beethoven and earlier.

At Monday's concert, she played the piano part of D'Indy's Symphonie Cevenole with a fluid ease which made the piano another instrument of the orchestra, blending with it and weaving itself among the tones and moods of the other instruments. The "Symphonie" is not a concerto but a composition for orchestra with piano within the orchestra itself, and, thus, it was placed behind the first violins.

Ken McKenzie on the oboe had so much solo work almost shared the spotlight with Mrs. Stanhope. He blows a clean clear oboe with sureness and dependability, as he showed further when Larry Joe Cook left his violin to join him on the trumpet for Copeland's Quiet City, played with solo oboe and trumpet.

The programming was something I've been dreaming of for years. After threatening to leave all concerts at intermission when I find the best of artists offer only watered - down nothing and top it with "Fiddle Faddle" as an encore, it was good to be well fed to the very end, with probably the most difficult work, Bach's Passadaglia and Fugeue in C Minor.

To my memory, the only other time such programming has been given us in Monroe was when the Juilliard String Quartet played Beethoven's Opus 131 after intermission. This was a mistake, I understand, made by a new and innocent office girl in New York, who didn't know you shouldn't program anything like that after intermission and who didn't provide any alternative music.

The program, which also included Frescobaldi's "Toccata" and "Introduction, March and Shepherd Dance" from Amahl and The Night Visitors by Menotti, took the audience from early classic to French Impressionist to modern American. Each time I felt, "This is it. This is the period the man grasps completely." Fominaya is a conductor.

Monroe's Symphony is 10 years old. There are years when I have not heard it. But it has grown enormously in stature since its early beginnings, and part of this due, I am sure, to an outstanding program of music education in the public schools. Fominaya has contributed greatly to the string part of this project. The products of this education are now becoming available to the symphony, and will provide, increasingly, a pool of musicians from which to draw.

Fominaya has abolished the system of importing musicians from Shreveport. The orchestra personnel, 47 musicians, is completely local. There is room for more, and Fominaya earnestly requests other local musicians to contact him.

OIL, GAS DISTRICT

Drilling Remains Active In Area

Drilling for gas in the Monroe Field continued to take the play last week in the Monroe Oil and Gas District when nine of 14 wells completed came in the Union Parish Monroe Field.

Others completions recorded on the week's report by District Manager Duncan S. Cook were singles in Concordia, Catahoula and Avoyelles Parishes and a pair in LaSalle. Only recompletion listed also was in LaSalle Parish, the Nebo Hemphill Field, and was Marine Prop Inc.'s R. C. Girlinghouse No. 1 in section 40-7-3E.

The nine Union Parish finals, representing five drillers, all were comparatively shallow to Monroe Gas Rock sand.

There were 19 new locations staked in the 14 parishes of the district, with two spotted in the Monroe Field in Ouachita Parish. Union Parish had five, Concordia Parish four, Rapides three, Catahoula two, and Caldwell, Richland and Tensas Parishes one each.

Ouachita Parish had two of a total of 22 wells actively drilling or testing. Both were drilling, one in the Calhoun Field, the other in the Cheniere. Other activity was scattered over a nine parish area, including four rigs in LaSalle Parish, three each in Tensas, Catahoula and Concordia, two in Grant and Rapides, and singles in Avoyelles, Caldwell and Union Parishes.

Eight wells were abandoned during the week, with inactive sites holding at 109; locations numbered 43 and 28 were drilling.

Cook's report on completions, new locations and active rigs looked like this:

Triad Location Is Announced In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Triad Oil and Gas Co. has located a new oil field find in Smith County.

Operators shut in the Clark No. 1, sec. 9-10n-15w, located approximately two miles southeast of Mize.

Storage tanks are being erected at the sight. The test was on a 12-64ths inch choke from perforations at 11,836-51 feet. Flowing pressure was 600 pounds, and shut in at 1,450 pounds.

Triad is running production tests at its second Smith County wildcat, the Stewart No. 1, sec. 29-1n-8e, located northeast of Mize. The potential pool discovery has production casing set to 12,895 feet. Operators will test the commercial worth of sands logged below 11,000 feet.

In Greene County, Cities Service Petroleum Co. is testing the Robinson Land Co. No. 1, sec. 15-4n-8w, with no release of information. Indications are that the well be completed as a new discovery.

Testing is under way from a perforated interval at 12,614-30 feet. Drill stem tests run in open hole recovered high gravity oil from two different intervals.

A test at 7,876 feet in the lower Tuscaloosa recovered 705 feet of 26 gravity oil. The second test at 11,358 in the Mooringsport recovered 1,772 feet of 34 gravity oil. The well is located in the sand hill area, and was drilled to 13,060 feet with production casing set to 12,711 feet.

A new deep producing pool in the Merit field of Simpson County has been opened at Phillips Petroleum Co. and Barnett Serio No. 1, board of supervisors, sec. 16-1n-4e. The well is flowing at the rate of 336 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 13,688,708 feet.

Sidewall coring is continuing at Jack Daniel and Miss-Tex Oil Co.'s Wilkinson County wildcat, the Nettles-USA No. 1, sec. 31-4n-1w. The venture was drilled to 7,300 feet with reports that a sand at 6,871-77 feet carried oil shows.

In Pike County south of the recently discovered Conerly field, L. D. Elam and F. H. Shortridge are below 6,300 feet on the Dunaway No. 1, sec. 11-2n-9e, 10,800 foot test.

In Amite County, Drilling and Exploration Co. Inc., is below 9,900 feet in the Burris No. 1, sec. 30-4n-6e, a scheduled 11,200-foot try.

Field drilling during the past week completed four new oilers.

In the Dexter field on the Walthall County side, Tenneco Oil Co. completed the Morris No. 1, sec. 1-1 -12e, flowing 422 barrels of oil daily from 9,630-34 feet.

Larco Drilling Co. has finaled the Hewiss-Chisolm No. 1, sec. 21-4n-6e, flowing 156 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 11,056-62 feet at Smithdale in Amite County.

Monroe Morning World Markets, Business and Oil

THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks advanced this week to 241.2 from 240.6 a week ago. The Commodity Index remained unchanged at 161.9. Gains and losses were evenly divided. (AP Wirephoto to Chart)

Market Trend Last Week Was 'Muddy'

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market last week went through a typical late December process with year-end tax transactions muddying the trend and crosscurrents prevailing.

The popular stock market averages varied in their final reading so the trend could best be described as mixed.

The Dow Jones industrial average took a minor loss of 1.68 at 646.41.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks showed a small pickup of .6 at 241.2.

Meanwhile, volume remained at the relatively low level of 18,900,752 shares, compared with 18,384,700 the previous week.

Strong leadership by such "big stocks" as General Motors and Standard Oil (New Jersey), however, reflected high quality investment demand which was based on some solid business realities.

GM topped its old historic high of 58⅞, reached in 1959, and established a new peak of 59⅝ Thursday. Production and sales this year have been second only to record 1955 in the auto industry and auto shares have been doing well. As the past week began, GM board Chairman Frederic gc. donner predicted that 1963 would bring seven million car sales, about the same as this year.

GM was the most active stock, keeping a net gain of 1⅞ but cutting its best price to close 58⅝.

Jersey Standard, biggest factor in the oil business, benefitted from a statement by its President, M.J. Rathbone, that the company's earnings this year will top the record $809 million of 1956. Jersey standard stock showed a net advance of 1⅜ at 59⅛ as it placed fifth in volume for the week.

Beneath this impressive leadership, however, the market was a hotbed of tax-loss selling and switching. Many big blocks were traded as major shifts were made in investment portfolios. Based on the 1,475 issues traded, it would seem like a losing week, for 772 declined and 546 advanced.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, however, is weighted by the number of shares of stock outstanding in its component issues and this index showed a gain of .07 at 62.64 — a very slight advance, but it was there, nevertheless.

GM, with 284 million common shares outstanding, has the largest capitalization of any issue on the New York Stock Exchange, so a rise by GM would have a decided influence on Standard & Poor's index.

The New Hork City newspaper stroke, for the second straight week, kept many investors in the dark concerning complete coverage of financial news. Steel production had a slight dip.

Commerce Secretary Luther H. Hodges predicted that the nation's production rise in 1963 but said tax reductions are needed to promote faster long-term growth.

TIGHTENS POLICY

Texas Proration Formula Tailored

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Texas has a new oil proration formula tailored to tighten enforcement of the state's policy of limiting production to market demand.

The Texas Railroad Commission, the state's oil and gas regulatory body, replaced the old calendar day formula this week with a percentage system under which production can be kept in near-perfect balance with market demand.

The action came one week after William J. Murray, the commission chairman, made a plea for other producing states to consider steps that would permit them to hold their output more closely to market requirements.

"There is absolutely no way to attain true conservation without rigorous proration both to the maximum efficiency rate and market demand," Murray told the annual meeting of the 33-state Interstate Oil Compact Commission.

He said oil states must uniformly shoulder the burden of proration to market demand so it will be possible to maintain the reserve producing capacity vital to national security.

Murray said there is indication some states apparently have not assumed their fair share of the burden. He said Texas had 46 per cent of the nation's crude reserves last year but produced only 35 per cent of domestic output.

Independent producers proposed the new Texas formula last month after contending the old calendar system at times contributed, in part, to the state's loss of its share of the U.S. market. They suggested the percentage formula as a practical means for preventing future losses.

In effect, the new formula permits the commission to make upward or downward adjustments on a fractional day basis instead of a full calendar day.

A one-day increase in the January allowable would have boosted actual production about 165,000 barrels a day, a figure far in excess of the anticipated increase in market demand for Texas crude. Purchasers had indicated Texas demand would increase only 15,809 barrels a day in January.

Through use of the new formula, the commission set the January allowable at 2,711,498 barrels daily, an increase of only 11,055 barrels.

The January allowable for the state's proratable wells was pegged at 26 per cent of a full month's total potential production. Future allowable changes can be made through fractional adjustments, upward or downward, of the 26 per cent level.

An allowable of 25.8 per cent would be equivalent to the eight-day proration order in effect in Texas since February.

Texas production has dropped sharply since reaching a record level of 3,333,000 barrels daily in early 1957 near the end of the Suez Canal emergency. Last week's output averaged only 2,496,550 barrels daily.

Woolum's Pass, Richardson's Catch Carries South Over North

THE NORTH'S Larry Benz is hauled down from behind by tackle John Paul Holmes of Georgia for no gain in the first quarter of the all-star game in Miami Saturday. Also in on the play are center Tom Arrowsmith, (56) of Detroit and on the ground is the South's Ken Williams (56). (AP Wirephoto)

Lengthy Pass Play, 2-Point PAT Win Tilt

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Big Willie Richardson broke the South's color line in the North - South college all-star football game Saturday and carried the Rebels to a 15-14 victory when he scored on an 80-yard pass play with 37 seconds to go.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Statistics of the North-South college all-star football game:

	NORTH	SOUTH
First downs	14	17
Rushing yardage	115	42
Passing yardage	162	332
Passes	14-28	17-32
Passes intercepted by	1	1
Punts	9-29.4	4-40
Fumbles lost	0	1
Yards penalized	5	5

Randy Kerbow of Rice threw the pass. Then Jerry Woolum of Kentucky whipped another to his teammate, Jerry Gash, for the two extra points that made the difference.

Richardson, Little All-America choice from Jackson, Miss. State College, ended his college career with a dazzling pass-catching performance that won him honors as the South's most valuable player.

Bob Paramore, another Little All-America from Florida A&M Negro college, who was chosen along with Richardson, made it a greater day for his race by winning the Sportsmanship Award for a fine running performance on a bad ankle.

The desperate, game-winning pass caught the Yankees, who were favored by seven points, by surprise. The lanky, long-striding Richardson caught it at the North 40 and ambled untouched across the goal.

Little Jerry Gross of Detroit had pitched the North into a 14-7 lead, although he had been far outdistanced by Woolum in passing yardage. Gross was voted the North's most outstanding performer.

The Detroit 168-pounder pitched 7 yards to Lonny Sanders of Michigan State for the first touchdown in the opening quarter after Northwestern's Larry Benz had set up the scoring opportunity by recovering a fumble at the South's 32.

The South struck back quickly to tie it up 7-7 on a 48-yard throw to Richardson. The ball was deflected by a North defender into Richardson's expert hands and he ambled untouched the last 20 yards.

A crowd of only 16,952, including undisclosed hundreds of kids who were admitted free, watched the game played in balmy weather in the 70s.

Defensive Standoff Is Broken By Tobin

HOUSTON (AP)— Bill Tobin, taking advantage of a key block by Andy Russell, broke loose for a 77-yard touchdown run in the third quarter Saturday to break up a defensive deadlock and give Missouri a 14-10 victory over favored Georgia Tech in the fourth annual Bluebonnet Bowl football classic.

Russell, with two interceptions, then paced the powerful Missouri defense—the fifth best in the nation—as it protected the 14-7 lead by turning back three late Tech threats by giving up nothing more than a 26-yard field goal by Billy Lothridge.

Passes	5-15	0-7
Passes intercepted by	2	4
Punts	6-38.5	5-39.6
Fumbles lost	0	2

A fumble recovery at the Missouri 15 paved the way for Lothridge's three-pointer late in the third period and two interceptions gave the Engineers late chances at the Tiger 23-and 22-yard lines before Russell made his game-saving pass thefts.

Missouri, a touchdown underdog, never trailed in a game witnessed by a crowd of 55,000 and a national television audience.

The Tigers took a 7-0 first period lead with a 67-yard drive that Jim Johnson climaxed with a 21-yard touchdown. Tech matched this with a 61-yard second quarter surge to tie the score as Joe Auer, behind perfect blocking, scored on a 6-yard run.

Tobin, a 193-pound senior from Burlington Junction, Mo., broke loose on his game-winning run on the second play after a punt by Lothridge was killed at the Missouri 20.

After Paul Uderhill had picked up 3 yards, Russell's neat block permitted Tobin to break through the middle. Tobin sped quickly into the secondary and moved across the goal untouched. Don Toner, Engineer defensive back, made a desperate dive at the 13-yard line but could not get his fingers on the Tiger halfback.

The two long touchdown drives gave Missouri its only serious threats but they were all the Tigers needed.

In addition to the two late opportunities smashed by Russell's interceptions, Tech also lost an early second quarter chance when Roger Phillips intercepted a Lothridge pass at the Missouri 19.

Tobin, with 114 yards in 11 carries, was named the game's most outstanding back, receiving 15 votes to 10½ for Johnson. Conrad Hitchler, Missouri end, was the outstanding lineman with 12 votes to six for runner-up Rufus Guthrie, Tech guard.

Hitchler's defensive play was particularly tough in the first half on Lothridge's passing efforts.

Lothridge, who set a Tech record for attempts and completions this season, had his first five passes knocked down. Missouri defenders intercepted four of the triple threat's passes but he completed five of 15 attempts for 68 yards and two of the completions played major roles in Tech's lone touchdown drive.

Johnson and Jimmy Roland, meanwhile, had no completions while attempting only seven passes for Missouri.

Tech's defense had given up an average of only 102 yards rushing as the Engineers compiled a 7-2-1 Southeastern Conference season record but Missouri runners penetrated the Tech defenses for 258 yards. Missouri had allowed 10 opponents an average of 112 yards rushing but Tech netted 185.

The upset gave Missouri of the Big Eight Conference its second straight bowl game victory after having lost six in a row. Missouri bowed to Tech 21-7 in its first venture into the post-season classics in the 1940 Orange Bowl.

The third straight bowl game defeat for Tech cut the Engineers' impressive post-season record to 11-5.

Roland and Tobin started Missouri's first period scoring drive with a pair of 11-yard runs. Tobin and Paul Uderhill teamed for another first down at the Tech 33, and Gus Otto rammed the middle for 3 yards and another at the 21, from where Johnson sped around his right side for the touchdown.

Lothridge's first pass completion in six attempts put Tech's second period drive into motion, Auer taking a 23-yarder at the Missouri 36. Three plays later Tech brought out its shotgun spread formation and Ted Davis made a spectacular catch of a 13-yard pass from Lothridge for a first down at the 17.

Mike McNames moved to the 14 and Lothridge, on a quick keeper, picked up 8 yards to the 6 from where Auer scored behind great blocking by Lothridge, Guthrie and McNames.

Lothridge's field goal came on the fourth play after Frank Sexton recovered a Russell fumble at the Missouri 15.

Tech had not moved beyond its own 47 yard line when a Lothridge punt on the third play of the second period struck Missouri's Daryl Krugman on the back and John Matlock covered for Tech at the Tiger 24. Phillips' interception at the 19 came two plays later.

A 32-yard pass from Lothridge to Auer moved Tech to the Missouri 30 with 36 seconds remaining in the half but the middle of the Missouri line crashed through to throw the Tech quarterback for a nine yard loss as the halftime gun sounded.

Except for the two touchdowns Missouri did not own the ball in Tech territory until the rapid exchange of interceptions in the fourth quarter.

After Russell made his first interception and returned 14 yards to the Missouri 25, the running of Tobin, Johnson and Paul Underhill moved the Tigers to the Tech 41 before they were setback by a holding penalty and Auer intercepted a Johnson pass.

Two players later Carl Crawford intercepted a Lothridge pass at the Tech 42. Four plays netted only nine yards and Tech took over at the 33.

Johnson was runnerup to Tobin among the ground gainers, getting 66 yards in 8 carries. Auer led Tech with 62 yards in 10 carries and was followed by McNames with 57 in 13.

ON 79-75 WIN

Kentucky Rally Takes Tourney

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's nationally ninth-ranked Wildcats refused to quit under pressure Saturday night as they defeated seventh-ranked West Virginia 79-75 to win the championship of the University of Kentucky Invitational Basketball Tournament.

It was Cotton Nash who proved the difference in the All-America candidates between him and the Mountaineers' Rod Thorn.

Nash, a 6-foot-5 junior from Leominster, Mass., took charge of the Wildcats as they battled back from a 34-29 halftime deficit to take the lead at 47-46 with 13 minutes, 40 seconds to go and never trailed thereafter.

Nash and Thorn tied for scoring honors with 30 points each. But Nash's prowess on the boards made the difference.

Kentucky, playing without starting pivotman Don Rolfes, out with an injured ankle, opened up a 53-47 lead with 11:40 to go and maintained about a 5-point lead the rest of the game.

At one time Kentucky led by nine, 74-65, with 2:10 to go when reserve Ted Deeken hit a 20-footer.

West Virginia opened the contest in lightning fashion and held an 8-0 lead with just 1:19 gone in the game.

At this point, Kentucky called time out to revamp its forces. The wildcats came back and pulled to within three points, 15-12, with 13:32 left in the first half.

But the Mountaineers refused to give ground and jumped back to a 23-13 lead two minutes later on the three field goals by Thorn and four free throws by his teammates.

The championship is Kentucky's sixth in the 10-year history of the tournament.

Oregon State beat Iowa 61-55 for third place by shutting down on the scoring of Jimmy Rodgers.

Kentucky met West Virginia in the second game of the double-header for the championship.

Rodgers scored 13 points to lead the Hawkeye scoring, but nine of those came at the free throw line. Before the tournament he averaged 16.7 a game, and he tabbed 23 Friday night in a losing effort against Kentucky in the first round of the tournament.

Mel Counts, Oregon State's 7-foot pivotman, led the Beavers with 18 points, 12 in the first half.

Bucks Smash Detroit Five In 101-66 Win

DETROIT (AP) — Ohio State, the nation's third ranked basketball power, drove to its sixth straight victory over a sophomore-studded Detroit team 101-66 Saturday night in its first road test of the season.

Ohio State, winning its first game on the road, jumped to an early lead and coasted in after leading 51-37 at halftime.

More than 6,700 fans witnessed the slaughter as Detroit's Titans, loaded with sophomores, gave the ball away on miscues no less than 16 times in the first half.

Ohio State piled up a 28-15 lead after ten minutes of play as Dick Reasbeck scored 16 of his 28 points.

The buckeyes built the lead to 80-46 midway of the second half as Reasbeck and Gary Bradd were removed from the game by Coach Fred Taylor who substituted freely throughout the final half.

Bradd finished with 19 points. Dick Dzik led the Titans with 15.

Aaron Named Braves MVP

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Hank Aaron, who hit .323 and was second only to Cincinnati's Frank Robinson in National League slugging averages with a mark of .624, was named Saturday the Milwaukee Braves most valuable player in 1962.

It was the third time since the Braves moved from Boston to Milwaukee in 1953 that Aaron has been so honored. Selected by the Milwaukee chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America, the slugging outfielder will receive the 1962 award at the writers' 10th annual Diamond Dinner, Jan. 20.

Jerry Windham Is Lost To Texas A&M

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP — Jerry Windham, Texas A&M's leading basketball scorer and rebounder, has been lost to the Aggie team indefinitely with a groin injury.

Windham, averaging 20 points per game through five contests, was injured when he went up for a successful field goal in A&M's 67-61 victory over LSU Friday night.

TEAM EFFORT

Tigers Call Win Their Best Game

By B. F. KELLUM

HOUSTON (AP) — A joyous band of Missouri University Tigers whooped it up in the dressing room Saturday following their 14-10 upset victory over Georgia Tech in the Bluebonnet Bowl and called it a "great team effort."

Halfback Bill Tobin, whose 77-yard run provided the victory margin for the underdog Tigers, kept repeating "it was just great" as his happy teammates slapped him on the back.

"When I broke through I had a feeling I was going all the way," Tobin grinned. "But I didn't know how fast those Southern guys could run."

Quarterback Jim Johnson, who raced 21 yards for Missouri's other touchdown, said it "was our best effort."

"The team really looked good," Johnson said. "It was our best game both on offense and defense."

Coach Dan Devine called Georgia Tech "a great football team."

"This was probably our best game of the season but we made lots of mistakes," he said.

Devine termed the run by Tobin as "the bread and butter play."

Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Dodd had no excuses in the losers' dressing room.

"We just got whipped by a very good football team," a grim, tired Dodd declared. "Tobin's long run for a touchdown in the third quarter broke our backs. I guess you'd have to say that was the turning point."

Dodd, whose 1959 and 1961 teams lost in the Gator Bowl, said, "It's a shame the finest group of seniors we have ever had at Tech were the only group since I've been the coach who never got a bowl victory."

Missouri showed nothing that Tech didn't expect, Dodd remarked.

"It was the same strong running game they have used so well all season. Missouri was as well prepared in the basic fundamentals of blocking, tackling and kicking as any team we have played in recent years."

Dodd said quarterback Billy Lothridge, his triple-threat quarterback "has had better days, but I can't fault him too much with the excellent job Missouri did defensively."

Lothridge completed only five of 15 passes for 63 yards and had four intercepted.

Top-Ranked Bearcats In 72-46 Coaster

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati's No. 1 ranked basketball Bearcats put on a second half defensive squeeze and a display of offensive sharpshooting Saturday night that sank ambitious Davidson 72-46.

Sluggish Cincinnati shooting helped produce a see-saw first half in which the lead changed six times in 4 minutes.

It was the 26th straight victory over two years for Cincinnati and 64th in a long row of home court games.

Davidson, surprise conquerors of No. 2-ranked Duke earlier this week, led off with a high-pressure defense that combined with erratic Cincinnati shooting to keep the issue tight at first.

The Bearcats took back the lead for the last time at 21-20 on a field goal by Ron Bonham, and staged a flurry that set an 8-point halftime edge.

The second half speedup hoisted Cincinnati to their highest lead 63-39.

Bonham led both squads with 22 points, while Davidson's Don Davidson headed a losing cause with 16.

It was the eighth victory of the season for Cincinnati. Davidson is now 5-2.

Warriors Top Nats 123-118 In Close Game

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The San Francisco Warriors defeated the Syracuse Nats 123-118 Saturday night in a close National Basketball Association battle that was not decided until the final 29 seconds of play.

Trailing 118-117, Tom Meschery finally put the Warriors ahead to stay on a jump shot with 29 seconds to play. Seconds later, Meschery clinched it with a three-point play that gave San Francisco a 121-118 bulge.

Wilt Chamberlain, held below his regular scoring average, was high scorer for San Francisco with 39 points. Willie Naulls added 25 for the Warriors and Meschery 17. Lee Shaffer was high man for the Nats with 26 points.

Syracuse jumped to a lead in the first quarter, moving ahead 30-19, and ended the stanza leading 34-27. Late in the second quarter, Syracuse was unable to connect and the Warriors struck for 10 straight points, tying the game 55-55.

Sophomore Halfback Leads Cougars Past Miami, 49-21

By DUKE FERGUSON

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Sparked by the sensational running of sophomore halfback Joe Lopasky, the University of Houston steamrollered over Miami of Ohio 49-21 Saturday in the 17th annual Tangerine Bowl football game.

Lopasky exploded for four touchdowns, including a 70-yard punt return, and kept a crowd of 7,500 on its feet much of the game.

The fast Texas team swapped touchdowns with a gallant but outclassed Ohio squad in the first, third and fourth periods. The telling quarter was the second when the Cougars slashed through the Redskin line on the ground and through the air for four tallies.

Miami struck fast and hard in the 1 for the second tally, and took a pass from quarterback the opening minutes of the first period, scoring after intercepting a pass by Houston quarterback Billy Roland. Halfback Scott Tayler scooped the aerial in and put Miami on the Houston 27.

Three plays later Mami scored on an 8-yard pass from quarterback Ernie Kellerman to end Gerald Myers. End Bob Jencks converted for the extra point.

The Texas squad then broke loose and scored five touchdowns before the halftime gun.

Lopasky scored the first Cougar touchdown on a 3-yard run. McMillan kicked the first of his six conversions. It was all Houston in the second quarter. Fullback Bobby Brezina plunged over from Billy Roland for the third.

Lopasky capped the half with a blazing 70-yard punt return to put Houston ahead at halftime 35-7.

It looked like a total route when the Cougars scored again at the start of the third quarter on a Roland pass to McMillan.

However, Miami was still to be contended with.

Quarterback Ernie Kellerman switched to the shotgun system and caught the Houston defense off guard.

The 167-pound sophomore uncorked a barrage of left-handed passes, and runs that finally connected for another Redskin tally when he plunged over from the 1. Jencks again converted.

But the Cougars put the finishing touches on their second bowl victory, moving to the Miami 4 where Lopasky bulled his way through the line for another score.

Still fighting, Miami moved the ball to the Houston 10 in the fourth period and sent halfback Bill Neumeier over for another score.

But Houston, apparently better acclimated to the warm southern temperatures, added an insurance touchdown when Lopasky bulled in a pass from Roland for his fourth score of the game.

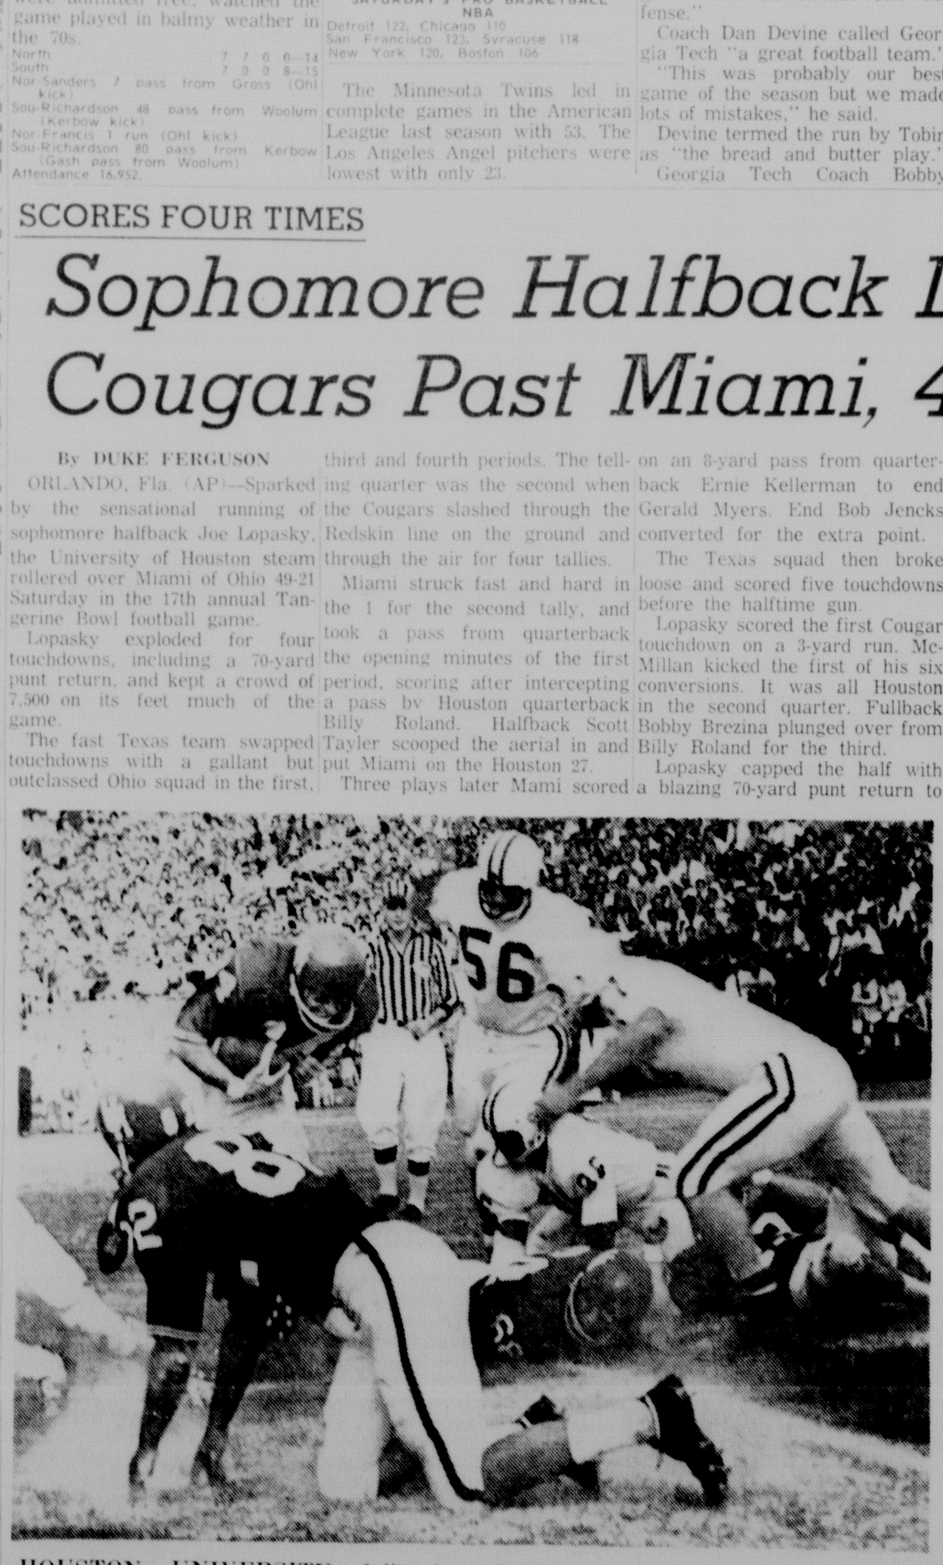

This is Houston's second bowl victory in as many appearances. The Cougars beat Dayton 26-21 in the 1951 Salad Bowl at Phoenix.

Seemingly hitting everything they put up, the Tigers twice in the first half held the 17-point advantage they carried into intermission, 49-32.

But led by Lyle Harger, Houston roared back in the second half. Harger, who totaled 40 points for the evening, scored 30 in the second period.

Dick Maile was high for LSU with 28 points and Ellis Cooper added 15. Maury Drummond pulled 12 from the boards for the Tigers and Maile had 10 as they led Houston in rebounds 37-31.

Vote Increases Funds To Colts Domed Stadium

HOUSTON (AP)— Special reports indicated early Saturday Harris County voters had approved an additional $9.6 million in bonds for construction of a domed sports stadium for the National League Houston Colts.

With 240 of the county's 278 precincts reporting, tabulations by The Houston Post showed 36,182 for the bonds and 30,287 against.

The election was the third in less than four years on bonds for the proposed all-weather structure.

A $15 million revenue bonds issue was approved in 1958 by a vote of 81,403 to 24,393. The county later switched to tax obligation bonds and the change was approved in 1961 by a vote of 61,063 to 53,188.

Southern California took the ball with 2:07 to play and stalled to wait for the final shot.

Nebraska's Bill Vincent had hit on two long hook shots to put the Huskers ahead at 53-51, then Young scored two free throws to tie the score with 3:54 to play.

Young, 6-foot-5 Trojan sophomore, led his team with 15 points. Vincent was high for Nebraska with 18.

Southern Cal went into the second half with a 28-27 lead and led 41-33 until Nebraska rallied and went ahead 47-46 on a layup by Vincent.

DEMANDS ITS DUE

Pottsville Wants NFL Grid Crown

CANTON, Ohio (AP)—The Pottsville, Pa. Maroons are on the march again in a campaign to win the title they were denied 36 years ago—the 1925 professional football world championship.

A committee representing members of the 1925 Maroons has notified the National Professional Football Hall of Fame here that a collection of football memenoes will be kept out of the shrine unless the Pottsville team is recognized as the 1925 champions.

The action reopens a bitter dispute that erupted in 1925, when Pottsville was stripped of its title and franchise for going into another pro team's territory for a game with Notre Dame.

That game, a week after the Maroons won the National Professional League championship with a 21-7 victory over the Chicago Cardinals, was the first All-Star game between a pro squad and graduating collegians.

Playing against the famed four horsemen and seven mules of Notre Dame, the Maroons won 9-7 in the game at Philadelphia's Shibe Park, now known as Connie Mack Stadium.

Charlie Berry, now an American League baseball umpire, kicked a 30-yard field goal that gave the Maroons their victory, and his gold-plated shoe is one of the pieces in the Pottsville collection.

Berry was an All-America end at Lafayette in 1924.

A protest was filed by the Philadelphia Yellow Jackets, and the league suspended all Maroon players, forfeited the championship and took away the Pottsville franchise.

Joseph C. Zacko, a Pottsville businessman, said Saturday he is determined the collection will not move out of Pottsville until the title is restored.

He said several former members of the Maroons will back the committee in efforts to bring the matter before the National Football League in its annual meeting at Miami Beach next month.

"We will donate our collection to the Hall of Fame under one condition only," Zacko said. "And that is that the Pottsville Maroons must be recognized as the 1925 professional football world champions. The record books must be changed to correct the injustice perpetrated by the National Professional League."

Chicago was awarded the 1925 title. The Cardinals, who had ended their season, were ordered to play two more games against other league teams and finished with a 11-2-1 record.

Ron Jeter Selected On Writers All-State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A four-man backfield which accumulated more than 4,200 yards in total offense — nearly 2½ miles — features the 1962 Louisiana class A all-star team picked Saturday by the Louisiana Sports Writers Association.

Champion Catholic of New Iberia placed three men on the first unit of the dream team while Mansfield landed two.

The top-ranked Panthers put halfback Chester Gosnell in the backfield along with tackle Allen LeBlanc and sophomore guard Mike Neustrom.

Gosnell and Neustrom were voted the outstanding back and lineman, respectively, in southwest Louisiana this season, with the 175-pound Neustrom regarded as the finest linemen ever to be developed in the New Iberia area.

Mansfield's Wolverines put both ends of their Sammy Clifton-to-Billy Lambright passing combination on the first team while the other six berths were divided among a half dozen schools.

Completing the first team are end Henry L'Hoste of St. Bernard, tackle Roy Frederick of St. Amant, guard Eugene Jeans of Basile, center David Robichaux of St. Francis (Houma) and backs Jerry Joseph of Baton Rouge University and Ron Jeter of Ferriday.

Coach Lawrence Matulich, who guided Ferriday's Bulldogs to the finals, won coach of the year honors.

The sports writers named 12 players to the second team, adding Mansfield's John Wurzburger to the group as a defensive specialist. He averaged 15 tackles per game from his linebacker slot.

Gosnell gained 1,002 yards rushing in 121 carries and averaged 8 yards per try. He scored 68 points and punted for an average of better than 43 yards to lead Catholic to the title.

Clifton, a rifle-armed 145-pounder, has the most impressive credentials in the backfield. He completed 70 of 144 passes for 1,175 yards and 12 touchdowns and gained 390 yards rushing in 74 attempts—a total offense of 1,565 yards.

Jeter gained 837 yards rushing in 129 attempts and scored 66 points for Ferriday.

TCU Is First SWC Team In Gulf South Tournament

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Texas Christian which won its first game Friday, becomes the first team from the Southwest Conference ever to compete in the Gulf South Classic cage tourney—a four-day affair which opens Wednesday night.

The Horned Frogs and four other out-of-state squads will be bucking three Louisiana teams who between them have won the Gulf South Classic six of the past eight years. TCU topped Oklahoma City 74-63 Friday for victory No. 1.

In fact, South Carolina—which isn't competing this year—is the only out-of-state cage team to walk away with the Gulf South Classic championships. The Gamecocks won the 1960 tourney.

Defending champion Centenary, host for the eight-team tourney, defeated South Carolina in last year's finals. The Gents, paced by 6-foot-2 Willard Moore, are pre-tourney picks for this year's Gulf South Classic, despite their 3-3 record.

They meet George Washington, also 3-3, in the opening first round game Wednesday night. Louisiana Tech, winner of three tourneys here in the past, and sporting a 3-2 mark, tangles with West Texas State, 1-5, in the nightcap.

Thursday's games in the first round bracket, pit Texas Christian, which has lost all six of its games, against Eastern Kentucky 1-3, and Northwestern State, 2-3, against Southern Mississippi, 3-4.

Northwestern has won once in the past at the Gulf South Classic.

Quarter-final games are scheduled Friday with seventh, fifth, third and championship bracket contests on Saturday.

IN COTTON BOWL

Coach Predicting Offensive Thrills

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — While most observers figure the New Year's Day Cotton Bowl clash between Louisiana State and Texas will be a close defensive game, Tiger Coach Charlie McClendon thinks the classic will produce some thrilling offense.

"Getting ready for this time has been real easy for my boys," McClendon said Saturday. "It won't be a pressure-type game. I think it will be different than what a lot of people feel.

"Both squads are going to be loose and it should be a thriller."

The Tigers, compiling an 8-1-1 record in McClendon's debut as head coach, allowed their 10 opponents an average of 3.4 points per game. At the same time, the Bengals scored at a 16.3 clip.

The Longhorns, 9-0-1, gave up 59 points—almost a touchdown a game—to their 10 foes while scoring 184 themselves.

Ironically, both teams were tied by Rice and both teams scored their most points against winless Tulane. Rice deadlocked LSU 6-6 and tied Texas 14-14. The Tigers whipped Tulane 38-3 while the Steers trimmed the Greenies 35-8.

The two Cotton Bowl teams had two other common foes, Texas Christian and Texas A&M. LSU beat TCU 5-0 and A&M 21-0 while Texas whipped the Horned Frogs 14-0 and defeated the Aggies 13-3.

McClendon let his squad off one day early for the Christmas holidays "because they've shown so much enthusiasm." The Bengals, ranked seventh in the final Associated Press collegiate football poll, reassemble on the Baton Rouge campus Dec. 26, flying to Dallas the following day.

The 39-year-old McClendon, who played on the Kentucky team which upset national champion Oklahoma 13-7 in the 1951 Sugar Bowl classic, says the enthusiasm generated by his Tigers for the Cotton Bowl game surpasses any he has seen as player or coach.

High Ranked Loyola Drops Seattle, 93-83

CHICAGO (AP) — Fourth-ranked Loyola of Chicago failed to reach 100 points for the first time this season but had more than enough to topple Seattle from the ranks of the unbeaten 93-83 at the Chicago Stadium Saturday night.

Bradley met Manhattan in the second contest in a college doubleheader.

Loyola, in winning its seventh consecutive game without a defeat, swept into a commanding 66-44 lead early in the second half, only to have the Chieftains whittle away until the Ramblers led by only four points with 2 minutes remaining.

Loyola's Jerry Harkness sank a pair of free throws to make it 84-78, but Seattle came back with two quick baskets, one by Eddie Miles and the other by Ernie Dunston, to make it 84-82.

Loyola's balanced scoring, however, paid off in the final minute when Leslie Hunter sank two consecutive baskets to pull the Ramblers out of danger.

Seattle, the 10th-ranked team in the nation with a 5-1 mark now, led only briefly, and that was at the beginning of the game. Loyola quickly moved into a 12-5 lead then steadily pulled away to a 54-38 halftime advantage.

For Seattle Eddie Miles collected 25 points and teammate John Tresvant had 19 points.

Salty Parker Consultant For Pittsburgh Bucs

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates announced Saturday that Francis J. (Salty) Parker, former coach of the San Francisco Giants and Cleveland Indians, has joined their organization as managerial consultant for farm clubs.

The 49-year-old Parker, who was an infielder for the Detroit Tigers in 1936, was a San Francisco coach from 1958 through 1961 and a Cleveland coach last season.

He also managed clubs at Lubbock and Marshall, Tex.; Shreveport, La., and St. Paul, Minn.

IN AFL SHOWDOWN

Balanced Texans Play Pass-Minded Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — The well-balanced Dallas Texans challenge the pass-minded Houston Oilers in a Texas showdown Sunday for the American Football League championship.

Dallas will be trying to wrestle from the defending champions the title Houston has held since the AFL was organized in 1960.

The Oilers are favored by 6½ points in the Texas feud that will be televised nationally (2 p.m. CST). An overflow crowd of 37,000 is expected at Jeppesen Public Schools Stadium.

Records leave little choice between the two teams. Both won division titles with 11-3 records. They rank one-two in the AFL in both total offense and total defense. Neither gained a wide statistical edge while splitting two regular season games.

Houston's attack, as in 1960 and 1961, centers on the explosive passes of George Blanda. The old pro of 13 years is backed by such top runners as Charlie Tolar and Billy Cannon, but about two out of every three yards the Oilers gained this season resulted from passes.

Dallas blends the brilliant passing of Len Dawson, the AFL's player of the year, with the power and speed of Curtis McClinton, the rookie of the year, and Abner Haynes, the league's leading ground gainer in 1960. The Texan formula has resulted in near-perfect balance in that Dallas gained 2,456 yards in 14 games on passes and 2,407 yards rushing.

Blanda set a league record this year by having 42 passes intercepted but he rallied the Oilers from behind six times and Houston moves into its third title game seeking an eighth straight victory. Blanda had only 22 interceptions last season, when he preceded Dawson as the league's player of the year.

Dawson threw three touchdown passes as the Texans ran over Houston, 31-3, in late November while intercepting six passes and recovering three fumbles. A week later Blanda bombed Dallas for a 14-6 victory as the Houston defense prevented the Texans from crossing the Oiler 34-yard line the first 55 minutes.

Dawson set a league record with a .609 percentage compiled while completing 189 of 310 passes for 2,759 yards and 29 touchdowns. Blanda completed 197 of 418 for 2,810 yards and 27 touchdowns.

Houston led the league in total offense, averaging 355 yards per game to 347 for runner-up Dallas. The Texans led in defense with 282 yards, compared to 295 for second place Houston.

Dallas clinched the Western Division championship Nov. 18 but Houston had to maintain its seven-game winning streak to take the Eastern title by 1½ games over the Boston Patriots.

Both teams are in near perfect physical condition, but Dallas will be without Chris Burford, a star end who was injured four weeks ago.

Dawson threw 26 touchdown passes before Burford was injured and 12 of them were to the former Stanford end.

Houston won the first AFL championship in 1960 by defeating the Los Angeles Chargers, 24-16. The Chargers later moved to San Diego and lost to the Oilers, 14-3, in the 1961 title game.

UCLA Topples Wisconsin Five Pilgrims Flock

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A resourceful UCLA team closed out a successful three-game Midwest basketball invasion Saturday with a 77-63 victory over Wisconsin.

The Bruins beat the Wisconsin zone in the first half to take a 34-26 lead and bested the Badgers in a battle of fast breaks in the second period to increase their margin.

McDonald Serves Well

Louisiana's best all-around outdoor area, our own Fifth District, is now without representation on the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission.

E. R. McDonald Sr. of Newellton, who was commission chairman all 6½ years of service on the seven-man board, stepped aside this week after his term expired.

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis—McDonald's neighbor in Tensas Parish — appointed H. B. Fairchild of Sunshine in South Louisiana to succeed McDonald.

Under the law, McDonald could not have been re-appointed, but possibly could have remained on the commission if the governor had failed to name his successor.

When the Davis administration selected Fairchild to succeed McDonald, the decision made the Fifth District the only congressional district without representation on the commission.

One district has to be without a representative on the board, since there are eight districts and seven board board members. But just show us any district in Louisiana that has more game than Northeast Louisiana.

Louisiana's greatest concentration of deer is located in this district and as a result the Fifth District has more gun pressure than any other district. The greatest game problems are here — not at Sunshine, Louisiana.

Davis knows this, because he is McDonald's neighbor.

But the Fifth District can survive for another year because more than likely a new commission will be named when a new administration takes office.

Meantime, the sportsmen of Louisiana — and especially the sportsmen of this area — owe Ed McDonald at least an expression of gratitude for the work he did on the commission. No other commissioner put out as much as he did — of both time and money.

McDonald served under two governors — the late Earl K. Long and Jimmie Davis — during a time when the directorship of the department changed hands four times. Ernest Clements, Lamar Clement and Rudolph Easterly served under the Long administration during hectic times when McDonald kept the department glued together.

His job was made easier when L. D. Young came in under Davis.

During those 6½-years, McDonald worked as much for the state as he did for himself. The per diem that he drew was a mere drop in the bucket of his own personal earnings, because the man who started out as a tractor driver after World War I is now well-fixed to say the least.

The effort put forth by McDonald reflects the commission's accomplishments.

A great step forward was the formation of an education program that is taking wildlife conservation to the classroom, a program that can do as much for wildlife as the continuation of good habitat.

Locally, the best thing the commission has ever done was the purchase of over 14,000 acres in Lafourche Swamp — now known as the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area. We know for a fact that McDonald steered the transaction to an honest end.

Closer to his own home grounds,

E. R. MCDONALD, SR.

McDonald was instrumental in converting 150,000 acres of the Chicago Mills property in Tensas Swamp into a game management area that now provides public hunting for thousands.

In addition, he was fair while presiding at commission hearings where every sportsman has a chance to speak. He initiated the annual three-day hearings where hunters speak their peice on the setting of the seasons.

But the sailing was not easy. As president of the Tensas Parish Police Jury, McDonald had troubles of his own at home where the "any deer" seasons have not been accepted by all the people yet. No man could tackle the Delta deer problems to the satisfaction of all of us.

Now 63 when men should take life easier, McDonald probably will live longer now that he has the commission's headaches off his shoulders. He served well and should be proud that progress has been made.

Big Game Season

Louisiana's big game seasons open this week when the deer hunters take to the woods for the second half of the season along with the few remaining bear hunters.

The deer season opens a day after Christmas through January 10th. And the hunting should be good. We only hope the deer can remain in good condition.

Bear hunting will be permitted in just five parishes, including East Carroll and Madison, east of Bayou Macon from the Arkansas line to U.S. 80 and north of U.S. 80 from Bayou Macon to the Mississippi River.

In addition, the East Carroll Game Management Area will have a five-day season. Hunters must have permits, which can be obtained from the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission or at Scott's Store in East Carroll near the area.

Hunters can kill only one bear during the season and the killing of cubs is probited.

South Louisiana parishes open for bear hunting are St. Mary, Iberia and Vermilion.

On the duck hunting side, the season closes Christmas Eve. Unless the picture changes this weekend, the hunting will end on a much slower note than was enjoyed during the freeze.

Friday's cool snap may improve the hunting.

Little Man's Corner

It was Christmas and the little men weren't making too much news afield.

Locally, the Ouachita Wildlife Unit held a drawing after a campaign of raising funds. Mrs. E. C. Pouncey won first prize, a boat.

Other winners include Luther Stilwell, second place, a turkey; E. E. Greer, third place, a lantern, and David D. Rogers, fourth place, a minnow bucket.

On the fishing scene, H. W. Armstrong, Si Willing caught 42 white perch on one trip to Lower Fool River. Armstrong and Jack Miller also caught 50 large white perch there, plus eight bream and four barfish.

Then there is fleetfooted Harry Addison again, the Monroe deer hunter who was placed on a stand by Jack Smith one cold morning, but beat Jack back to camp on foot, although Jack Smith was driving a jeep.

Addison requests equal time and here it is:

"I read with amusement your account of Ole' Fleetfoot beating the jeep back to camp which is only proof that when a man observes 'he ain't got sense enough to git in outa' the rain,' it also applies to the cold!

"When I first arrived at camp, I found that you could hang meat in the bedrooms and it wouldn't spoil 'til spring . . . I cooked a No. 8 of chili that was so hot it would melt the wax in hour ears (the only reason I did not freeze) and we cooked our meals on an old black wood-burning monster that we got so hot it was short of breath.

"The food was delicious, the company was savory, the host was magnificently impudent, and the only 'buck' that was seen was one that was thrown down on a penny-ante play-for-matches poker game.

"Incidentally, in the interest of pure honesty, I can move fairly fast for a past-forty figure, but the race of the tortoise and the hare proves again that if you stop and build a roaring fire that looks not unlike the Northern Lights, you will love a race, even if you are driving a jeep."

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

IN MCNEESE MEET

McGuire Leads Oklahoma Five

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — High-scoring Connie McGuire is expected to lead Southeastern Oklahoma State to its second successive McNeese Holiday Invitational Basketball Tourney victory.

The defending champions top a four-team field that also includes Stephen F. Austin, Ouachita Baptist and host McNeese.

First round pairings for the 10th annual event pit Southeastern against S. F. Austin Thursday night with McNeese meeting Ouachita in the nightcap.

Third place and championship games will be played Friday night.

McGuire, a 6-foot-7 playmaker from Stigler, Okla., set a tourney record last year by dunking in 41 points to lead his team to an 82-59 victory over McNeese in the championship game. The Savages went on to the NAIA finals at Kansas City, where they placed third. So far this season, McGuire has averaged well over 20 points per game as his team has won seven of nine starts.

Austin, with a 6-2 mark, will show the latest Gimmick in basketball — two platoons. Coach Marshall Brown employes two five-man units — each playing about equal time. The first unit plays a man to man defense and the alternate squad, called the scramblers, sets up a zone defense. Austin's top player is 6-foot-4 Keith Lowrey, who is hitting at a 15.8 clip this season.

Ouachita Baptist brings a 5-3 points per game this season with 6-foot-6 Wayne Davenport—an all tourney. Coach Ralph Ward's squads have won the title five times and placed second the other four times.

Because of injuries to veterans, Ward has had to use a large number of freshmen this season. As a result, the Cowboys have been inconsistent. Veteran Jimmy Shields paces the McNeese attack. He has averaged 19.9 points in 11 games.

Billy Moore Is Divorced

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — Jo-Lynne Moore of Fort Smith was granted a divorce Friday from University of Arkansas quarterback Billy Moore.

Judge Hugh Bland granted the divorce on grounds of desertion and non-support. The girl was given custody of the couple's child, William Jeffrey, 1.

Moore, who made the second unit of the Associated Press All-America team, was ordered to pay $25 a month for child support.

JIM TAYLOR UNANIMOUS

Green Bay Places Eight Men On United Press All-Star Club

By NORMAN MILLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eight members of the Green Bay Packers, headed by unanimously chosen Jim Taylor, were named Saturday to the 1962 National Football League All-Star team by United Press International.

The New York Giants and the Detroit Lions each placed five players on the honor squad selected by a panel of 42 writers who covered the NFL season. The Chicago Bears, Baltimore Colts, Los Angeles Rams and Washington Redskins each had one representative.

Roosevelt Brown, 255-pound Giants tackle, was selected for the seventh consecutive season; Gino Marchetti, 35-year-old Colts defensive tackle, was honored for the sixth year in a row, and Jimmy Patton, willowy New York safetyman, was chosen for the fifth straight season.

Four members of the Packers' superb offensive line and three defensive players were selected on the first team with Taylor. Bears at tight end.

The interior line is made up of Gregg and Roosevelt Brown at tackles, Kramer and Thurston at guards and Ringo at center.

On defense, Marchetti and Jim Katcavage of the Giants are at ends; Roger Brown and Alex Karras of the Lions at tackles; Joe Schmidt of Detroit at middle linebacker, flanked by Forester and Currie; Dick (Night Train) Lane of the Lions and Adderley at corner halfbacks, and Patton and Yale Lary of the Lions at the safety spots.

Five members of the offensive platoon are holdovers from the 1961 All-Star first team (Shofner, Gregg, R. Brown, Thurston and Ringo), while eight defensive stalwarts are repeaters. Roger Brown, Adderley and Lary did not make the first team last year (although Lary was honored in 1957 and 1958).

There were three extremely close races for positions on this year's team and in one of these, Jimmy Brown of the Cleveland Browns was edged out of a first-team berth for the first time in his six-year NFL career.

With Taylor a unanimous choice for one of the running back spots, the votes for the other position were scattered among Bass, John Henry Johnson of the Pittsburgh Steelers, Don Perkins of the Dallas Cowboys and Jimmy Brown.

Bass barely beat out Johnson for the first-team, 10 votes to 9, while Perkins and Jimmy Brown each had 8 votes. Johnson, Perkins and Brown all were awarded places on the second team, making it a 12-team squad.

The same was true of the second defensive platoon. Marchetti easily won a berth with 20 votes, but Katcavage outpolled Willie Davis of the Packers, 13 votes to 12. Davis thus was placed on the second team along with Andy Robustelli of the Giants and record placekicker Lou Michaels of the Steelers, each of whom received 6 votes.

The third close race was for a defensive cornerback spot, where Lane edged Erich Barnes of the Giants, 16 votes to 15.

Another player who lost out in a close vote was Jim Parker of Baltimore. Parker, who played both guard and tackle this season, received votes for both positions. However, his total of 20 was less than that polled by any of the four interior linemen honored on the first team.

The linemen are tackle Forest Gregg, guards Jerry Kramer and Fred Thurston, and center Jim Ringo. The defensive players are linebackers Bill Forester and Dan Currie, and defensive halfback Herb Adderley.

The 210-pound Taylor, who this season became only the third player in NFL history to win the rushing and the scoring championship in the same year, was selected as a running back by every one of the 42 selectors. The panel was made up of three writers from each league city.

Next to Taylor in popularity was quarterback Y. A. Tittle, 35-year-old record-breaking Giants passer, who attracted 35 votes. Joe Schmidt, Detroit's middle linebacker, was picked by 34 selectors and his defensive team mate, tackle Roger Brown, had 33 votes.

This year, for the first time, the panel of writers was required to vote strictly according to the specialized functions that make up a working pro football team. The team thus is comprised of a quarterback, two running backs, two pass-catchers (flankers or split ends) and a tight (blocking) end.

The All-Star backfield has Tittle at quarterback, Taylor and Dick Bass, who set a team rushing record 1,033 yards for the Rams, at the running back spots; Del Shofner of the Giants and Bobby Mitchell of the Redskins at the pass-catching positions, and burly Mike Ditka of the

MRS. F. ALDRICH MOORE III

Elizabeth Jane Kelly Bride Of Houston Man

Potted palms, Southern smilax and red poinsettias formed a setting in the First Methodist Church of Oak Grove, for the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Jane Kelly and F. Aldrich Moore III, both of Houston, Tex., which was solemnized Saturday, December 22 at 6 p.m. Rev. E. B. Emmerich performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe T. Kelly of Oak Grove and the bridegroom is the son of F. Aldrich Moore Jr., of Houston, and Mrs. Dorothy Moore of San Antonio, Texas.

Traditional nuptial music was provided by the organist, Mrs. Roy Stedman.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory peau de soie, lavishly embellished with bridal jewels. The sculptured bodice was fashioned with bateau decolletage and elbow length sleeves, marked by deep bands of the jeweled lace. A fold of the silk encircled the waistline to form a bow detail and the dome shaped skirt, accented by a wide band of matching lace swept to a circular court train. Her scalloped veil of Brussels lace was embellished with appliques cascaded over the gown to fall beyond the train's hemline. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The bride's sisters, Miss Joanne Kelly and Mrs. John S. Bace, served as maid and matron of honor, respectively, and bridemaids were Miss Nonie Waller, Mrs. James Barnes and Mrs. Sam Williamson. All wore floor length gowns of red silk brocade with matching slippers and short white kid gloves. Their headdresses were laurel wreaths of holly and they carried bouquets of holly with berries and feathered red carnations.

John S. Bace attended Mr. Moore as best man and groomsmen were Theodore Nees, Donald Ray and Joe Laughlin, all of Houston, Tex.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Kelly wore a gown of mint green with bodice of Alencon lace and peau de soie skirt. The bridegroom's mother also wore a green model with harmonizing accessories.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained with a reception at their Oak Grove home, where hurricane lamps lined the driveway to the entrance. A large white flocked Christmas tree adorned with red balls, graced the stair landing and potted palms formed a background. Smilax garlanded the stairway where a stringed ensemble played throughout the reception hours.

An arrangement of stock, delphinium and roses in a candelabra epergne centered the bride's table with the punch bowl and cake at opposite ends. Mrs. C. R. Evans, Lake Providence, served the cake and Mrs. Cyrus McGinty presided at the punch bowl. Coffee was served by Mrs. John T. Lomax.

For a wedding trip to Mexico City, the bride was wearing an American beauty red knit ensemble with mink hat. Upon their return they will be at home in Tall Timbers Apts., Houston, Texas.

Mrs. Moore received her B. A. degree from Sophie Newcomb and is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Mr. Moore graduated from the Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., and received his B.S. from Rice University, Houston, Tex.

Wedding vows were exchanged by Miss Marilyn McDougald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McDougald, and Ronald Cruse, son of Mrs. Grace Cruse, all of Olla, on December 8 at 7:30 p.m. in Standard Baptist Church.

Rev. Dale Windham performed the ceremony before an arch of greenery, white lilies and white chrysanthemums, flanked by baskets of the white chrysanthemums. Lighted candles decorated the windows.

Mrs. Larry Robinson accompanied Mrs. Dale Windham, as she sang "I Love You Truly," and played traditional wedding marches.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a short gown of white nylon over taffeta, fashioned with lace bodice and long fitted sleeves. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a lace cap, encrusted with seed pearls and sequins and she carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid and stephanotis.

Candles were lighted by Miss Sue McDougald, sister of the bride and Mike McDougald, her cousin.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Fresh Beauty In Arranging

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Dr. John Wright, horticulture professor from Louisiana Tech, and noted flower-arranging artist and lecturer, gave a most inspiring program on T. V. for the Garden Center last Wednesday. The use of fresh flowers in our last minute Christmas arrangements was the theme of his program. Always use fresh materials whenever possible, and, by all means use fresh flowers on our dinner tables for Christmas. It is permissible to use some artificial materials mixed in with the fresh. This gives the necessary "glitter" and "holiday festive" touch.

Dr. Wright showed four outstanding arrangements that he had made before the show to illustrate the use of fresh materials. The first design featured light pink mums massed to form a triangle line in a soft pink compote container.

For background and primary line he used magnolia leaves sprayed a soft pink and slightly glittered. This had the look of "Holiday" spendor, yet featured flowers that would last a long time, and, too, could be replaced with fresh flowers whenever necessary, using the same magnolia leaves over and over.

CONTAINERS

Arrangment two on the show featured two attractive Japanese containers that had been cleverly placed together end to end to form one tall cylinder type container. These were white etched in gold. A large palm spathe sprayed gold formed the tall vertical line in the container for the design. Desert spoon (yucca) also sprayed gold was placed within the primary line with several falling over the lip of the container's edge. Light lavender - pink mums were used within the line in a massed vertical design. The lavender with the gold formed a pleasing color effect. If the fresh flowers were not available the permanent flowers could be used in this design perfectly, or used after the fresh mums had faded.

A graceful pine branch with the needles dipped formed the line for the (oriental) in a tall white pillar vase. This branch was anchored into a needle point holder placed in the bottom of the container. One large poinsetta blossom formed the focal interest at the base of the pine branch. Simplicity and beauty prevailed in this design so suitable for the hall table during the holidays. If you did not have a fresh poinsetta blossom—then use the artificial. In this case it would not be necessary to use water in the tall container since pine will hold up for days without it. But, as Dr. Wright said, it is always best to use the fresh materials whenever possible.

DRIED BLOSSOMS

The last arrangement featured dried hydrangea blossoms that had been sprayed silver. A tall balck usabata container was just the thing for this design. Placed in a zig - zag fashion were fresh mums, alternating the silvered material. This was quite effective and different from the usual thing. This design would be very long - lasting, and always whenever the fresh flowers fade you could subsitute with the artificial materials if necessary. The dried hydrangea could be used in many ways if you have it on hand. Dr. Wright explained that a lady in Ruston had used it sprayed gold to form a silhouette Christmas tree on a red felt background. This would make an attractive door decoration. The dried hydrangea can be sprayed most any color to be used as filled in arrangements of many types.

Thanks, Dr. Wright for these tips on flower arranging for our last minute decorating ideas. Last minute tips often prove to be the most important.

Wednesday we have a pleasant surprise awaiting. Lafayette Ruffin, formerly from Tech in Ruston, now employed in landscape work in Northport, Alabama, will give a demonstrating program on pruning shrubs and trees, and demonstrate espalier art.

You can sit back and enjoy this program which is so timely now — all the Christmas cooking and most of the decorating and last minute bustle will be behind you. Hope you enjoy this and I know you will appreciate the valuable information that Lafayette will have for you.

"Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year" to each of you from yours truly and the 5th District Garden Center.

Curtain Call

"Hansel and Gretel," opens at Strauss Playhouse on Wednesday, December 26, at 2:30 p.m., followed by matinees daily through Sunday, December 30. There also will be evening performances Thursday and Friday at 7:30 p.m.

If you have not ordered your tickets from Box 868 by mail, the boxoffice on Lamy Lane opens the day after Christmas and reservations can be made by calling there in person or telephoning FAirfax 3-1235 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. (7:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday only.

If you simply have to secure tickets before then, you can call Mrs. Jack L. Rivers at FAirfax 5-7502. "Hansel and Gretel," is a non-membership show with admission 75 cents for children and $1 for adults. It is sponsored jointly by the Junior Charity League and Little Theatre. The children of our area are in for a wonderful holiday treat as they see this old familiar fairy tale brought to life on our stage.

Little Theatre extends deepest sympathy to the family of Carl Slakter. He had appeared in seven productions, worked backstage in many others and served three years as a trustee. His interest in and generosity toward Little Theatre will long be remembered.

FAVORABLE NOTE

Favorable reviews greeted the performance of Irving Zeidman in the production of "Die Fledermaus" by the Shreveport Civic Opera Association. When he lived in Monroe, he played Mr. Levy in "Abie's Irish Rose," in 1951. His father-in-law is R. W. Bandy of West Monroe.

On top of her fine performance in "Gigi," Shirley Allen was named "Miss Pow Wow" by that Northeast State College publication, its first weekly award of this honor. Shirley is also named on three new Green Room tiles.

Director Richard M. Clark and Pat are in New York on their third annual play-going spree. In the course of about 10 days, they expect to see 12 shows, some of which will later find their way to our stage and all of which contribute production ideas and techniques.

They will, of course, be back in time for try-outs for "Annie Get Your Gun," on January 2, 3 and 4 at 7:30 p.m. Last week we started telling about the parts available in this tremendous musical.

The lead role calls for a reasonable facsimile of Ethel Merman or Mary Martin, which might seem like a tall order except that we have girls with that much talent in and around Monroe. Since the part is wide open, we hope that quite a few of you will throw caution to the winds and try out for it. If we can find an Annie with the right voice, six weeks of rehearsal will do the rest.

The male lead is Frank Butler, a strong, virile type who has to sing well, but needs little or no dancing ability. Men are shyer about trying out than women, but this is such a good part that we hope for more than the usual number of candidates.

Then there are Winnie and Tommy, the young romantic leads, who share two of the good song numbers and have to dance moderately well. Remember that we are going to have a choreographer who will teach the dance routines even to those with two left feet. Girls trying out for dancing parts should wear or bring shorts, leotards or other practice costumes in case you are asked for a demonstration of some simple steps.

Cur members can begin to look forward to "Annie Get Your Gun," which is tentatively scheduled to open in mid-February. Just imagine a single musical with songs like "There's No Business Like Show Business," "The Girl That I Marry," "Doin' What Comes Naturally," "I've Got The Sun In The Morning," "They Say It's Wonderful," "You Can't Get A Man With A Gun," and "Anything You Can Do I Can Do Better," plus nine others. This show racked up 1147 performances on Broadway and toured for years.

Curtain Call wishes a very Merry Christmas to its readers, to the members, directors, trustees and officers of Little Theatre, to executive director and Mrs. Richard M. Clark and to technical director, Raymond E. Lucero.

RELIC OF THE PAST, in stark silhouette against barn boards, caught the perceptive eye of Lawrence Willard as this tiny miss tried her hand at grown-up chores. It appears in "Pictorial Connecticut," a collection of nostalgic photos of the Nutmeg State by Willard, feature photographer for the New Haven Register.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Where is beauty for the camera eye?

Is it around us in familiar sights? Or just down the road and around the bend, a will of the wisp luring us on? Or is it far away in strange lands among people who are different?

Strangely enough, the questions are prompted by two photographic books which are utterly different yet have many coincidental similarities. They supplied the answer too. It might be summed up like this:

BEAUTY ABOUNDS

Beauty is everywhere . . . if you have the mind and eyes to see it . . . the desire to capture it . . . and a camera handy.

Beauty is there in the familiar but it takes a discerning eye to isolate it so it can be seen. You come in close and your camera puts a frame around it.

Beauty is down the road and around the bend but you must go after it. The photo search may lead you off the trail and into the fields or down rough bypaths . . . in mist, fog, snow and in the early light of daybreak as well as at sunset or at night. But the rewards are there.

Beauty is also in faraway places, in foreign people and their customs. But they are still people whose elemental drives make all humans so much alike in their love of family life and belief in the Almighty. Here, the photographer becomes almost an invisible spectator, not an intruder.

POETIC

The photographers who found such poetic beauty with their cameras are Lawrence F. Willard and Nell Dorr. They both live in Connecticut. Their books were both published in Connecticut and they are both priced alike ($10). But their formats, printing and subject matter are quite different.

Willard's book of 123 statewide photographs, "Pictorial Connecticut," has a text by Alvin V. Sizer, is published by College and University Press, New Haven. It is printed by offset and the reader is aware, at times, that the reproduction does not do the original photographs full justice.

SPIRITUAL VIEW

Mrs. Dorr's book, "The Bare Feet," is a spiritual view of a primitive Mexican village in 69 photos. It is a slightly larger book which opens like a horizontal album. Printed in a beautiful, rich photogravure process with a hand - lettered text, it is published by the New York Graphic Society, Greenwich, Conn.

Lawrence Willard, of Yalesville, is a feature photographer for the New Haven Register whose pictures have been appearing regularly in the Sunday Feature Magazine for the past few years. He took pictures of whatever appealed to him as he traveled around the state on other assignments. His poetic eye and responsive camera brought the beauty of the New England region into nostalgic focus.

Plan Area Outdoors

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Our specialist, Neil Odewald, says that an area planned for outdoor living and recreation is a vital part of a well - designed landscape. Outdoor living areas to fit the needs of a family should be developed as a definite and important part of every home ground. Patios should be large enough to be useful, rather than small, cold and uninviting.

Areas should be provided within the living space for plant material and water, rock, sculpture or special ground cover effects which can provide additional enrichment and enjoyment. Where areas for active recreation are desired, eliminate plants that cut down usable space. Shrubs and flower beds spotted throughout the play area will make it useless.

Trees are often desirable in some areas for shade, but it is wiser to use them nearer the house for shade indoors as well as outdoor recreation. Grouping trees is more desirable than random spacing in the yard. Place the outdoor living room so it is an extension of a similar indoor function such as the dining or living room. It should not interfere with service areas or driveways and it should be enclosed to insure complete privacy.

SEASONAL EFFECTS

Interesting outdoor plants give a variety of seasonal effects that eliminate monotony associated with many plants used in the landscape. Use plants that are striking in color, form and texture.

But Neil says, "Remember, that a hodge - podge of plants that entangle and become lost in a mass of green is undesirable. Furnish your yard as you would select useful and beautiful furnishings for indoor areas."

Unstuffed, frozen turkeys should be almost completely thawed before cooking. The best way to thaw the Christmas bird is in its original wrapper in the refrigerator. To shorten thawing time, leave the turkey sealed in a water - tight wrapper and thaw in cold water from two to six hours. Change the water often. It is not safe to thaw a frozen turkey at room temperature according to our nutrition specialist. Ruby Whitehead. An eight pound turkey requires about 15 hours in the refrigerator to thaw enough to remove the giblets from the neck and body cavities.

For roasting, allow about 3½ to 5 hours for a 12 lb. turkey at 325 degrees F.

A THOUGHT

My thought for you this week is, to wish you the very merriest of the holiday season, carefully blended with friendship, lightly tossed with good cheer, thoroughly simmered with laughter, generously sprinkled with loving hearts and garnished with an abundance of pleasure of a Happy Family Life.

NEW FABRIC

There's a new material called Islon which has the look of suede, feels like velvet, yet is 100 per cent nylon. Because of its nylon content, it is said to have unusual abrasion resistance and long wearing capabilities, to be machine washable yet maintain its original appearance while color remains strong and true. It is claimed also to be easy to sew. Present uses are in upholstery, slipcovers, robes, dresses, blouses and men's jackets.

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, have not been satisfied with cleaning your steam iron with vinegar, there's a new cleaner on the market. It is called "Steem - up" and is a concentrated powder containing over 97 per cent of its active ingredient, amidosulfonic acid. The product is patented for metal protection; according to this manufacturer, it is nonfuming and nontoxic to the skin but will cause smarting on open cuts. Each cleaning requires one teaspoon of steem - up and will remove two grams calcuim carbonate scale. More scale will require repeated cleaning. Be sure to follow directions on container.

SNAPS

Silk covered snaps are being introduced on the market. These new snaps are designed to provide an invisible fastening for detachable fur trimming and for decorative touches which should be removed for laundry or dry cleaning. Silk covered snaps are available in two sizes and four colors — black, brown, gray, and white.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Many New Holly Types

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

As the many new kinds of holly in our gardens and on our lawns get big enough, they will begin to show up in Christmas decorations here in the south. The holly craze is only 10 to 15 years old now, but most of the specimens of the rare kinds are big enough to spare a branch or two for decorative purposes, and some of these hollies are beautiful, indeed.

One of the handsomest is Ilex latifolia. It is still rare in nurseries and few people have specimens of any size. When it becomes more plentiful, it will certainly grace our houses at Christmas time. The foliage is nearly the size of our southern magnolia's leaves. If you have not yet seen it, look for it in the holly collections around the south.

CHINA NATIVE

Ilex latifolia is native of China and was first described by Thunberg in his Flora of Japan in 1784. The foliage is saw - toothed in a coarse and beautiful way, very stiff, glossy and frequently turned and twisted on the branches in the most graceful manner. The new twigs are green, stiff and clean and easy to handle in decorations. Since the big shrubs are vigorous and produce a heavy crop of new growths each year, they will always supply you with ample material for cutting.

The small berries of this new holly are produced in bunches up and down the stem in a graceful manner. If you have Dr. Hume's book, "Hollies," you will find an illustration of it on page 220, but the color of the foliage is way off in this plate, and the beautiful saw-tooth edges do not show up properly.

PLENTY OF ROOM

Give this new holly plenty of room when you plant it on your grounds because it is a large shrub or small tree. It needs plenty of food and good soil to grow eight to 12 inches a year in height. Under good conditions, it may grow even faster, and you will be delighted with every new leaf it produces.

We have mentioned Ilex latifolia before in the column, and we have also mentioned the fine-leaved new holly called Foster's Hybrid Number Two. Nurserymen have hardly been able to propagate this one fast enough because of its popularity. It produces tremendous crops of berries which show up exceedingly well through the small prickly leaves. The total effect is that of a holly-leaf olive with red berries. In the Handbook of Hollies, published by The American Horticultural Society, 1600 Bladensburg Road, N.E., Washington 2, D.C., you will see several illustrations of Foster Number Two in arrangements with candles on page 178. The handbook is nearly out of print, now, and you had better order it at once, if you want a copy. It costs $3.

Tree Pest Control Is Explained

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

A measure of cankerworm control is possible without resorting to chemical spray. Apply a band of sticky material to the tree trunk. This will trap some of the wingless female moths as they crawl up the tree to deposit eggs.

The cankerworm is the small caterpiliar that swings from trees on silken threads at leafing time in the spring.

Apply a two-inch strip of cotton batting around the tree trunk about six feet off the ground, then cover this with a wider strip of tar paper and smear with a layer of "Tree Tanglefoot" or similar material. The cotton prevents the moths from sneaking under the band.

The best time to set the trap is mid-fall. The sticky substance should be renewed once or twice before the end of December, and again next April and May. The bands may be taken off in mid-June.

REUNION

There is a "family reunion" in the fall at the Morcom Amphitheater of Roses in Oakland, Calif. Peace and Alphine Glow are appearing with their glamorous debutante daughter, Tropicana, the striking orange - red hybrid tea rose that shares All-America honors for 1963.

Peace is the popular one of the parents. Gardeners are much less familiar with Alphine Glow.

Yule Services At St. Thomas

Christmas Eve services at St. Thomas Episcopal Church, 1308 Filhiol, will be held 11:15 p.m. Monday, it was announced by the Very Rev. R. W. Wilson, vicar.

At that time there will be a procession, carol singing, Holy Eucharist and a sermon.

Cornell Chews Vegetables, Poisons Bugs

To bring you more tender vegetables, researchers at Cornell University are chewing a number of varities by machine. They have fitted teeth to a shear press to check hardness, stringiness, toughness, rubberiness, crispness and mealiness. The gadget also will help determine relationships between vegetable texture and maturity.

In another experiment, using a sensitive instrument called an aktograph, Prof. Robert Patton can determine through tell-tale movements of insects how effective certain insecticides are.

For instance, he can check how long it takes an insect to be poisoned by neuromuscular chemicals (chemicals that affect the nervous system).

The device records twitching movements produced by the doses. Without the recording instrument, scientists would have to watch insects constantly for up to eight hours.

On Dit'

Decorations are more fun at Christmas than at any other time of the year. At this season, hostesses can give free rein to their imaginations, using an unlimited variety of types, styles, colors, ornaments, flowers—all suggestive of the holidays.

One of the most spectacular trees of the year is that at the WAYNE WARREN residence on Pargoud Boulevard. Dorcas hung a ceiling height Scotch pine with dozens and dozens of ornaments which she had made from plastic balls and yarn. The forms were wrapped in yarn in shades of pink, pale blues, and lavender and then encrusted with jewels and sequins. Leaves of felt and wrapped stems completed the effect of artificial fruit, hanging from the branches lighted with tiny twinkle lights.

Dorcas' tree was the center of interest when she invited a group of friends in for an informal party last Saturday afternoon. Twin refreshment tables were placed in the dining area and on the lanai for the party. Centering each was a silver candle-epergne filled with cream colored chrysanthemums accented with blue and green glittered fern. About one hundred ladies called between three and five.

Holiday decorations were everywhere in evidence in the DICK KELLOGG home on Pargoud Boulevard when Joyce and MILDRED VANDERPOOL entertained at a Christmas coffee Tuesday morning. Framing the front door was a swag of gilded pine cones, nuts, and foliage. In the entrance, where Joyce and Mildred stood to receive their guests, the stair rail was hung with gilded rope caught with green ribbon. Twin stylized trees of pine cones, artificial fruit, and wooden butterflies were placed on the consoles.

On the table in the library bay window, a large open Bible lay beside a hurricane glass holding red candles and red carnations . . . A gilded sleigh decorated the living room mantel, and angels of gilt and paper lace stood on tables about the room.

Spotlighted on the sunporch was the Christmas tree, flocked in white, and hung with dozens of tiny imported ornaments of straw or ceramic. Red apples were pyramided with holly sprigs on the large round coffee table.

Red roses in a silver bowl centered the dining room table. At each side stood trees holding tiny white angels. Coffee and spiced tea were served with rum cakes, chocolate balls, cheese almonds, tiny sandwiches, and salted almonds. Over two hundred ladies attended the party.

BETTY and JACK MABRAY entertained at a holiday open house last Saturday night. Betty wore for her party a dress of red brocade. Special guests in town for this affair were ROBIN and JOHN TRIMBLE of El Dorado, Arkansas; JEAN and ARNOLD TURNER of Jackson, Mississippi and MARY and JOHN MAIER of McGehee, Arkansas.

Focal point of living room decorations was the tree, which stood in the bay window. Flocked with white, it was tied with green balls and green ribbon. Three angels dressed in green stood on the mantel . . . In the library, four red velvet stockings hung above the fireplace, with boy and girl figures dressed in red pajamas seated on the mantel. A red velvet tree decorated with gingerbread cookies hung on the chimneypiece.

Punch was served in the family room, where bubble candles in graduated sizes decorated the table . . . Centering the dining room table was a crystal epergne filled with ice roses. The buffet menu included ham, turkey, cheeses, and petit fours.

An unusual party this week was the "Fruit-basket-Turnover" planned by the HAROLD WOODS and the G. L. MORGANS, next - door neighbors on Pargoud Boulevard. A small group of friends were invited to both houses, with horns blown at the half-way point to remind those in each to proceed to the other. Bernice made clever use of the chandelier which hangs over the center of the Woods' dining table: filled with scarlet gladioli and holly berries, it became both centerpiece and conversation piece.

Next door, at the Morgans, giant red poinsettias in the flower beds and a red carpet at the door highlighted the entrance. Louise used a banzai tree with miniature lights in the entrance, and an antique candelabra with pine branches in the den. Red carnations centered the dining table.

An unusual color scheme of gold, aqua, and orange was carried out when the MARVIN BANKS were hosts for dinner last Sunday night. Gilded magnolia leaves and myriads of candles were used in the living room. The footed punch bowl, encircled with gold chrysanthemums and gold balls, stood on a round table. Jan served a varied assortment of hors d'oeuvres, both hot and cold, representing her recipes collected in various locales where the Banks have lived.

Dinner was served in the den. The menu included barbecued chicken, ham, string bean casserole, potatoes delmonico, green salad with toasted almonds and Parmesan cheese, and a choice of coffee cake or lemon cake. The twenty - five guests included department heads of Marvin's business, and their wives.

Arriving today for a Christmas visit are BIRDIE, MARGERY, and ROSLYN ARBOUR of Baton Rouge; and the PURCELL WALLACES of Shreveport. They will be guests of BLANCHE OLIVER, BELLE and CLARENCE OAKLEY, and McVEA OLIVER until Thursday.

A Christmas cruise is the exciting holiday for ZANONA and CLIFTON FLINN. They left Monroe on Thursday for Miami, and sailed on Friday aboard the S. S. Evangeline. The planned itinerary includes stops at Jamaica, Haiti, and Nassau, with Christmas Day to be spent in Haiti.

Very young miss VADA CANN was honored on her seventh birthday with a luncheon at home last Saturday. A strip of "snow" ran down the center of the dining table, with Santa riding thereon in his sleigh pulled by reindeer. Vada wore for her party a black and white checked dress with black velvet trim. Ten little girls were served a luncheon of creamed chicken, shoestring potatoes, and pear half, with pink birthday cake for dessert.

Also seven years old, MIKE M'GOUGH celebrated with a football party. Twelve little friends took part in an afternoon of games, with prizes going to GREG TIDWELL, MIKE HUSTED, and JOHN GIFFEN. Refreshments included ice cream in the shape of a Christmas tree and birthday cake decorated with a football.

KAPPA DELTA ALUMNAE in Monroe are planning a morning party this coming Thursday morning, honoring new pledges of the sorority who will be home from college. The home of SARAH RHYMES is to be scene of the affair between the hours of ten-thirty and twelve. Alumnae from the surrounding area, and those new in the locality, are invited as well as members of the active chapters who will be in town.

A picture show party honored GUS CHAMBERS on his eleventh birthday last Saturday afternoon. A group of seven boys went together to the double feature, and then to Gus' home for hamburgers, potato chips, soft drinks, birthday cake and ice cream.

On her sixteenth birthday, CONNIE YANCEY was surprised with a luncheon on the porch at Bayou DeSiard country club. Eleven guests were seated with the honoree at the green - covered table. A black wrought iron tree ornamented with holly and red candles formed the centerpiece. Fried chicken and asparagus were served, with strawberry parfait for dessert.

Seventeen girls of the eighth grade set were invited to a conversational hour in the home of MARY PRICE last Saturday morning. A traditional Christmas tree in the window was the focal point in the living room, with figures of the Three Wise Men used on a side table. A gumdrop tree decorated the buffet counter where dips, cookies, and other finger foods were set out. Favors were miniature boxes of candy.

New translations of the Bible are readable, easily understood, and doubtless fine in many ways. But for sheer majesty of language, we quote from the King James version:

And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed. And all went to be taxed, everyone into his own city.

And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, because he was of the house and lineage of David. To be taxed with Mary, his espoused wife, being great with child.

And so it was that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in the manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

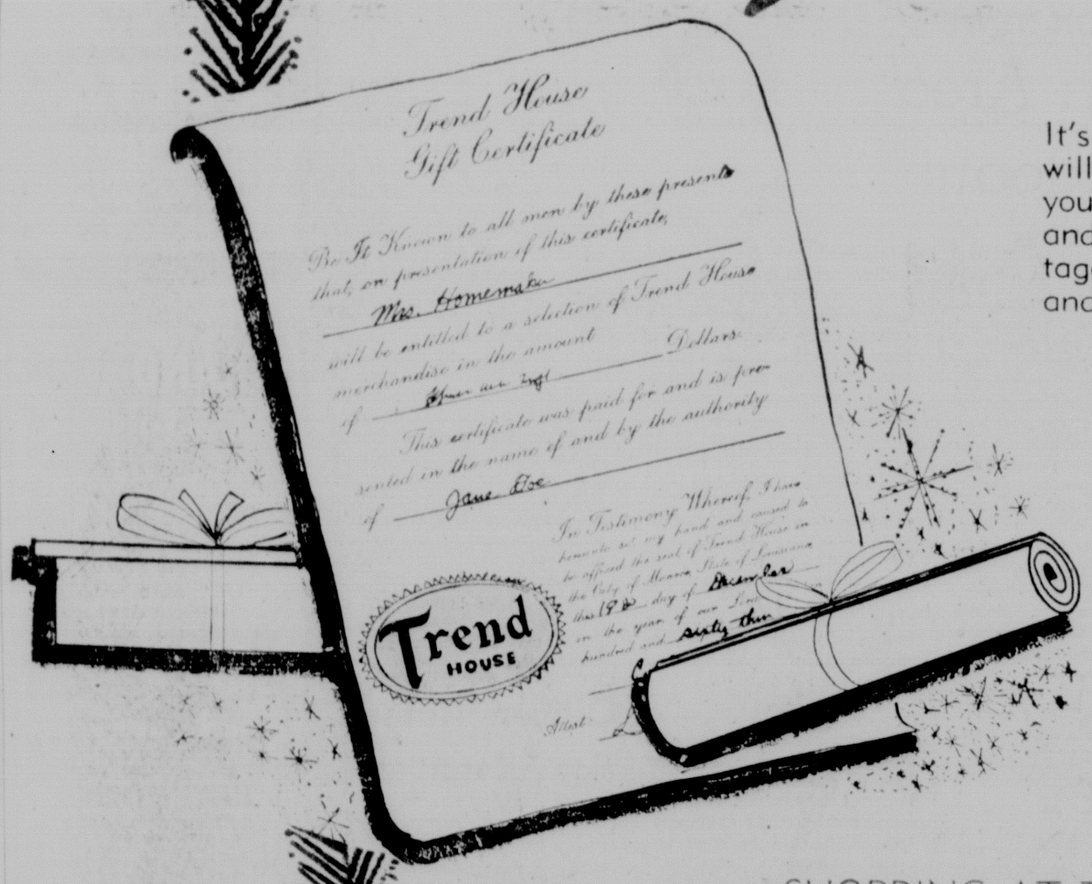

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

BIRTH OF CHRIST RETOLD

Roman First Ridicules, Then Kneels In Homage

EDITOR'S NOTE — The wondrous story of the birth of Christ has been retold a thousand times. But here, in a special Christmas feature, is the tale of a proud Roman tribune who at first ridiculed, then kneeled before, the newborn Christ.

From the Palatium in Rome he came, on the business of the emperor and bearing the exalted title of Tribunus Plebis, Tribune of the People.

His name was Gaius Cassius Velutus, and he sat himself down at the long table in the court yard with the Levite Tobias, clerk of the synagogue. Here, in splendid miniature, shone the glory of Rome's orderly system of government: always work as closely as possible with the native chieftains; without, of course, surrendering any of the emperor's authority.

"So this is Bethlehem, the city of David," said the young tribune, opening the scroll across the length of the table and writing the name of the town at the top. "It's not much of a place, is it."

"No," agreed the Levite. "It's not very much. Sheep herding is the main occupation, but we do have a few tradesmen, and the inn there, at the top of the street, does well in the summer months when the camel caravans pass through on their way to Jerusalem."

The Roman officer cast a tolerant eye over the narrow, winding streets and the snug white houses glistening in the morning sun against the purple backdrop of the soft Judean hills. No match for Rome, surely, but a pleasant place nonetheless.

"I suppose this Bethlehem has a history, most places do, you know," he said with a condescending smile.

The Levite, an elderly shriveled man not used to conversing with emissaries from pagan Rome, stroked his beard nervously. "Bethlehem, a history? I'm afraid the people here think more in terms of the future than the past."

"The future!" interrupted the tribune in genuine surprise. "Why what future can there be in this neglected outpost of empire?"

The hands of old Tobias shook quite noticeably and his answer came with stammering hesitation. "Begging your pardon, oh Tribune of the People, but as you know Rome's gods are not our gods. We believe in but one God, the Great God Jehovah, who promised long ago to send a redeemer to free the world from the bondage of sin. It was one of Jehovah's prophets, a holy man named Michaes, who predicted great things for Bethlehem."

"And what great things did he predict?" asked the tribune, greatly amused by the turn of the conversation.

"I will tell you in his own words, as they are writ in the Holy Book: 'And thou Bethelen, in the land of Judah, art not the least among the princes of Judah; for out of thee shall come forth a ruler who shall rule my people Israel.'"

Gaius Cassius could suppress no longer the laughter that had been fighting to burst forth from the moment the old man closed his eyes to intone the prophecy.

"And what thinks your King Herod of this talk of a new ruler appearing in Israel?"

"Those who have of late been to Jerusalem," replied Tobias, lowering his voice and glancing furtively about, "say a great change has come over him. They say he is worried and irritable, and that daily he consults with his astronomers and mathematicians about a new star which has moved into the constellation of the fishes and which grows brighter each successive night."

This time the tribune's laugh was more indulgent and less ridiculing.

"I can assure you," he said, "that the Emperor Caesar Agustus sits secure in his mansion on the Palatine Hill, untroubled by any rumors of new rulers and new stars over Bethlehem. It matters little to him whether Herod or some other figurehead sits on the throne of Israel, so long as his governor, Cyrenius of Syria, is obeyed and the Jewish people are kept in line."

Tribune Gaius Cassius Velutus tugged at the folds of his toga importantly and ruffled the scrolls on the table with a businesslike flourish.

"The emperor's sole concern with Bethlehem," he announced, with a rising inflection in his voice that denoted idle conversation was at an end, "is that its tax rolls should be brought up to date and that everyone here, and indeed everyone throughout the entire world, should be enrolled. So let us proceed with the business of Caesar Augustus. Who is the first in line?"

The Levite squinted at the scrolls. "Today we are enrolling the districts around the Sea of Galilee, where many of the poor families of the tribe of David have their homes."

"Very well, have the first head of a family step to the table."

The first man in line was a fisherman; the second was a builder, and the third a shepherd, as were the fourth and the fifth. And so it went throughout the long morning and even longer afternoon, with rabbis and publicans, herdmen and tradesmen, scribes, goat herders, farmers, drovers, hostlers, all come to be enrolled according to the decree of the emperor. At times the line stretched all the way around the inn and down the narrow lane where the merchants spread their tables.

The sun already had vanished behind the darkening hills when the mild-eyed man in the dust-streaked russet robe approached the table.

"Name, please?" asked Gaius Cassius.

"Joseph, son of Jacob."

"Occupation?"

"Carpenter at Nazareth in Galilee."

"Married?"

"Yes. To Mary, daughter of Joachim and Anne."

"Any children?"

"My wife is now with child," said Joseph in a hushed voice. "I must hurry back. Her time is at hand."

The tribune, feeling compassion for this gentle man, hurried through the remaining questions. Joseph, he learned, had no property beyond his shop and tools at Nazareth and the little donkey that accompanied them to Bethelehem.

"That will be all, thank you. And, oh yes, one thing, before we close out our rolls here, I will send a legate to inquire after the baby's name and sex. I presume we can contact you at the inn?"

"No," said Joseph. "There was no room at the inn. The boy will be born in an abandoned stable at the edge of the city."

"Boy! How do you know it will be a boy?"

The question seemed to come from both the Tribune and the Levite at the same time.

"I know. God has told us," Joseph answered softly. And with that, he was gone.

The emperor's officer shook his head in dismay. "No wonder the people around here are possessed by prophecies. There, indeed, was a strange one. What was it he called himself?"

"Joseph, son of Jacob," replied old Tobias.

That night the crowded old inn rang with merriment, but Gaius Cassius brooded alone at a back table.

For some unexplained reason, the vision of the gentle-faced man in the russet robe kept swimming into his consciouness.

"I must get some air," he said, summoning the waiter with a snap of his fingers.

The narrow streets were all but deserted, and the wind had died to a whisper.

Climbing the little hill behind the inn, the tribune saw the rooftops of Bethlehem bathed in the eerie light of what he thought, at first, was a new moon. But there was no moon. Old Tobias was right. Something strange was happening in the constellation of the fishes. Jupiter and Saturn, so it seemed to the naked eye, had joined together to form one enormous star.

When his eyes became adjusted to the pearly iridescence of the night, he saw a great movement of people down from the mountain.

"Shepherds," he called out, "why are you abandoning your flocks? Is there a flood or an avalanche coming?"

Only a small boy, carrying a lamb on his shoulder, slowed up to answer his question.

"Sir," he said, "an angel has appeared to us in the fields and told us the Savior is born to us this night. We are on our way to adore him in yonder stable at the foot of the hill. Come, join us."

Gaius Cassius declined the invitation but continued to watch from afar.

"These shepherds," he concluded in disgust, "have surrendered their sanity to black superstition. It is the tragedy, no doubt, of so solitary a life among the flocks on the mountain.

Still, one must admit, they do sing beautifully. Never have I heard such singing as echoes through these hills this night."

The tribune made his way back to the inn in agreatly agitated frame of mind. Suddnely he was weary of wandering in remote lands and seized with a great loneliness. He was more anxious than ever to get back to Rome and away from the haunting looks in the faces of these strangers.

It took nearly two weeks to close out the rolls of Bethlehem. On the twelfth day, the tribune was ready to bid farewell to the levite when it occured to them that a legate had not been sent, as promised, to inquire about the heir of the carpenter from Nazareth.

"I will go myself," Gaius Cassius decided. "It will amuse to know whether it was a boy after all."

The conjunction of the two planets still flooded the hills in silvery luminescense, as he made his way down the narrow lane toward the abandoned stable, but something in the distance caused him to pull his horse up short.

Through the barren branches of an olive tree, the tribune watched a caravan of richly caparisoned camels, and 40 dislodge three scarcely armed riders. Curiously, he approached and traded introductions.

"I am Balthasar, from the kingdoms of the Nile," said the black-skinned one. "My saddle bags are filled with frankincense as gift for the little king who was born in the stable there, where the star sits."

"I am Melchior, from the kingdom of sand and sun beyond the Euphrates. Gold have I brought from our treasure house to welcome the new-born king," said the white-haired old man in the high, pointed cap.

"And I am Caspar, from the far-off land where the sun comes up and where the pungent myrrh hangs high on the bushes, giving forth an aroma fit for the burial of kings," said the little man with the almond eyes and the high cheek bones.

Matthew wrote the simple details of that first twelfth night, but lovely old legends have embellished the story.

Those who were there that night, so the legends imply, say that three kings from far off lands knelt in homage to the tiny babe, who nestled happily in his mother's lap while Joseph looked on proudly and protectingly.

They say the ass and ox knelt in the stall that night, and that deep in the forests the lion lay down with the lamb.

There are those who say that deep in the dark shadows of the stable, near the door and out of sight, another king knelt in absentia.

Gaius Cassius Velutus, tribune of the people, taker of the census, emissary from the Palatium, took it upon himself to kneel and adore upon behalf of his king, the mighty emperor Caesar Augustus.

OVER POLARIS DEAL

Macmillan Faces Fight Of His Life

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan comes back from the Caribbean sunshine Sunday to face the fight of his life before a nation disturbed and divided about his nuclear new deal with President Kenney.

Macmillan's decision to switch Britain's H-bombs from its air force to submarines and to link this deterrent with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization brought criticism from every side.

Among the toughest critics were newspapers which normally support the Conservative government. They saw the Macmillan-Kennedy agreement as the end of Britain's nuclear independence and of its special position as first of the equals among America's allies.

Nor were ruffled feelings soothed by news that the Skybolt missile, which Britain had hoped would extend her airborne deterrent into the 1970s, had been successfully fired Saturday at Cape Canaveral. The firing came less than 24 hours after Macmillan agreed with Kennedy that Skybolt would be both too costly and ineffective and accepted instead an eventual supply of Polaris missiles to be mounted in British-built submarines.

Officially the Defense Ministry is "quite happy" with the Polaris deal and was making little comment on the new Skybolt test success. A spokesman said only that the American authorities "quite rightly cancelled the project on the evidence which they had."

But Moscow was quick to comment on the successful Skybolt test. A commentary by the Soviet news agency Tass said Saturday:

"This is the same Skybolt rocket which was rejected yesterday by Kennedy and Macmillan. The British bombers which were to carry it will soon grow obsolete. Hundreds of millions of pounds have been spent for nothing and Britain will have to spend hundreds of millions more to produce Polaris submarines or buy them from the United States."

Defense Minister Peter Thorneycroft, returning from the Nassau talks, defended the agreement right down the line.

"It is a formidable deterrent and an addition to the armory of Britain and the Western alliance and as such is good for nothing," he said.

The agreement, a Cabinet decision which theoretically does not require Parliament approval. But it is certain to be hotly debated soon after Parliament returns from the Christmas recess Jan. 23.

The opposition Labor party and the Liberals already have denounced the agreement. But Macmillan may face greater embarrassment from right wing members of his own Conservative party.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express denounced the agreement under a terse banner headline: "The sell-out."

The paper's defense expert, Chapman Pincher, wrote: "The Nassau communique is an absolute victory for President Kennedy and a complete sell-out of British interest."

The Daily Telegraph, Conservative, asked editorially if Britain should not decide to go it alone and build its own missiles for its own nuclear warheads.

Holiday Quiet Still Pevails In Twin Cities

Local police activities remained relatively quiet Saturday, but with the holidays just two days away officers were doubling up on patrols in an effort to cut down on wrecks and burglaries in the Twin Cities and the parish.

The West Monroe department booked a 35-year-old man, J. D. Burns, Rt. 1, Box 199A, West Monroe, for theft by check early Saturday morning. Burns was booked for theft of merchandise and cash valued at $20, by allegedly issuing a worthless check to a West Monroe grocery store.

The West Monroe department also reported a West Monroe man, W. A. (Tim) Johnston, 708 Lazarre St., in critical condition at St. Francis hospital after a car fell on him Saturday afternoon.

The man reportedly was working on an automobile up on jacks when the jack broke. He suffered a fractured skull and transmission strike pressure to the head. He was given emergency surgery Saturday and hospital officials said that Saturday night he was "barely holding his own."

The Monroe department booked three persons on traffic violations ranging from speeding to driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages early Saturday morning.

At 1:30 a.m., Ather D. Garvan, 36, 1100 S. 3rd St., Monroe, was booked for DWI and reckless driving after being taken into custody at Bright and Jackson Streets. Harry R. Woods, 36, 224 Moreland St., West Monroe, was booked for DWI, reckless driving and speeding at 2:50 a.m. He was apprehended at DeSiard and South Grand Streets. Former U.S. Attorney Shot In Head, Dies

MOBILE (UPI)—Edward (Bud) Turner, 55, a former assistant U. S. attorney here and former 1st circuit solicitor, was shot to death early Saturday in a house trailer at Citronelle.

Police said Mrs. Turner was held for questioning.

Hospital attendants said Turner was shot in the head, was admitted to a Mobile hospital at 4:25 a.m. and died two and one half hours later.

Officers said Mrs. Turner told them Turner was wounded in a scuffle over a 22-caliber pistol in their house trailer.

Chief investigator Dudley McFadyen said the shooting happened after Mr. and Mrs. Turner visited a Citronelle tavern. The pistol was identified as belonging to Turner, McFadyen said.

Target Is Hit Despite Decoys

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Nike Zeus antimissile missile successfully intercepted Saturday the first ICBM target using decoys in a Pacific test, the Army announced.

A salvo of two Zeus missiles was fired against the target and its decoys, but one of the Zeus missiles developed trouble after launching and was destroyed, the announcement said.

The Army announcement did not say how many decoys were in the Atlas missile which was lofted from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. It was sent about 5,000 miles to the area of Kwajelein Island, where the Zeus weapons were launched.

INTERNAL PROBLEMS

News Of China Dissention Leaks Through Curtain

EDITORS NOTE: What is life like today in Communist China? Few Westerners are permitted to enter China and they usually have little opportunity to see the countryside or talk to the average Chinese. Lately, however, increasing criticism of Red China's internal problems have been printed in publications which find their way to the outside world. In the following dispatch, a veteran foreign correspondent cites some examples of recent complaints.)

By CHARLES R. SMITH
United Press International

TOKYO (UPI) — One morning last June, while darkness still covered Shu Chang County in Communist China's Anhwei Province, 50-year-old Chang Hsing-Chang arose earlier than usual.

He stole quietly to headquarters of the Lofeng Red people's commune and left a letter in the crack of the door.

He returned home quickly and prepared for another day of back-breaking digging at the Hsiangkuzu Reservoir which his production team was helping build.

When commune chief Tzu Ko-Ting opened the door to his office that morning, the letter fell to the ground. It was for him.

According to the official Peking People's Daily newspaper, Tzu was startled by the unsigned letter because it criticized him, his high-handed methods and commune policies.

The letter also complained of "certain" shortages.

Tzu did what any good Communist should, the People's Daily indicated. He indulged in "self criticism" before the peasants. He "rectified" his thinking and high handed methods. But he also "patiently explained" — and the peasants understood, said the People's Daily—the reason for the commune policies that came from the Communist party bosses in Peking.

It was only after Tzu did all this that Chang admitted he delivered the anonymous letter.

"Had we known secretary Tzu was that serious in handling the people's letters, Chang said, "there would have been no need for me to deliver the letter un[illegible]."

Later in the year, when the autumn harvest was getting under way across the vast China mainland, chairman Mao Tse-Tung and other Communist party leaders ended a conference in Peking with a communique.

It said: "The actual harvest of summer crops this year has shown a slight gain over that of last year, and the yield of autumn crops is also expected to register an increase."

This did not mean, the communique warned, that food shortages would end, that things would get better for the nation's 650 million people.

"Certain difficulties still exist," it said, and will continue to exist "for a period of time."

The members of the Shih Chuang production brigade of the Yungnien county people's commune in Hopej Province got the message more bluntly.

Although the brigade's production was up during the year, the members cannot expect an increase in income, food, fertilizer, equipment or supplies, said the Hopej daily newspaper and the Shih-Shih Shou-Tse (current affairs) magazine.

The stated reasons were the brigade's uneconomical practices, failure to follow policies from above, and greater needs elsewhere.

The publication of numerous such items in authoritative Red Chinese publications are significant to students of Red Chinese affairs.

Combined with information from refugees, visitors to Chinand other sources, they make it possible to draw some conclusions on life behind the Bamboo Curtain.

For instance, Chang's letter—and the many others like it—gives a fairly clear indication that life is hard, income is low and food is short for the peasants. Conditions are not much better in the cities.

It also can be interpreted as an indication that discontent is wide spread, that authorities are permitting—perhaps even encouraging—some letting off of steam and reacting positively to criticism in some cases.

Along with this, however, has been a stringent clampdown on internal security. There has been an acknowledged shakeup of Red China's internal security forces. There has been an increase in training and indoctrination of the militia, which numbers in the tens of millions and provides a ready manpower pool that can be tapped quickly by the regular army in time of need.

There also has been an increase in external security, particularly in connection with the border conflict with India and fear of subversion and invasion by Nationalist Chinese forces from nearby Formosa.

But, as far as is known here, there has been no increase in the size of the estimated 2.5 million man regular people's liberation army.

The youth of China have been the main target of some of the Peking regime's most spirited recent campaigns. These include a back to the farm movement and a revival of birth control.

"Many young comrades are now warmly discussing the question of going to take part in agricultural production," the Chung-Kuo Ching-Nien (China Youth) magazine said.

This perhaps was best illustrated by a cartoon in the June 16 issue of the Kwangming daily showing a young couple with four children, all looking miserable. A commentary about the cartoon said: "This picture reminds us of the really many young peoples, in their early 20's and because of their early marriage, have a large number of children. Every day they are tormented by household affairs. All this misery is brought about by early marriage."

Twin Cities Police Warn On Fireworks

Twin City police chiefs warned residents Saturday that it is a violation of the law to sell or shoot any type of fireworks inside either of the city's limits.

Monroe Police Chief James Kelly and West Monroe Chief Jeff Caldwell said that both departments have already received complaints concerning the selling and shooting of fireworks inside the city limits.

Both men said that if anyone is caught violating the fireworks law in any way — selling or discharging firecrackers, etc., — they will be prosecuted.

Chief Caldwell pointed out that to sell or fire any type of fireworks, a person must be located at least 300 feet outside the city limits in West Monroe. Chief Kelly said the same law applies in Monroe.

Both chiefs once again warned shoppers, doing their last minute purchasing on Monday, Christmas Eve, to lock their cars when packages are left inside. Kelly said that if possible, packages should be locked in the trunk of an automobile, as the number of articles being stolen from cars is rapidly rising.

Drivers and pedestrians are warned to be extra careful during the driving rush. Kelly and Caldwell urged pedestrians to cross streets only where crosswalks are shown, or where police officers direct people to cross. Drivers are warned to obey traffic laws and be on the lookout for small children who may dart from between cars unexpectedly. One small Negro child, 4-year-old Patricia Ann Witherspoon, F-22-D Foster Homes, sustained injuries when she darted into the side of a truck in Monroe on Swayze Street Saturday morning. She was treated at E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital, and no charges were filed in the accident. She was struck by a truck driven by Joey R. White, 20, 2319 S. Grand St., Monroe, who was driving south on Swayze Street.

NEW UNION PROPOSAL

Hope Of Averting Strike By Longshoremen Raised

NEW YORK (AP)—A new union proposal on the chief point in dispute raised hopes Saturday of averting a strike of 60,000 longshoremen on Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

The International Longshoremen's Association is threatening to call its members off docks from Searsport, Maine, to Brownsville, Tex., unless agreement on a new contract is reached by 5 p.m. Sunday.

A new offer by the union would submit the size of work crews to an impartial study committee and allow a two-year contract to be negotiated on other issues.

The size of the work gangs has been the main stumbling block in the talks.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz earlier this week proposed a one-year contract with the work issue submitted to a study committee. Both sides rejected the move.

Saturday, however, the shipowners said they would agree to Wirtz' proposal, but are opposed to a two-year contract.

Alexander P. Chopin, chairman of the New York Shipping Association, said: "We are opposed to a two-year contract on the grounds that it would only postpone the featherbedding issue."

He also said in answer to the new proposal that, "All of the union's original exorbitant demands are still on the table."

A Taft-Hartley Act injunction halted a four-day strike by the union on Atlantic and Gulf coasts last October. An 80-day cooling-off period under the injunction expires Sunday.

Thomas W. Gleason, executive vice president of the union, said he was "optimistic by nature and hope the operators will accept our proposal, which we think will avert a strike."

"Our approach," he explained, "is that all of those things upon which we do not agree will be incorporated into the new contract for study."

The shipping association is representing 135 firms in the bargaining talks which until Saturday had shown no signs of progress.

With New York already hit by a strike of its nine major newspapers, a longshoremen's walkout would sharply affect the city's economy.

Seven other maritime unions respected picket lines of the longshoremen in the October walkout and shipping was tied up here and elsewhere in the East and South.

PARISH SHERIFF

Six Burglaries Reported Clear

Six burglaries involving approximately $300 to $500 worth of goods were cleared Saturday by the Ouachita Parish sheriff's department with the apprehension of a Monroe Negro.

Sheriff Bailey Grant said that Otis Foy, 41, of 54-A Carver Homes, Texas Avenue, has admitted five burglaries of Ritchie Grocery Company trucks, and warehouse and a sixth burglary of a Sterlington Dress Shop.

Foy, an employee of the grocery company, said the breakins of three loaded trucks on separate occasions and two separate burglaries of the warehouse occurred over the pass two months. In each incident, he admitted taking from 20 to 30 cartons or cases of cigarettes.

The Negro also admits the Dec. 15 burglary of Nale's Dress Shop, Sterlington, when around $150 worth of children's clothing was taken. The sheriff's department recovered part of the merchandise taken in that break-in, and stated that most of it was soiled.

Foy is being held in the parish jail on six separate counts of burglary. No bond had been set late Saturday.

Attorney Selected For Barnett Case

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Justice Department Saturday named a prominent Texas attorney to handle its criminal contempt case against Mississippi's Gov. Ross Barnett and Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr.

He is Leon Jaworski of Houston, president of the State Bar of Texas and immediate past president of the American College of Trial Attorneys.

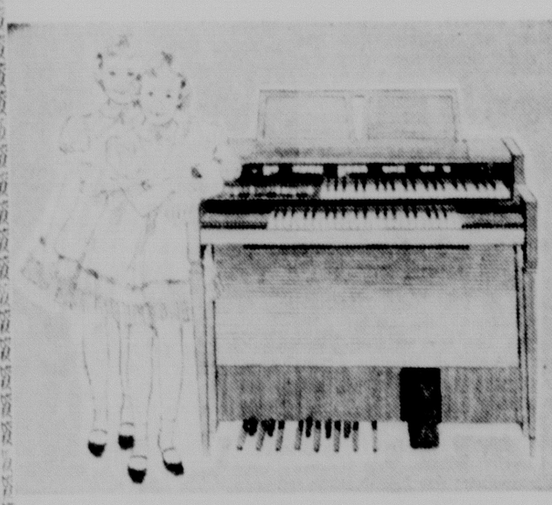

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, announcing the appointment, said outside counsel was obtained because a number of justice department officials were involved in negotiations with the governor during the crisis over the admission of Negro student James H. Meredith to the University of Mississippi last September.

"As a result they might very well be called as witnesses in the contempt proceedings," Kennedy said in a statement.

The Justice Department Friday asked the federal court of appeals in New Orleans to hold Barnett and Johnson in criminal contempt for attempting to block Meredith's enrollment.

Jaworski, 57, will serve as a special U.S. Counsel. Jaworski obtained his bachelor of laws degree from Baylor University in 1925 and master of laws from George Washington University in 1926.

Big Soviet Spy Scare Spreading

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union's big spy scare spread Saturday. A Russian physics teacher with a love of abstract art was accused of passing secrets to the Americans and a West German tourist was expelled for photographing defense objects.

The latest accusations brought to 11 the number of persons named in seven weeks as part of a vast Anglo-American spy ring involving at least five members of the U.S. Embassy staff here and which is expected to result in a U2-type showcase trial.

In addition to two American Embassy officials expelled some months ago the Russians now have implicated five Americans, a British businessman, a "twist crazy" Soviet scientist, a Soviet Army officer, and a German woman.

There have been charges in the press that American agents have infiltrated the Soviet armed forces. The growing spy scare was linked with the so-called reorganization and purging of Stalinists from Soviet security police forces.

The new accusations were contained in the Dec. 20 issue of the newspaper Leningrad Pravda which reached Moscow Saturday.

The physics teacher was identified as Rudolph Friedman and Leningrad Pravda said he became involved in espionage when an American agent struck up a conversation with him while Friedman was "skeptically" viewing paintings in the Leningrad Museum.

The paintings were of the officially approved school of "socialism realism" which is as apt to feature sunrise over a hydroelectric plant as anything else. Abstract art has been heavily criticized by Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and other top officials.

Leningrad Pravda said the two men struck up a conversation and immediately discovered they had similar tastes" for abstract art which Khrushchev has said looks as if it might have been swished on "with the tail of a donkey."

Pravda said Friedman began corresponding with the American who sent him books and literature on modern art from the United States which carried espionage instructions in "invisible ink."

Friedman purportedly received instructions on becoming a spy in the jacket of an American history book. He was caught "on the verge of writing a letter by special means, the contents of which were very far from discussing the theory of abstract art," Pravda said.

The West German tourist was identified as Helmuth Kemmerer and Pravda said he was arrested while trying to photograph a "defense object" and expelled 24 hours later.

Meanwhile, it was understood the three embassy staff members implicated by the Soviet press in the alleged Anglo-American spy network would remain here unless Russia formally orders their expulsion.

Those involved are Capt. Alexis H. Davison, 31, of Atlanta, Ga., the embassy doctor and assistant air attache; Security Officer Hugh Montgomery, 39, of Springfield, Mass.; Second Secretary Richard K. German, 35, of Dallas, Tex.

Two other American diplomats named earlier have left the Soviet Union. One was expelled and the other left voluntarily with his family after being named in the Soviet press.

Princess Late, Train Waits

LONDON (AP) — Little Prince Andrew waited anxiously on the train platform. His big brother Charles, the Prince of Wales, peered from a window. Queen Elizabeth II tapped a foot nervously.

"Where's Auntie?" Andrew inquired of a hovering porter.

Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, were holding up the whole Eastern Division of British Railways.

The royal train was ready to start for Sandringham.

Finally Margaret, a mink coat over one arm, rushed up with Snowdon.

"Our car was held up in traffic," she explained.

Despite the trouble, the train got to Sandringham, the site of a royal estate, one minute early Saturday.

Colored Youth Crusade Slated

The first annual interdenominational colored Youth Crusade is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Wednesday at Liller Marble's Recreation Center, 2950 Renwick, it was announced Saturday by Rebecca Bose, meeting director.

She said some 1,000 youths from the Twin Cities area are expected to attend the event which is sponsored by business, professional and church leaders of the district. A Mehtodist minister, the Rev. Edward Jackson, will deliver the message of dedication.

EXTEND COVERAGE

CHICAGO (UPI) — Nationwide insuring organizations are making new efforts to extend health insurance coverage to persons 65 years of age and older who are not yet covered, according to the Health Insurance Institute.

Barnett Pledge On Teacher Pay Hike Fulfilled

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gov. Ross Barnett's campaign promise to increase teacher salaries has been legally fulfilled although educators must wait until July to receive the benefits while weary legislators look to the fugure to provide the necessary money.

Lawmakers ended their third legislative session of the year late Friday after granting Barnett's requests for reapportionment, teacher pay raises and a hike in welfare benefits.

This second special session—lasting six weeks — cost the state nearly $500,000 while appropriations for two financial bills tagged another $5.75 million for use.

Financial leaders, although opposed to the increases, talked lawmakers into delaying the effecting date of both teacher and welfare bills until July 1, 1963 in hopes the treasury balance would build up.

Before the legislature quit work at 5 p.m. Friday to allow Barnett to sign the bills, a special recess study committee was set up to recommend laws permitting sheriffs to succeed themselves in office when stripped of tax collecting duties.

Reapportionment was the main subject in the session called Nov. 13. The Mississippi Legislature has not been reapportioned since adoption of the 1890 constitution.

Lawmakers passed a plan that calls for a 122-member House and a 52-member Senate compared with chambers of 140 and 49 members now. The plan will be submitted to the voters Feb. 5 for ratification.

Another special session seems likely in late February for lawmakers to draw up supporting laws if the new apportionment proposal is accepted. With this in mind, the legislature told the sheriff's study committee to be prepared to report back Feb. 6.

SOME SYSTEM!

NEW YORK (UPI) — Less than 50 years ago, claims Modern Bride Magazine, small villages in rural Russia "decorated" their Christmas tree with prospective brides.

The eligible males would circle the tree and choose the girl they wanted to marry.

DIPLOMATS CONVINCED

Crisis Produces Historic Result

LONDON (AP) — Diplomats in Western Europe are convinced the Cuban crisis produced one startling, historic result. Washington and Moscow understand each other better now.

This does not mean the cold war is over or even beginning to thaw, the informants said. But it does definitely indicate the world is a safer place to live in now than it was six months or a year ago.

President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev went through a unique test of wills on the Cuban crisis. The question of who won that encounter is for historians to argue over. It has little immediate relevance to the way diplomats view the road ahead.

More important is the fact that Kennedy and Khrushchev vividly learned important lessons which may influence their own behavior in the future.

First, both men realize more clearly now than ever before how strong they are—how each of them commands more power than the leaders of all the world's other nations combined.

Second, Kennedy and Khrushchev in their own public pronouncements have stressed the finality and horror of a nuclear exchange. Each man has indicated he believes the other man thinks the same way.

Third, Cuba seems to have proved to Moscow there are certain basic interests which the United States will always protect. The converse of that proposition probably also applies, Western diplomats believe.

Does all this mean that Spring will come early in 1963 as far as East-West relations are concerned? Not necessarily, say the diplomats of Britain, France and West Germany.

There are some hopeful signs and some gloomy ones.

In the end the Soviets removed their nuclear punch from Cuba, but they never lived up to any commitment to allow independent verification that this had been done.

At Geneva the Soviet attitude on suspension of nuclear weapon tests and general disarmament was still a blanket refusal to allow on-site inspection to guarantee that arms agreements are being observed.

But the Russians and the East Germans are being quiet over Berlin—the old and perhaps most dangerous flash point of all. One Western diplomat said, "A quiet time in Berlin can be regarded as a good time."

In Washington, London, Paris and Bonn experts are analyzing the speech Khrushchev made Dec. 12 to the Supreme Soviet in Moscow.

The Soviet leader condemned war as an instrument of policy and said it was a form of madness which had nothing in common with the teachings of Marx and Lenin.

"Reasonable standards of international relations exist and we must not undermine but strengthen them," he said. "Cursing does not settle disptued issues."

In the same speech he said those (the Red Chinese) who refer to the West as a paper tiger must remember that this same tiger has atomic teeth. Khrushchev added.

"It is possible in the relations with the imperialist (Western) countries to make reciprocal compromises, while, on the other hand, having all the means to smash the aggressors should they unleash war."

President Kennedy in his broadcast interview this week referred several times to Khrushchev's remarks.

As the President sees it, Khrushchev does not wish the West well and will keep hammering the Western positions by all means short of total war.

But even so Khrushchev is regarded as a less dangerous man to deal with than Mao Tze-tung. Khrushchev knows nuclear war means mass destruction almost beyond the ability of the human mind to comprehend. The Chinese Communists are not demonstrating that they have learned that lesson.

"We would be far worse off—the world would be—if the Chinese dominated the Communist movement, because they believe in war as the means of bringing about the Communist world," Kennedy said.

He added that it was obvious "we are better off with the Khrushchev view than we are with the Chinese Communist view."

Kennedy also said he thought Khrushchev understood now that West Berlin is a vital interest to the West. The President added that Khrushchev "has a very vital interest in East Germany."

Western European diplomats say the speeches of Kennedy and Khrushchev, taken together, show that the two big leaders clearly understand where it is dangerous to step on each other's toes.

Push-Button Age Reaches Animal World

Natchez, Miss. (Special) — The age of push - button living has gone to the dogs.

It's shocking to say the least. L. P. Rushing actually controls the movements of dogs while training them for bird - hunting by pushing a button.

A wired collar, on signal from the controller, causes the dog to receive an electric shock. The shocking device is used to make the dog obey.

Powered by a six - volt battery in the radio receiver, the device reduces as much as 50 per cent time taken to train a bird dog, according to Rushing.

"In a very short time a dog learns to obey to keep from getting shocked," Rushing says. Currently training eight dogs, Rushing reported that one of them was so thoroughly schooled through use of the collar, the device was eliminated after only two days of training.

DURING CUBAN CRISIS

Six Soviet Subs Located By Navy

U.S. NAVAL BASE, Guantanamo, Cuba (AP) — The Cuban crisis antisubmarine search by the U.S. Navy covered a 3.5-million-square-mile area and located about six Soviet submarines, Adm. George W. Anderson, chief of naval operations, says.

Resulting directly from the biggest search since World War II and Korea were four deaths, occurring in two helicopter crashes from the antisubmarine carrier Essex. There were other casualties, however, not related to the antisubmarine warfare operation, including the crash of an Air Force C135 transport plane at Guantanamo while bringing in supplies.

The approximate six Soviet subs were observed visually and photographed when they surfaced to recharge batteries. Anderson said they were standard, disel-powered submarines, not atomic-powered.

The nearest such observation was about 200 miles off Cuba, Anderson said in an interview. To a question, he said also he knew of no Soviet submarine being found close to U.S. shores. The antisubmarine operation extended from the U.S. coast eastward as far as the Azores and Canaries and southward off the northeastern coast of South America.

Anderson said the sightings came in a period of about three weeks midway of the Cuban crisis. He indicated that some of the vessels were sighted more than once, leading to earlier reports that substantially more than six had been discovered.

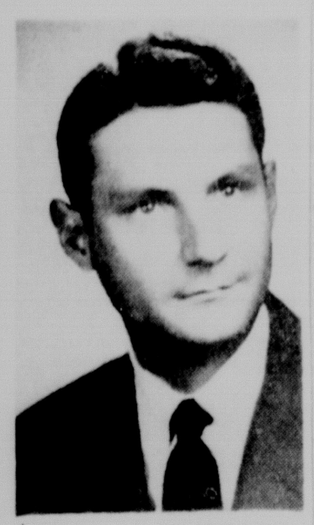

Anderson says, "There is no doubt whatever that had there been hostile action we could have handled the situation without difficulty."

But the surface contacts between U.S. and Soviet men-of-war brought only formal, indeed almost polite, interchange.

"When a submarine surfaced, we extended normal courtesy, asking him 'are you in need of assistance?'" Anderson said.

The admiral added, with a grin, that the U.S. Navy appreciates the assistance the submarines gave in providing realistic antisubmarine training.

Ships and aircraft carried the newest equipment for submarine detection, location and classification. Even better equipment is on the way. Anderson commented that sonar sets, still in the development stage, promise to have 10 times the 1,500 to 2,000 years range of World War II sonar.

SIMMS McCLINTOCK, teacher and co-ordinator of social students at Crossett, Ark. High School, is one of 10 finalists in the "National Teacher of the Year" program. Winner will be announced this spring.

Eight Persons Lose Lives In Alabama Fires

TUSCUMBIA, Ala. (AP) —Eight persons — seven of them children — died in fires in two Alabama cities early Saturday.

The first fire occurred shortly after midnight in a small frame house in this northwest Alabama industrial city.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Owens and five of their children ran from the house.

Outside, the Owens discovered some of their children missing and tried desperately to re-enter the house. Both received cuts on the arms when they broke windows. Searing heat and stifling smoke forced them to retreat.

Firemen found the bodies of Mattie Owens, 9 months, Vernon Ray Owens, 5, Karen Owens, 9, and Otis Neville, 60, in the ruins.

At Sylacauga, 40 miles southwest of Birmingham, the four small children of Mr. and Mrs. Leonza Borden died in a fire which destroyed the Borden house.

Borden had left for work and his wife was at a neighbor's house when the fire started.

Dead are Sherry, 4, Angel Pearl 3, Carmon, 2, and Leon, 1. Firemen recovered the bodies while the fire was in progress. The small frame house was destroyed.

No cause was determined in either fire.

Former School Teacher Held For Kidnaping

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)— A whiskey-drinking former school teacher, accused of kidnaping two teenaged girls at gunpoint Friday night, was easily captured 10 hours later after he drove by the scene of the crime.

The girls, freed minutes earlier, were not injured but said they had been molested, police reported.

Officers identified the suspect as Gale Homer Anderson, 30, of Salt Lake city, a former school teacher in Idaho and Utah. He lived only three blocks from the home of one of the girls.

The girls, both 13 years old, were Karen Ann Garner and Kerry Warner. They appeared upset and excited, but didn't display a great deal of distress following their ordeal.

Detective Gary Jenkins said Anderson told of drinking a quart of whiskey a day and that he had recently been told by a doctor to see a psychiatrist.

Bosch Claims Victory In Dominican

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI)—Juan Bosch, leftist anti-Communist presidential candidate of the Dominican Revolutionary party, claimed victory Saturday and said he is not bothered by reports of a plot to assassinate him.

The 53-year-old firebrand, who has lived half his life in political exile, summoned reporters to his suburban home today to declare "I have been elected by a sweeping majority." He said he will leave tomorrow for a Christmas vacation in the United States.

Unofficial returns at mid-day bore out Bosch's victory contention. With 612,167 votes, he held almost a two-to-one lead over Conservative Viriato A. Fiallo of the National Civic Union (UCN) who had 308,570. The total vote was slightly over one million. There were three other also-ran candidates for president in Thursday's election, the nation's first free one since 1924.

Bosch said "nothing but death" could prevent his inauguration. But he indicated he did not place much stock in reports made by his supporters that there is a plot afoot to kill him.

"There have been lots of rumors about a supposed plot. But I am sure that in the Dominican Republic nobody would dare to lay a hand on me because this would constitute a provocation of the people, and this is a people no one dares to provoke," the white-haired candidate said.

The assassination plot report was issued by Horacio Ornes, candidate of the Revolutionary Vanguard party who withdrew from the campaign and threw his support to Bosch. He said he too was marked for death, and accused Fiallo's National Civic Union of being behind the alleged plot.

Fiallo, a country doctor and hero of the clandestine resistance against late dictator Rafael Trujillo, would not dignify the charges with a response. Stubbornly, he has also refused to concede to Bosch.

Bosch told the nation in a statement to anticipate "false rumors" about him while he is on his U. S. vacation.

"Don't believe any rumors that I am not going to return or that I am not going to take office. I have been elected and I shall take office," he said.

He scored anti-Castro Cuban exiles here who he said "intervened in a way that was not clean in our national politics." But he said exiles will continue to be welcome here.

Storm Isolates Home Town Of 'Santa Claus'

FINIKE, Southern Turkey (AP) — Santa Claus' home town has been cut off from civilization by raging Mediterranean storms — and it could remain that way through Christmas.

Saint Nicholas, whose name has been corrupted to Santa Claus lived and worked 1,600 years ago in Myra, now known as Demre, about 15 miles west of here on the rugged Mediterranean coast.

Demre has been isolated from the outside world since Wednesday. Heavy seas prevent boats from reaching the village and the only road into town has been blocked by landslides. Workers are trying to clear the road but it may take weeks.

The only sign of Saint Nicholas is his church and monastery, part of which are nearby. Of the saint nothing remains here. His body was removed to Bari in Italy in the 11th century.

Saint Nicholas was a rich 4th century bishop which, legend says, liked to anonymously distribute dowries to poor girls of his diocese — hence gift-giving at Christmas.

Soviets Plan Manned Launch

BOMBAY, India (AP)—The Soviet Union is planning to launch soon a manned spaceship weighing several dozen tons, Soviet Ambassador Ivan A. Benediktov announced Saturday. He gave no details.

Maj. Yuri Gagarin's and Maj. Gherman Titov's spaceships, Vostok I and Vostok II, each weighed about 4.6 tons.

Skybolt May Face Inquiry In Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pentagon civilian chiefs, it is now quite plain, want to kill the Skybolt missile as quickly as possible and board up the windows against the hurricane-force winds of protest that will blow down from Capitol Hill.

There seems to be no chance that the whole drama can be played out as fast as the civilian chiefs would like. For they are pushing something that substantial numbers of congressional military authorities and Pentagon military chiefs are against.

Congress will not let the Skybolt issue die, it is fair to assume, without finding out for the public how the Joint Chiefs of Staff feel about it. There has been remarkable official silence on this point, which contrasts starkly with the publicity that Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara gave the military leaders' views on the RS70 warplane last spring.

The chiefs "voted" four to one in McNamara's favor on that one. Only the Air Force member wanted to speed up the RS70 program. It is a good assumption that the chiefs of the services, if not Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, their chairman, must differ from McNamara and his civilian technical advisers on the Skybolt.

In fact, it is fairly well known that they do. But when asked for official comment, the Pentagon's spokesman takes refuge in this: "I am not going to make any comment on what the Joint Chiefs of Staff did or didn't do."

So the observer is left wondering whether military leaders views on controversial weapons decisions are to be only for confidential internal use — unless they more or less coincide with views of their civilian superiors as in the RS70 case.

Congress is not likely to settle for such a situation now any more than it has in the past. It insists on knowing what the "pros" think, and no doubt will bring out the chiefs' views on Skybolt in hearings in both Houses early in the new congressional session.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., already has said the service chiefs supported continuation of the Skybolt program, information which the Defense Department refuses to confirm.

Mississippian Fatally Injured In Auto Mishap

NATCHEZ (Special) — A 50-year-old Roxie, Miss., man, Jesse William Shell, was killed instantly early Saturday morning when struck by an automobile at Leesdale, Miss.

Funeral services will be held today at 10 a.m. at the Springhill Baptist Church, Knoxville, Miss., with the Rev. Ben Fairchild officiating. Interment, under direction of Laird Funeral Home of Natchez, will follow in the Springhill Church Cemetery.

Mr. Shell was reportedly crossing the highway shortly after midnight when he was struck by an automobile driven by H. L. Corley, 30, of Vidalia. Adams County coroner R. E. Smith, who performed the inquest, said the mishap was unavoidable.

The accident was investigated by State Highway Patrolman Mason Seale, chief criminal deputy Mario Hernandez and deputy Charles Flowers. No charges were filed.

Mr. Shell is survived by his father, T. H. Shell of Roxie; two daughters, Miss Jessie Shell and Mrs. Luther Lambuth, both of Natchez; two sisters, Mrs. Harvey Saucier of Knoxville and Miss Mary Shell of Roxie; and five brothers, Kirby Shell, Roy Shell, Daniel Shell and Aaron Shell, all of Roxie, and Phillip Shell of Meadville, Miss.

Yule Trip Ends In Death For Seven In Family

CLARKS, Neb. (AP)—A sudden skid on an unexpected patch of highway ice brought a swift and tragic end to a young Iowan's trip home with his wife and five children for a Christmas time family reunion.

The bodies of Dennis Randall Dewey, 28, of Des Moines; his wife, Patricia, 26; and their five sons, Randy, 10, Steven, 9, Dick, 7, Kevin, 5, and Dennis, 2, were found Saturday in their overturned car in a roadside water-filled ravine.

County attorney William H. Norton said the accident occurred Friday night just south and east of Clarks. He said he didn't know who was driving. Clarks is about 100 miles west of Omaha.

The Deweys were bound for Broken Bow and a big family gathering at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Dewey. They left Des Moines about 2 p.m. Friday, leaving behind a Christmas tree with presents neatly stacked beneath it. Neighbors said they planned to return Christmas night.

Most of the highway was clear, Norton said, but near Clarks Dewey's car hit an icy curve and overturned into the ravine in about 5½ feet of water.

A 50-FOOT Santa, whose red paint keeps peeling in the blistering sun, dwarfs bus traffic in Rio de Janiero, near Copacabana Beach, to point up the spirit of the holiday season. On the hillsides high above Santa are the poverty-stricken shanty towns of Rio. Despite the biggest deficit in Brazil's history and the shortage of staples like rice and beans plus a spiraling inflation, Rio appears determined to make it a gay Christmas. (AP Wirephoto)

No Snow For Brazil Yuletide But 'Jingle Bells' Is Popular

By FRANK BRUTTO

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—There is no snow for Brazil's Christmas, but "Jingle Bells" and "White Christmas" are popular tunes.

It is mid-summer in this hemisphere, in downtown Rio de Janeiro, near Copacabana Beach where the bikini-clad girls are mahogany brown and a 50-foot Santa Claus dwarfs traffic.

In back of the Santa Claus, against a cliff, are a giant painted star and the greeting "boas festas" (happy holidays).

Towering over all—a constant reminder of the nation's basic plights—is one of Rio's favelas, the rickety, high-perched shanty towns of the poor.

Brazil has the biggest deficit in history (one trillion cruzeiros or nearly $2 billion). Beans and rice are scarce in a spiraling inflation that has raised the cost of living about 60 per cent for the year. But Brazilians appear determined to celebrate in a wave of spending.

MOTIVATION

Part of the motivation comes from the rapidly declining value of the cruzeiro. This monetary unit dropped this month to 850 to the dollar—the lowest ever—and threatened to go even lower as printing presses worked overtime to produce paper money to meet Christmas bonuses.

Gaily wrapped Christmas packages hang from trees in Rio's business areas, brightly lighted at night. Here and in other cities and towns the nativity scene, complete with shepherds and animals, is a constant reminder of the birth of Christ.

In Marshal Floriano Peixoto Square, the heart of Rio, is a life-size scene of the nativity.

A singular touch this year is a lighted rosary on the giant statue of Christ the Redeemer on Corcovado Mountain. The rosary was placed there as part of a crusade for family prayer by the Rev. Patrick Peyton, who has campaigned for prayer for a quarter century in 45 nations.

The figure of "Papai Noel" (Father Christmas, or Santa Claus) is frequent in decorations.

Brazil's Christmas observance still has traces of its Portuguese heritage. According to this, the family buys its Christmas tree, usually a pine. Then it samples chestnuts, walnuts and other nuts, mostly imported. Brazil nuts, popular in the United States, are rarely used in Brazil.

The center of the Christmas dinner is turkey or chicken, stuffed with mandioca flour. Other traditional Christmas dishes include codfish cakes and rabanada, the latter a sweet made of bread dipped in milk, sugar and beaten egg yolks, then fried in butter and spread with sugar and cinnamon.

For drinks, the Brazilian family may have a bottle of Portuguese wine, but more usually a good Brazilian vintage. For those who can afford it—and can get it—there is also imported whisky. It sells at about 5,000 cruzeiro the fifth—not quite half the monthly minimum wage of 13,000 cruzeiros.

For those who want their Christmas tunes jazzy there is available a record of "Silent Night" to samba beat.

Alabama Youth Prefers Tolar To Astronaut

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—An Alabama boy turned down a Texas Children's Hospital nurse when she told him she could arrange for an astronaut to visit him.

"I'd rather see Charlie Tolar," replied Gary Smith, 9, who is hospitalized with Hodgkins disease.

Tolar, fullback for the American Football League Houston Oilers, made Gary's wish come true Saturday.

Tolar visited the youngster and gave him two toys and a football autographed by the Oiler team that is to seek its third straight AFL championship Sunday in a game with the Dallas Texans.

Gary is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Smith, Spring Hill, Ala.

"Gary's ambition is to be a quarterback," said Mrs. Smith.

Canada Refuses Students Help For Cuba Trip

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Canadian government Saturday refused to allow a group of American students to use Toronto as the departure point for a Christmas trip to Cuba. A spokesman for the students said later "other possibilities" were being considered.

An external affairs official in Ottawa, Ont., said the decision forbidding a Cubana Airlines plane to transport the students to Havana is "final and will not be reconsidered."

About 75 American students had accepted an invitation from the Fidel Castro government to make the trip despite a U.S. ban on travel to Cuba.

(In Havana, the Federation of University Students said that "despite new obstacles the American students will arrive either Sunday or Monday."

(The Castro student group said the students would learn "achievements" of the Castro government "to inform upon their return to the United States. . .the truths of our revolution. . .")

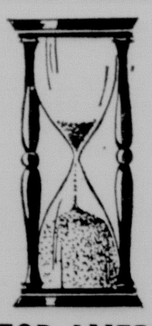

Steve Martinot, a spokesman here for the student group, said the students were meeting "to discuss other possibilities" concerning the controversial trip. He said the students still hope to make the journey.

A busload of students had planned to leave New York Saturday morning for Toronto, but the trip was called off after the Canadian government turned down a request that the Cubana airliner be allowed to land in Toronto.

FIRE LOSS $10 MILLION

MANILA (AP)—A waterfront warehouse filled with textiles, rubber and American tobacco burned Saturday. Estimates of the loss ran as high as $10 million.

IS TIME RUNNING

OUT FOR AMERICA?

Events move swiftly and our lead in world affairs will be lost unless we back higher education. That's the starting point for leadership in science, business and trade and living standards.

But higher education is up against it. Colleges are in a squeeze. Some face shortages and in less than 10 years there'll be twice as many applicants.

Now is the time to support our colleges, see that they have what they need in modern laboratories, classrooms and competent teachers.

Super Highways May Cut U.S. Traffic Deaths

WASHINGTON (UPI)—At least 5,000 persons destined for death on the nation's highways every year will survive after the interstate system is completed in 1972.

The prediction was made Saturday by James K. Williams, director of the newly-created Office of Highway Safety in the Bureau of Public Roads.

But he warned that the system, with its built-in safety features, cannot do the job. He said that many motorists, even those who consider themselves good rivers, may have to learn to drive again to cope with the super highways.

He said techniques developed for stop-and-go driving on conventional highways are inadequate on the high-speed roads which are geared to move large volumes of traffic in the shortest time.

Along the East and West coasts where expressways have been in use for some time, Williams said, drivers have adjusted in differing degrees. But in the other areas where long stretches of roads without traffic lights and intersections are more of a novelty, a driver education program will be needed.

Williams said the slow driver or dawdler has no business on an interstate road. The dawdler is particularly dangerous, he said, when he insists on driving in the left or speed lane. He forces others to move in and out, a dangerous maneuver at high speeds, he added.

Even in the right lane, the slowpoke is a menace. Williams said it is difficult for a driver moving along at high speed to gauge the speed of the car ahead. The result can be a rear-end collision.

Army Charged Of Tampering With GI Mail

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)— The Jackson (Miss.) Daily News charged Saturday the Army is tampering "with the GI's cookie jar" because of mis-addressed Christmas cards and packages that arrived at their destination.

Editor James M. Ward, in an editorial one week after asking Mississippians to cheer up soldiers stationed at Oxford by sending Christmas cards, said the Army rejected the packages and cards because "it resented" the address "U.S. Army occupation forces."

The newspaper said it had been advised by the Army that packages should be sent to the 66th MP battalion and 720th MP company at that address.

Ward said "our intentions were honorable" when giving the ad-"We are sorry that the military gave the wrong address in the first place."

The editorial "humbly" apologized to readers for causing them the trouble and expense of mailing cards and gifts.

"We have contempt for the bungling high brass who has displayed such utter sensitivity," the editorial said. "This, to us, is another example of bureaucratic bungling and federal dictatorship that reaches right into the mail bag of our country.

Ward said "brotherhooding by bayonet is the order of the day. Any voluntary expression of hospitality by the people of Mississippi is rejected."

N.Y. Strike Talks Break Off For Yule

NEW YORK (AP)—Stalemated talks in this city's 15-day newspaper strike broke off Saturday until the day after Christmas.

The blackout of nine newspapers in a printers' walkout threatened to become the most prolonged in the city's history.

Wednesday will be the 19th day of the strike. A strike by newspaper mailers in 1958 lasted 19 days and cost an estimated $30 million in lost advertising and circulation revenue and employes' wages.

The adjournment of the negotiations in the current impasse was announced by Stephen I. Schlossberg, a federal mediator, after he conferred with publishers and printers in joint and separate meetings.

"Until the parties are willing to get together and move, I feel the meetings serve no useful purpose," said Schlossberg, special assistant to the director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

"I hope that with the holiday spirit they will come in a little more conciliatory next week."

Bertram A. Powers, president of the striking Local 6 of the International Typographical Union, criticized the length of the adjournment.

"We have just been informed that the meetings have been adjourned until next Wednesday," Powers told newsmen. "We regret that because this much we know: There can be no agreement if there are no meetings."

Powers also accused the Publishers Association of New York City of refusing to meet the union except through the auspices of the federal mediators.

Amory H. Bradford, general manager of the New York Times and chief negotiator for the publishers, commented: "I keep hearing that Mr. Powers wants to meet but when he comes he makes no attempt to negotiate by modifying his position on any of the issues.

"I think no meeting will be fruitful until he indicates he is willing to proceed to a reasonable settlement."

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

If you have a bunch of kids . . . don't throw that old card table away. Saw off the four legs to a length of about twelve inches. This makes an excellent play table for the kiddies. It saves crayon marks on that good card table.

The children can sit on the floor and use this table to eat or to play on. My children get a great kick out of this. When the weather permits I put the table on the front porch and this gets the children out of the house.

Before picking up that saw, let me caution you about one thing: Don't make the legs any shorter than 12 inches because, remember, the child must get his knees under the table.

Mother

GOOD SCRUBBER

DEAR HELOISE:

By chance, I picked up a piece of styrene which is used in many kinds of packaging . . . and I used it to scrub the bathtub.

Just a little scouring powder and the styrene, and my tub was spotless. The styrene does not absorb water and the powder stays right in contact with the surface instead of soaking in as with a sponge. It also scrubs copper-bottomed pans.

MASON JAR PUNCH

DEAR HELOISE:

If a young'un must stay in bed due to illness . . . try serving fruit juices or liquids in a half-pint mason jar!

Screw the lid on the jar and punch a hole with your ice pick, large enough to permit entry of a soda straw. This prevents spilling on bed linens! Also the kids love it.

NUTCRACKER TREAT

DEAR HELOISE:

Pecans, when removed from their shells, should be put in fruit jars with a tight screw lid and kept in the refrigerator. This will keep them from becoming rancid.

—O. O.

DEAR HELOISE:

Mothers who have little boys who just will get tar on their blue jeans (where on earth it comes from, I'll never know) might like to know that I remove it with turpentine. Just saturate the spot and rub it in well. Wash as usual to remove any turpentine.

Five Boys' Mother

USE A BRICK

DEAR HELOISE:

To remove paint or stain from the outside brick on your home, rub it with another brick of the same type and color.

SOCKS APPEAL

DEAR HELOISE:

When I wash my one-year-old's socks . . . I pin them together before tossing them into the washing machine. When I hang them out to dry, I leave them on the pin, and slip the pin over the line. I haven't lost a sock yet.

MORE TIME-SAVING TIPS

DEAR HELOISE:

Here are my time-saving hints:

I bought an extra clothes hamper, just for ironing. I find this a much neater way to store unironed items.

Before you begin to iron, start your favorite "cook ahead" dish or casserole. The heavenly smells are invigorating. Ironing seems to go faster.

If your neck gets tense from ironing, let your head drop forward and rotate it slowly. Releases tension.

I keep a small sewing and mending bag right near my washing machine to do my mending before washing. That way it gets done.

I find that I always clean more thoroughly at the beginning of a cleaning period and then I lag towards the end. Every day now I start cleaning in a new area. Every area gets that first treatment eventually!

CARPET FUZZ

To remove stubborn fuzz that your vacuum cleaner will not pick up, simply moisten a scrubbing brush with water and gently brush your carpets in a circular motion. This will create small "balls" which are then easy to pick up.

FOR ONION LOVERS.

DEAR HELOISE:

Stale, dried-up cheese turns into a delicious spread when placed into the meat grinder with a few chunks of raw onion!

Veronica Gracey

SUGAR DUSTER

DEAR HELOISE:

I keep sugar in a large shaker for sprinkling cookies, pies, etc. This sprinkles more evenly than when the fingers are used and there is far less waste.

TISSUE STRAINER

DEAR HELOISE:

I don't know how I got through 27 years of housekeeping without your column. I have learned so much.

Try a layer of facial tissue in the strainer basket of your bacon and grease can. Not a particle of anything solid goes through! I keep a supply of facial tissues in the kitchen. They are good for straining any watery liquid. For anything else you want to strain, just pop a tissue into your tea strainer and strain away!

Wash your tea strainer occasionally with a stiff brush. An old toothbrush is excellent for this.

DONUT SAVERS

DEAR HELOISE:

I am a "Scotchman" and I practice being one. Let me list some of my "string-saving ideas" . . .

Those old adhesive tape tins are ideal for your wife's tape measure or Christmas ribbons. Save the thick rubber bands off bunches of carrots and celery. These are ideal for "pony tails".

Did you know that your children's box of broken crayons could be saved and melted down again? If they are mixed, they still color well for dark backgrounds on large drawings.

GEE! WITHOUT SNOW! AN' SLEIGH BELLS IT'S HARD T'RE'LIZE THAT CHRISTMAS IS NEARLY HERE AGAIN!

IT IS EVEN HARDER TO REALIZE THAT, FOR MANY HERE, THIS WILL BE THEIR FIRST CHRISTMAS!

Y'MEAN KIDS DON'T HAVE CHRISTMAS, WHERE THEY CAME FROM?

OH, MOST OF THESE FOLKS BELIEVE IN WHAT CHRISTMAS IS MEANT TO CELEBRATE, BUT THEY NEVER HAD SANTA CLAUS AND CHRISTMAS TREES!

LEAPIN' LIZARDS! AND NO PRESENTS IN THEIR STOCKINGS ON CHRISTMAS MORNING?

IT'S BEEN A LONG TIME SINCE MANY OF THEM HAVE EVEN HAD STOCKINGS!

WELL, THEY'RE CATCHIN' ON QUICK T' OUR WAY O' CEL'BRATIN' CHRISTMAS! HAVE Y'NOTICED?

THE SECRET LITTLE SMILES, THE SHINING EYES, THE SMALL, HALF-HIDDEN, BRIGHTLY-WRAPPED PACKAGES? YES, ANNIE!

BUT WHEN FOLKS ARE SO AWFUL POOR WHAT CAN THEY POSSIBLY HAVE TO GIVE?

EVEN THE POOREST HAS SOME ONE POSSESSION, PRICELESS TO HIM OR HER ALONE!

A BRIGHT BUTTON, PERHAPS; A SPECIAL MARBLE; A LITTLE PICTURE; A BROKEN COMB, SET WITH COLORED GLASS! WORTHLESS? NOT TO THE CHILD WHO TREASURES IT!

Y'MEAN TO SAY THEY'D GIVE THINGS LIKE THOSE FOR PRESENTS?

GEORGE ELIOT WROTE: "ONE MUST BE POOR TO KNOW THE LUXURY OF GIVING". YES, ANNIE! THEY'LL GIVE THEIR ALL TO THOSE THEY LOVE THE MOST!

GUESS WHEN Y'VE GOT TH' MONEY T'BUY 'MOST ANYTHING, Y'DON'T THINK HOW MUCH GIVIN' CAN MEAN!

IS IT TRUE THAT EVER'BODY IS INVITED TO TH' HACIENDA FOR CHRISTMAS DINNER? EVER'BODY?

YES! IT HAS BEEN SO FOR 150 YEARS!

ALL BRING GIFTS AND ALL RECEIVE GIFTS; IT IS THE TRADITION OF THE HACIENDA SEVILLE!

WOW! EVEN LITTLE GIFTS T'HUNNERTS O' FOLKS MUST RUN INTO AN AWFUL LOT!

THAT IS A SECRET ONLY A TRULY GREAT LADY OF SPAIN COULD KEEP SO WELL!

BUT ONE THING THAT IS NOT A SECRET! IT'S GOING TO BE A VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS HERE AT THE HACIENDA!

Y'BET IT IS AND WE HOPE IT'LL BE THE SAME OUT THERE AT YOUR HACIENDA, TOO!
